Work Does Not Kill.
Most Worthy White Rat.
Cossacks Among the Incas.
China Is So Far.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

YESTERDAY John D. Rockefeller celebrated the seventy-eighth anniversary of "his first job." He started work at fifteen, and has been working ever since, according to the American plan.

Young gentlemen will observe that he has not "killed himself working."

AT GROVE CITY, Pa., dwelt a white rat, name unknown, entitled to your respect. This rat, still alive, was put into a rattlesnakes' cage in the zoology department of Grove City College, to feed the rattlesnakes.

Immediately, the rat attacked and destroyed a group of seven small rattlesnakes. Then as the big rattlesnakes advanced, the rat, biting and squealing, flew at them and the poisonous snakes retreated.

The rat was removed to save the snakes. It will probably die of snake bite, but what a glorious death!

Alexander jumping down inside the wall of a besieged city ahead of his men and fighting for life, alone, did no more than that white rat.

PARAGUAY proposes to import from Russia ten thousand Cossacks to help fight Bolivia, for control of the Chaco region. Aborigines, in that part of the world, descendants of the Incas, will wonder if they see the Cossacks at work.

And students of the human race will write another chapter on the mixing of human breeds, which, on the whole, has been highly beneficial.

A RELIEF commission gives you figures concerning the Yellow River flood. Fifty thousand Chinese were drowned. One million are starving. Conditions were made worse by brigands and soldiers breaking dikes in their fighting.

A plague of heat, rats and locusts has added to the evil and parents eagerly try to give away children hoping that someone will feed them.

All of that the western world takes calmly and coldly. China is too far away.

GERMAN CHILDREN are to be trained in the art of war. One professor tells children it is important, in their book on war, to observe carefully the chapter on poison gases.

Prof. Banse, military science expert in the Brunswick Technological School, says everybody, children included, "must understand that there is nothing criminal about war."

If Germany should start war too soon, and France should send her great air fleet to bombard German cities, with explosives and poison gas, Prof. Banse and the children would discover that war is dangerous, if it isn't criminal.

DR. HUGO ECKENER, a German, who keeps an old dirigible flying back and forth between Germany and Brazil, and will bring the same dirigible from Brazil up to Chicago, plans an airship line from the United States to Europe. He asks permission to use temporarily the government's empty dirigible shed at Lakehurst, N. J.

Americans, whose airships are built, go up into the air, and then fall down, because the Navy won't let a man stay in command after he has learned his business, will be interested to see a German doing what the United States ought to do, and could do.

CAN YOU imagine the indignation of our good British friends. They told Uncle Sam:

"Please don't build any 10,000-ton fast cruisers. We don't want them; we want nothing heavier than 7,000 tons."

Uncle Sam announces that he will go ahead and build 10,000-ton cruisers anyhow.

What has come over him? Is he actually starting in business for himself?

AT SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, a play was produced by Spanish actors called "Gore's Hell." At the end of the play, which packed the municipal theater, the audience was delighted with a genuine cock-fight on the stage.

The pleasure of enjoying cock-fights, publicly and legally, the Porto Ricans owe to the governor sent to Porto Rico by this "civilized nation," who thought legalizing cock-fights might attract tourists.

If President Roosevelt were not so busy he might tell the Porto Rico governor that the United States hopeu it had passed beyond the cock-fighting, bull-baiting stage.

RICHES TAKE wings. A great industrialist, who had created jobs for thousands of men, and paid out millions in wages, killed himself to escape the humiliation of failure.

Another industrialist of the Mid-West, a persistent builder, useful worker, sits in his great house, which no longer belongs to him, a bankrupt.

Yesterday J. V. Thompson, once called "one of the world's richest men," died in poverty and actual want in Uniontown, Pa., in a great house, dilapidated, with the weeds growing around it.

"Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth."

MR. F. B. CAMPBELL, who has $250,000 worth of gold bars, tells the government about it, is arrested and proposes to test in court the government's constitutional right to say: "Give me your gold."

Many will be interested in that, apart from any gold ownership. For, if, today, the government can legally say: "Give me your gold," tomorrow

WILKINSBURG BLUE LAW FOES WIN

Five Sunday Show Employes Freed By Squire

The blue law forces in Wilkinsburg went down to defeat today in the borough's heated battle over the ancient statutes.

The five employes of the Rowland Theater, arrested during a political campaign for conducting a Sunday benefit show, were discharged today by Justice of the Peace George B. Shields.

The fight found the Veterans of Foreign Wars, in Wilkinsburg, on one side and Burgess John H. Rhodes, championing the blue law, on the other.

VETS BACKED SHOWS

With the next show, he caused the arrest of the theater manager, Richard Brown, and four employes, Walter Waznik, L. J. Goehring, L. W. Bauman and J. S. Kiser.

But Justice of the Peace Shields, in an opinion handed down with his decision, upheld the soldiers with this declaration:

"I am of the opinion that the employment of these defendants was a necessity in the furtherance of a charitable cause and they are therefore not guilty of a violation and I so find them."

JUDGE QUOTED

In support of his decision, Shields quoted an opinion by one Judge C. J. Lowrie:

"All worldly employments are allowed which in their nature consist of acts of necessity or charity, or if they become so for the time being. In such cases, necessity and charity demand the work, and with it all the ordinary means of doing it."

The war veterans announced some time ago that the proceeds of the Sunday shows were to be applied to relief work.

The clash appeared to have a political atmosphere. Rhodes, acting burgess, was a candidate for a full term. He was opposed by a former commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, William P. Yocum. Rhodes defeated Yocum for the Republican nomination, but Yocum was nominated by the Democrats.

Biting Squirrels Rouse Wife of Pirate Star

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—(AP.)—Everything seems to be going along satisfactorily in the neighborhood in which Mrs. Fred Lindstrom resides, except the conduct of the squirrels.

She complained to the police that large herds of squirrels were infesting the neighborhood and that they had grown so bold that now and then one would take a nip at the heels of a passerby.

The police looked the squirrel situation over and fired a few shots, but Mrs. Lindstrom said she didn't think that any of them were hit.

Mrs. Lindstrom is the wife of a member of the Pittsburgh club of the National Baseball League.

CASHIER'S FUND DEFICIT GROWS

The standing of Miss Hazel Weigel, the 43-year-old spinster, among missing bank cashiers, was improved substantially today with the discovery of additional shortages in the bank accounts.

When Miss Weigel disappeared, all of a sudden, from the State Bank of Elizabeth, where she was assistant cashier, last Friday, it was believed that she had taken only $3,000 with her. Later the loss jumped to $7,300.

But today's developments lifted Miss Weigel from the piker class; the shortage stands now at $12,000, and the audit of her accounts has not been finished, B. E. Wylie, president of the bank, said. The shortage is covered by her bond, Wylie added.

Mr. Wylie, who has filed an embezzlement charge against Miss Weigel, said that she had dipped into approximately a dozen of the bank's accounts over a period of perhaps three years. One of these accounts was the School Board of Elizabeth, from which $2,300 was missing.

Miss Weigel's coupe, in which she departed from Elizabeth, was found yesterday in a McKeesport alley, near the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad. In the car were the ownership cards, driver's license, keys and postcards from friends at the World's Fair. On one of the postcards Miss Weigel was advised:

"Rest your feet before you start for this fair."

Mellon Firm Tries To Repudiate Code

Aluminum Company Seeks to Cut Pay To 25 Cents

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—The aluminum industry, dominated by the Mellon interests, opened the hearing on its proposed NRA code today with a determined effort to repudiate its presidential wage agreement.

Already paying one of the lowest wage scales in industry, the aluminum industry recently gained its "Blue Eagle" when it agreed to a presidential request to pay a minimum of 30 cents an hour for a 40-hour week. Today it brought in a proposed wage scale of a 25-cent-an-hour minimum.

If granted, it would constitute the lowest wages yet proposed to the NRA.

However, as soon as the purported suggestion was realized, Deputy Administrator Philip C. Kemp, conducting the hearing, interrupted with:

"Do I understand that having gained the Blue Eagle by agreeing to pay 30 cents you now want to wash this out, and pay only 25 cents?"

William C. Neilson, vice president of the Aluminum Company of America, who had attempted to ease the suggestion, replied:

"We never wanted to pay 30 cents. We agreed only because the President asked it. The proposed 25 cents per hour is high for us."

Kemp asked:

"Are you repudiating the signature of your representatives on the agreement?"

Neilson declared the proposed rate of 25 cents was all they could pay, and still compete for the American market.

FRICK'S STAND ON NRA AIRED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—(AP.)—NRA officials moved today to clean up remaining problems under the soft coal code.

Experts of the recovery administration were proceeding with the problem of adherence of "captive" mines—subsidiaries of industrial corporations not selling coal commercially.

A telephone conference with Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, whose subsidiary, the H. C. Frick Coke Company, is one of the largest "captives," was scheduled for this afternoon.

Rates for the West Kentucky, Alabama and South Tennessee regions, were to be presented to Hugh S. Johnson at the Walter Reed Hospital for approval.

Saw 'Love Pirate' Game, Rich Wife Says in Suit

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—That was no innocent game of "pirate" Mrs. Ruth Erlanger Nathan played at a suburban inn with Allison L. S. Stern, the $4,000,000 husband.

It was love buccaneering of the rawest sort. And on Allison's part it was mutiny.

So Mrs. Helen Vogel Stern, who is suing Mrs. Nathan for $4,000,000 for the loss of her husband, charged from the stand in Supreme Court today as she told, for the first time, the whole story of that hectic party.

She declared Ruth plied her husband with liquor, threw him playfully over a table, hauled off his coat and vest, pulled out his shirt tail before everybody on the dance floor—and later vanished with him. She related:

"I went around one side of the house looking for him and Sidney Erlanger, Mrs. Nathan's brother, went around the other side.

"I went through the deep grass and all of a sudden, I don't know whether the light came from the heavens or a street lamp, but I saw ahead of me.

"I was struck as if from a blow. I was so utterly unprepared for anything like that."

In a deep hush, Max D. Steuer, Mrs. Stern's counsel, asked the witness:

"Who were these people?"

Mrs. Stern replied:

"I recognized my husband and Mrs. Nathan."

Up until that night, Mrs. Stern declared, she and her husband were both "supremely happy."

10,000 OUT AT WEIRTON PLANTS, UNION MOVES ON OTHER MILLS

By the Associated Press.

To the strike picture was added today a segment of the steel industry as 10,000 steel workers in the Pittsburgh area joined nearly 70,000 coal miners in a labor walkout.

The steel troubles had their inception at the Weirton Steel Company's plant in Weirton, W. Va., over a union dispute, and union heads claimed the movement was spreading into the Eastern Ohio steel areas.

New violence was added to the Pennsylvania coal field "holiday" when pickets stopped an automobile bearing two employes of the Shamrock Coke Company. State police intervened and arrested two strikers. A former mine deputy's home was bombed.

The strike of Ford Motor Company employes, starting with a walkout of 3,000 at the Chester (Pa.) plant, spread to Edgewater, N. J., today when 500 employes there quit work in a "sympathy" demonstration.

Philadelphia bakeries were delivering bread under police guard due to a strike of truckmen there.

Mine Guard's Home Bomb Target

By AL GOUGH

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 28.—A former deputy sheriff's home was dynamited.

Two mine company employes were dragged from an auto by a mob and saved from a beating only by the arrival of State Police.

These were the latest incidents today to be added to the record of violence grown out of the bitterness born on the strife-torn coal fields of Fayette County.

Ewing Martin, 30, until a month ago a deputy for the H. C. Frick Coke Company, and his wife and two children were asleep in their beds when two sticks of dynamite, placed against the front porch, blasted their home at Star Junction, near Perryopolis.

FAMILY SHAKEN

Part of the porch was ripped into pieces, the windows of the house were shattered and the Martin family was shaken up.

Martin served as a deputy at the Frick Colonial No. 3 mine, trouble center of the strike of a month ago.

Two employes of the Shamrock Coke Company, at Shamrock, were

Wheeling Co. Employes Rallied

By DAVID ROSENTHAL
Staff Correspondent.

WEIRTON, W. Va., Sept. 28.—Ten thousand workers were on strike at plants of the Weirton Steel Company here, in Steubenville, O., and Clarksburg, W. Va., today in protest against company unions.

The Steubenville unit, employing 1,000 men, walked out late yesterday after more than 8,000 men and girls had ceased work at the Weirton plant. Last night 1,000 employes at the Clarksburg plant joined the walkout.

Possibility of spread of the strike was seen in a call by Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers for a meeting of employes of the LaBelle plant of the Wheeling Steel Corporation to be held tomorrow night in Moose Hall, Steubenville. About 3,500 men are employed at the Wheeling Corporation works.,

JOINING UNION

The Amalgamated Association's headquarters here and in Steubenville were thronged last night and today with workers of the Weirton company, applying for membership.

Joseph Bowen, district organizer, today stated that 13,00 pledges had been received from plants in the Weirton-Steubenville district, including the Mingo Junction works of the Carnegie Steel Company.

At a conference between leaders of the Amalgamated Association and company officials, a meeting between the strikers and E. T. Weir, of Pittsburgh, president of the National Steel Corporation, of which Weirton Steel is a subsidiary, was arranged. It will take place tomorrow or Saturday.

Two mass meetings, one in Weirton, the other in Steubenville, were to be held this afternoon to hear a report from a committee which conferred with the company officials yesterday.

A request that William Green president of the American Federation of Labor participate in an investigation of conditions here and in Steubenville was made by George Dunn, head of the Steubenville local of the Amalgamated Association Yesterday Secretary of

ROOSEVELT EXPERTS HINT PLAN TO RE-VALUE DOLLAR

ROGERS HEADS MONETARY STUDY

Inflation Advocates Plan Campaign in Next Congress

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—(AP.)—Financial handymen of President Roosevelt bent to a close study of the monetary outlook with Dr. James H. Rogers, of Yale, today, giving rise to numerous reports that some change involving the purchasing power of the dollar was in early prospect.

Rogers, one of several close economic advisers of the Chief Executive, maintained a friendly but effective silence on what might be done.

Apace with the activity in departmental circles, advocates of inflation were quietly planning a campaign in the next Congress for monetary expansion by legislative edict unless they are satisfied with what President Roosevelt does before then.

'MONEY CHANGERS'

Senator Thomas (Dem.), of Oklahoma, a leading advocate of inflation, in a formal statement said, "The depression baby is on the doorstep of the money changers."

Rogers conferred with Dean Acheson, acting Secretary of the Treasury; Lewis Douglas, director of the budget, and other fiscal agents of President Roosevelt. He left the presidential special yesterday in New Jersey to return to the capital after a long talk with the President.

Smiling politely in the tiny office maintained for him in one of the departmental buildings, he declined to indicate what had been the nature of his conferences.

Treasury officials who have been in close touch with the gold and general monetary situation, however, had on their desks copies of the various gold regulations for study and there were several impromptu conferences among higher officials of the department.

Some persons familiar with the situation expected Mr. Roosevelt to announce a monetary policy this week.

'COMMODITY DOLLAR'

Some of his economic advisers have been studying the commodity, dollar plan, under which the monetary unit would have a presumably constant purchasing power with its buying ability lowered by reducing the gold content or increased by adding to it. Price trends as shown by commodity indices would govern the variation of the gold content of such a dollar.

On this possibility and his own position, Rogers said, "There is nothing I could say," and of his plans, "I am returning to New Haven tonight."

Thomas, formally announcing that several groups working with him for inflation had decided to suspend their campaign for the moment to permit trial of the credit expansion program proposed by President Roosevelt, said he eagerly awaited pronouncement by the Chief Executive of his monetary program, which, it has been indicated would be made this week.

Members of the Senate and House meantime discussed privately tentative plans for insisting upon inflation by Congress at the session opening in January if they consider it necessary.

Senator McAdoo (Dem.), of California, war-time Secretary of the Treasury, was said in several sources to be ready to press for inflation when Congress reconvenes.

McAdoo was somewhere in Europe and due to return to Washington around November 1.

Roosevelt Resting At Hyde Park Estate

President Turns Over Tract for Forest Work

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sept. 28.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt entered upon a few days of rest at his ancestral home today, carefully keeping to himself whatever thoughts he may have on any plan to expand credit for the benefit of agriculture and industry.

His happy smile prevailed yesterday as he drove through crowds from New York to Hyde Park. When he stopped at the family doorstep here to talk with newspapermen he laughed and said he was interested in the reports about a forthcoming statement from him on the monetary situation.

FEDERAL SUPPORT

Mr. Roosevelt did disclose that he was ready to give federal support to the railroads for purchase of new equipment, but he emphasized that he was going to use the federal rail co-ordinator to compile the needs and use the good office of the government to obtain the best price for the bulk offer.

It is a part of the Roosevelt program to bring into line big industries with the effort for job-making deals. Before he left Washington, the President called in the leaders of the steel industry to tell them that he expected competitive bids on purchases of steel rails—and low bids.

CHURCH CELEBRATION

The President plans to attend the centennial celebration of the Methodist Church here at the end of the week. Also, he is going to attend with the family the wedding of the daughter of Theodore Douglas Robinson, Assistant Secretary of the Navy under Herbert Hoover. Robinson is a cousin of the President.

Meanwhile, the prime consideration of Mr. Roosevelt is a survey of the family place here. He has turned over a big part of his 400 acres to the state as a laboratory on reforestation. He is looking forward to a visit from state officials next Sunday to plan new plantings.

He said bauxite workers were given comfortable houses at $2 a house a month, and enumerated other supposed benefits.

Earlier, Harry W. Holt, also a vice president of the Aluminum Company of America, admitted, depsite the impressive list of signatory companies to the proposed code, that "there is only one aluminum manufacturer for the United States."

Holt and Neilson, as well as others appearing for the code, hold high places in the company's subsidiaries.

Waiting to attack the proposed code were representatives of aluminum fabricating concerns and others, who charge the code would entrench the Aluminum Company's monopoly.

'ACE' SALESMAN ARRESTED

John Rider, 35, of 1305 Brookline boulevard, accused of trying to sell the owner of a farm his own property, is on his way back to Columbus, O., charged with violation of his parole, following conviction, police say, in a real estate fraud.

Following his release about a year ago, according to city detectives, Rider "bought" a farm in Washington County, Pa., paying exactly nothing as a down payment. Later, he tried to sell it to two people at once, including the owner, even advertising the property for sale in the newspapers.

When the real owner complained to Washington County authorities, Rider fled to Pittsburgh, where he was arrested by city detectives.

TAMMANY FOES GIRD TO BREAK HALL'S RULE

Fusion Forces Flay McKee Candidacy As 'Sachem Trick'

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—(AP.)—A youngish straphanger rode into town in the subway today with a statement in his pocket that was expected to make the cauldron of New York politics boil over.

Joseph V. McKee, the Bronx Democrat, was due to announce today whether he would run for Mayor, and the best guess of most observers seemed to be that the answer would be "yes."

McKee rolled up his sleeves in his Mamaroneck summer home at 1 a. m. today and started to compose the statement. Even before his pen touched the paper the "fusion" forces, sworn to destroy Tammany Hall, had begun an attack on his candidacy. Samuel Seabury, noted investigator, saw the candidacy as a trick to maintain Tammany's "corrupt control" by splitting the anti-Tammany vote.

FIGHT COMPLICATED

Feverish revisions of plans in the political camps started as McKee's announcement was momentarily expected. Up to now the prospect has been for a clear-cut, knock-down-and-drag-out tussle between two foes.

On one side was Tammany Hall, with John J. Curry as its leader and John H. McCooey, corpulent and potent boss of Brooklyn, chief among its allies. Tammany's candidate is Mayor John P. O'Brien.

On the other was "Fusion," foes of Tammany united for the fight. It includes Republicans, Independent Democrats, like Seabury, and other elements. Its candidate is Fiorello H. LaGuardia, political battler who won nation-wide notice as a Republican Congressman.

Now McKee, interim Mayor after the resignation of James J. Walker, enters the picture, complicating it. He is a protege of Edward J. Flynn, Democratic leader of The Bronx and long-time rooter for Franklin D. Roosevelt. McKee quarreled with Tammany during his brief tenure. Then he turned his back on politics, although 232,000 people wrote his name on the ballots after he declined to oppose Tammany in the last election.

DEFIES TAMMANY

LaGuardia voiced defiance, saying Fusion would win whether McKee runs or not. Before a cheering crowd last night, he said:

"I am prepared to take on Curry, McCooey and Flynn together, or I am prepared to take on Curry, McCooey and Flynn separately."

"McKee had his chance and ran away," said Seabury, referring to a previous attempt to get McKee to become Fusion's candidate. He charged McKee with breaking a pledge to keep out of politics. McKee countered:

"I made no such pledge."

LaGuardia last night promised to restore "the city's credit." Meanwhile Gov. Lehman, wrestling with the problem of bolstering the city's failing finances, announced a comprehensive plan after a conference with city officials and bankers last night.

The plan is designed to extricate the city from fiscal difficulties and provide for unemployment relief. It would require a special session of the Legislature. The plan was to be laid before the city's Board of Estimate today.

PITTSBURGHERS TESTIFY AT DAVIS TRIAL

Photostatic Copies Of Bank Accounts Introduced

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—(AP.)—The relationship of United States Senator James J. Davis to the organization department of the Loyal Order of Moose was made the subject of inquiry today in his trial on federal lottery charges.

Davis ownership of the department, by virtue of a life contract with the Moose, has been emphasized by the government, which seeks to show that Davis was aware that the Moose conducted a national lottery in 1931 in connection with charity balls. A third of the profits of the alleged lottery was paid to the organization departmentt.

DEFENSE CLAIM

The defense claims that Davis assigned the organization contract to Joseph Jenkins and Fred W. Jones prior to the conduct of the charity balls, and was therefore no party to its activities or profits. On trial with the Senator is Theodore G. Miller, secretary of the Moose propagation department.

Through Charles H. Temme, assistant cashier of the Farmers Deposit National Bank of Pittsburgh, the government introduced photostatic copies of three accounts in the bank, called "James J. Davis, personal," "James J. Davis, trustee," and "organization department, Loyal Order of Moose," along with three powers of attorney over these accounts executed by Davis in favor of Jones.

Melvin M. Carnahan, auditor for the Fidelity Trust Company of Pittsburgh, followed Temme on the stand.

DESCRIBES FETE

Matthew Fischetti, secretary of the Clyde lodge, near Syracuse, a previous witness, described a charity ball held by his lodge in 1931 and testified that a man named Vincent Johnson appeared there to explain the lottery scheme.

Louis Mead Treadwell, assistant United States attorney, also brought out through Fischetti the mechanics connected with the sale of tickets.

Fischetti testified that Johnson, in explaining the scheme to the lodge, asserted that the charity balls had the backing of Senator Davis.

Charles Margiotti, of defense counsel, asked that the testimony be stricken from the record. Judge Johnson J. Hayes asked:

"Is it your purpose to show by this that Davis was a party to the conspiracy?"

Treadwell said:

"No, the purpose is to show there was a conspiracy."

The court said:

"Then the defendant's motion is denied."

The court added that the jury was not to consider the testimony binding on Davis.

ELEANOR BOARDMAN

ELEANOR VIDOR BETROTHED

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 28.—Hollywood friends of Eleanor Boardman Vidor, motion picture actress, and Harry D'Arrast, well known director, were informed of their engagement today. Marcel de Sano, a close friend of D'Arrast, says the marriage will take place in the late spring, as soon as Miss Boardman is legally free to marry.

Both Miss Boardman and D'Arrast have been abroad for three months, D'Arrast on his annual visit to his mother, who lives just outside Paris, and Miss Boardman on a holiday in France and England. D'Arrast, in accordance with the French custom, took his bride-to-be to call on his mother before any official engagement.

Miss Boardman was formerly married to King Vidor, also a well known director. She obtained a divorce from him April 11, and won the custody of their two children, both girls.

U. S. PICKS DEBT NEGOTIATOR

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—(AP.)—Secretary Hull disclosed today that the important war debt conversations to be opened next week with British representatives now on their way to this country will be handled by Dean Acheson, undersecretary of the Treasury, and Frederick Livesey, assistant economic advisor of the State Department.

The Secretary of State said it had been unanimously agreed that the conversations be handled in this way when Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, financial advisor to the British government, arrives to begin the talks. He is accompanied by Sir Ronald Lindsay, British ambassador, and T. K. Bewley, financial expert.

Secretary Hull also disclosed that the conversations would be held at the Treasury rather than the State Department.

He said this was in accord with custom and was a logical procedure, as the Treasury made the loans, conducts financial accounting on all loans both at home and abroad and makes collections.

Kelly Made Getaway In Broken-down Auto

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 28.—(AP.)—While officers were trying to locate George "Machine Gun" Kelly by the swanky 16-cylinder motorcar they thought he was using, the outlaw actually was dodging about Texas in a broken down four-cylinder machine. The inconspicuous vehicle was found on a farm east of Coleman.

HOSPITAL RAID TRAPS FACTOR SUSPECTS

Three Arrested as Kidnapers; Narcotics, Guns Seized

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 28.—(AP.)—Three men were held by Department of Justice operatives today following a raid on a narcotic and rest cure institution on an underworld tip that men wanted in the Charles F. Urschel and John Factor kidnapings were hiding there.

Two women seized with them were questioned and released.

Investigators declined to reveal who they held.

Two city detectives and a uniformed patrolman with a machine gun went to the hospital early today after their assistance was asked by two federal justice men, working on the Urschel kidnaping in Oklahoma City and the Factor seizure in Chicago.

NARCOTICS SEIZED

A satchel full of narcotics and hypodermic syringes, two rifles and an automatic pistol were seized.

Two of the men taken in custody were said to be from the East, one from the Bronx, New York, and the other from Jersey City. Both gave the occupations as bookmakers.

It was learned the Justice Department received a tip that a man named Brady, said to be a companion of "Ice" Connors, former Stillwater convict, wanted in connection with the Factor case, was at the rest curep lace. The raid came on this information, but Brady was not found.

ELUDED TRAP

Brady is believed to have been the man, who with Connors, escaped from a police and federal trap laid for him on the outskirts of Chicago recently. At that time arrangements were made to meet the Factor kidnapers.

The men escaped, however, but left a wrecked automobile, which, by means of license plates, believed issued to the R. G. Shannon family, was linked to the Urschel case, investigators said.

Kelly admits Kidnaping Millionaire Oil Man

MEMPHIS, Sept. 28.—(AP.)—Prodded by federal authorities, George "Machine Gun" Kelly has talked.

W. A. Rorer, Department of Justice agent, announced last night the "bad man" from the Southwest had confessed a part in the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma City oil man, but that he had stoutly denied two other crimes.

Rorer quoted Kelly as saying:

The Chicago robbery referred to in Rorer's announcement was the holdup of Federal Reserve Bank messengers and the slaying of a policeman, September 21. The "Kansas City Union Station job" was the massacre of four officers and their prisoner, Frank Nash, another notorious outlaw, in an attempt to liberate Nash.

URSCHEL TRIAL NEARING JURY

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 28.—(AP.)—The battle of words began in the Charles F. Urschel kidnaping trial today.

The battle of facts ended late yesterday when the government called a lone rebuttal witness and then rested.

Nine lawyers from four states began making closing arguments, six for and three against the 10 defendants.

Aside from these 10, George (Machine Gun) Kelly and his wife, Kathryn, soon are to be brought to court for their reputed share in the kidnaping for $200,000 ransom of the Oklahoma oil millionaire. Kelley is accused by the government of joining with Albert Bates, on trial here, in the actual abduction of Urschel from his home here last July.

Fate of 6 Nears Jury In Luer Kidnap Trial

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill., Sept. 28.—(INS.)—The fate of five men and a woman, charged with the abduction of August Luer, 77-year-old Alton (Ill.) banker, and for whom the state has asked the penalty of death, may be known by nightfall today.

State's Attorney M. L. Geers is scheduled to make a final plea for the death penalty, with the judge's instructions to follow, and the case going to the jury some time this afternoon.

Alimony Claim Tangles 2 Pairs, Judges Dizzy

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—(AP.)—Judge Joseph La Buy is puzzled. And so is Judge Joseph Sabath.

The cause of their puzzlement concerns George Schwarz and his wife, Gladys, and William L. Schnell and his wife, Florence.

Until 1931 Gladys was William's wife and Florence was George's. Then they got divorces. After that each wed the other's mate. George was to pay Florence $25 a week alimony and William was to give Gladys $20 a week for support of their three children. Allegedly nobody paid, but things went along nicely until two weeks ago when Florence decided to have George named for contempt because of unpaid alimony of $1,500.

Thereafter Gladys decided that she would start a contempt action against William, alleging he owed her $1,700.

While the Schnell case was on Judge Sabath's call yesterday, the Schwarz matter came up before Judge La Buy. He wiped the perspiration from his brow and said:

"It will take a Solomon to decide this and I don't know of any among the Circuit and Superior judges."

The attorney for Schwarz asked:

"Why don't we just cancel the two claims, leaving Mr. Schnell owing the $200 difference?"

Judge La Buy said this appealed to him and Judge Sabath said he was willing to sit en banc with Judge La Buy October 11, if it won't be against court rules. In the meanwhile the judges are to see if the plan will be legal.

Hic, Watson! Fire Theft Mystery Is Solved

The visiting firemen explained all in Criminal Court today.

Fire Chief J. C. Harr and Fireman Harold Worrall, of South Versailles Township, were in Brackenridge for the firemen's convention in July.

The Brackenridge fire laddies were mystified when the nozzles from two sets of hose disappeared. To say nothing of a $30 clock.

A few days later the nozzles were returned by mail. Enter Sherlock Holmes! On the mailing paper, it seems, was Fireman Worrall's name.

The state police arrested Harr and Worrall on larceny charges. Today they denied knowledge of the clock, admitted they had been drinking and won a directed verdict of acquittal when they agreed, anyhow, to pay for the clock.

2 GROUPS FIGHT TO CONTROL $3,000,000 ESTATE OF PUSEY

NORTH SIDER'S 2 WILLS MAKE CONFUSION

Florida Lawyer Flies Here to Contest Local Action

Two sets of executors, one of Pittsburgh, the other of Florida, today were engaged in a legal battle to determine which shall administer the $3,000,000 estate of George W. Pusey, 88, North Side wallpaper and carpet dealer.

Pusey died in Orlando, Fla., September 1, leaving two wills—one dated June 12, 1929, the other nine days before his death.

Both wills bequeath large sums to the various beneficences of the Pittsburgh Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church, and to individuals. The Florida will names several persons not mentioned in the earlier document.

Under the Pennsylvania law, a will must be executed 30 days before the death of the testator or charitable bequests fall and the estate goes to individuals named. Consequently, if the Florida will is upheld the Pittsburgh institutions will lose their bequests specified in the original will.

PROTEST FILED

The executors under the Pittsburgh will, the Allegheny Trust Company and Charles W. Dahlinger, filed a protest in Orlando to the probating of the recent will on the ground of undue influence by an attendant.

The Florida executors, Dr. Roland T. White and the Florida National Bank of Jacksonville, sent Attorney M. W. Wells to Pittsburgh by airplane today to contest the probating of the Pittsburgh will in Orphans Court on the ground that a later will was in existence. Judge Thomas P. Trimble presided at the hearing. He withheld his decision.

Under the Florida will Dr. White is given large powers in management of the estate.

$1,000,000 TRUST

The Pittsburgh will, as well as that made in Orlando, set up a $1,000,000 trust fund. Under this Pusey's housekeeper, Miss Catherine G. McIntyre, receives $10,000 a year for life, and his cousins, Elizabeth, Mary and Susan A. Lavely $1,000 a year each, and William Sepp, chauffeur, $3,000 a year.

On Miss McIntyre's death the trust fund is to be divided as follows: Pittsburgh Y. W. C. A., $50,000 for the Laughlin House branch, North Lincoln avenue; North Side Y. M. C. A., $50,000; Annuity Fund, Pittsburgh Methodist Episcopal Conference, $40,000; Calvary Methodist Episcopal Church, North Side, $20,000 annually, of which $5,000 goes to the minister; $130,000 to the Methodist Episcopal Church Union of Pittsburgh. The residue of the estate also goes to the union.

GENERAL ESTATE

From the estate generally, aside from the trust fund, the testator sets aside $50,000 for the permanent annuity fund of the Pittsburgh Methodist Episcopal Conference; the income of $50,000 and the sum of $40,000 goes to the support of disabled and retired ministers of the Methodist Church, Pittsburgh Conference; $25,000 to the Methodist Episcopal Church Union; $25,000 to the Deaconess Home; $25,000 to the Homeopathic Hospital; $25,000 to the Protestant Home for Incurables; the residue to the various organizations named.

Regina Sullivan, a family nurse, receives $1,200 a year under the Florida will. John L. Heaton, and Mr. and Mrs. Irwin W. Heaton, of Orlando, are to receive $1,000 a year.

SEA HOP HOAX SCHOOL PRANK

PORT GLASGOW, Scotland, Sept. 28.—A nationwide hoax was perpetrated by local students today when a fake story of a trans-Atlantic flight, prepared to boost a local charity, found its way into a Port Glasgow newspaper and from there was flashed throughout the world.

The students invented a mythical aviatrix whom they named "Miss N. Tynne" and a mechanic whom they called "Ellis Dee", choosing the surnames from the names of Scottish rivers.

They concocted a circumstantial story of their landing by airplane at Port Glasgow after flying from Vancouver, B. C., to capture the world endurance flight record.

The local correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Company flashed the story to London, resulting in a flood of telephonic inquiries to Port Glasgow and the hoax was speedily revealed.

RADIO MANHUNT FAKE CHARGED, ROW FLARES

International News Service.

GARY Ind., Sept. 28.—The air was blue with a battle of words today in the vicinity of Tremont and Chesterton, Ind., where last night the ether waves carried a thrilling radio broadcast of a "pitched battle" between state troopers and escaped convicts surrounded in a thicket.

Police said the broadcast was a deliberate fake.

Radio men, involved, said the police heard wrongly.

Whether the broadcast was true or false it served to excite Gov. Paul McNutt who heard it and lead him to telephone Capt. Matt Leach of the state police for details. It also made Sheriff William D. Meyering of Cook County to assemble 50 deputies on the county line to halt the escaped convicts.

CLAIM POLICE FIRED

The radio men maintain some of the policemen were loitering in a speakeasy and that they were "covering up" for other officers who fired shots near a microphone to "give atmosphere" to the broadcast.

Steve Trumbull, in charge of the radio crew, and who was held all night at the state police headquarters, gave his version today:

"We never once announced that a battle was being fought. There was absolutely no fakery at all. We first had Mrs. Thelma Gustafsen talk into the microphone and tell how some of the escaped convicts stopped at her house.

"Then a police sergeant was interviewed. There were police cars going up and down the highway with sirens sounding all the time. Some of the officers wanted to fire their guns to give the broadcast atmosphere, but I told them not to.

"There were a number of officers there and they were advancing into the dense woods, firing shots into the thickets to drive out any convicts that might be there."

BROADCAST DESCRIBED

To this Capt. Leach replied that he had heard the following over the radio:

"Here we are folks, right on the scene of a gigantic man hunt. The troops are tramping through the fields on the trail of the convicts. Listen closely folks. Listen to that deadly patter of lead."

The roar of rifle and machine gun fire then came over the radio, accompanied by shrieking police sirens, he said.

Capt. Leach concluded:

"This broadcast was almost entirely erroneous. There has not been a shot fired. There was no man hunt at the scene of the broadcast. In fact there was not one single officer there."

MILITIA JOINS CONVICT HUNT

CHESTERTON, Ind., Sept. 28.—(AP.)—There was a growing apprehension today that Sheriff Charles Neel, of Corydon, Ind., may have been put to death by four of the 10 convicts who slugged and shot their way out of the Indiana State Prison last Tuesday.

Capt. Mathew Leach, in command of the Indiana state police, frankly said he was worried over the fate of the missing Sheriff, who was kidnaped by the escaping felons, and that his men would concentrate their efforts on an attempt to find the Sheriff, rather than the capture of the missing convicts. He predicted:

"We'll get them sooner or later anyway."

Meanwhile 200 national guardsmen were ordered to join the police in their search for the convicts, who have been reported seen in various places. One report had four or five of the desperadoes in Chicago. Another sent officers hurrying to a spot near Valparaiso, while a third caused 150 officers to surround a wooded tract near McCool, Ind. No trace of the missing men, however, was found.

PRISON TENSE AFTER RIOT

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 28.—Despite official representations that all was quiet at the Eastern Penitentiary today, some of the prisoners manifested their unrest in the wake of the general riot last Monday night by curses, shouts and catcalls when they were returned to their cells after breakfast today.

The tense situation was believed to have been eased for the time being after Warden Herbert J. Smith mingled with 1,500 prisoners in the recreation yard yesterday afternoon.

Capt. Elmer Leitheiser, the deputy warden, said the prisoners in cell blocks 12 and 14 began "whooping it up" after breakfast.

More than a score of state police patrolled the corridors and relieved the regular prison guard which had been on continuous duty for 36 hours. Machine guns were trained on the prison yard and on other strategic points.

ARSON WITNESS BEATEN; SIX TRAPPED

Man 'Taken for Ride' Names Alleged Assailants

Six persons, five of whom had been indicted for arson but never apprehended, were in custody of the District Attorney today charged with arson after, it is alleged, two of the number attacked, beat and "took for a ride" the state's star witness.

The witness upon whose testimony the five had been indicted for arson in connection with an explosion and fire that razed a house at 6238 Station street, East Liberty, last July 6, is George Wilson, 74, of 223 Emerson avenue.

CHARGES FILED

Wilson, in an information filed by city detectives, charged John Hinkle, 60, and his son, Riley C. Hinkle, 30, with felonious assault and battery and pointing firearms. John Hinkle, the only one of the six not already indicted, was charged with arson.

With the two Hinkles, detectives arrested Riley Hinkle's wife, Amelia, 38, and her three sons by a former marriage, John, 19, William, 16, and Albert Dipaulo, 15. All are held under the arson indictments standing against them.

Describing the attack, Wilson told detectives he was seized and beaten by two men as he walked in Ravenna street, near Swope street, Tuesday night, and taken to the Hinkle home in Kincaid street.

When they arrived at the house, Wilson told detectives, the younger Hinkle, handing him a bottle, said:

"You drink this, you double-crossed me and I am going to kill you."

The elder Hinkle interposed, saying:

"For God's sake don't kill him here."

John Hinkle feared the neighbors would hear, he said.

The Liberty Tubes was suggested as the spot, Wilson told detectives, and he was loaded into the automobile after being beaten again. En route to the South Side, the elder Hinkle continued to beat him.

As they neared the tubes Wilson said he called out to a policeman. When the officer started toward the machine, Wilson said he was ejected from the automobile. He fell to the street at the policeman's feet.

After being kept at the South Side Police Station overnight, Wilson was taken before the city detectives. He was confined to his bed today, suffering from bruises and a strained back.

During the investigation of the explosion and fire that destroyed the Station street house, with a loss estimated at $14,000, Wilson volunteered the information that the younger Hinkle had approached him and asked him to destroy the house. He said he refused.

Hinkle, according to testimony of Wilson before the grand jury, police say, had removed his family to West Virginia several weeks before the explosion. Wilson told police that he saw Hinkle enter the building the night before the blast.

BLASTS SHAKE POLICE STATION

While City Detectives Michael Tortorelli and Samuel Schreckengost questioned four arson suspects in the detective bureau in Central Police Station early today, a series of three explosions jarred the building.

Fearing a bomb had been tossed into the building, police and detectives rushed into action. They found the blasts had occurred in three manholes of the Duquesne Light Company in the vicinity of First avenue, Blockhouse way and the Boulevard of the Allies, shattering 60 windows in the Pittsburgh Press Building and the Heyl & Patterson Co. Building.

An investigation is being made to determine the cause of the explosions.

reported to have been dragged from their auto and saved from a beating only by the arrival of state police. Two striking miners were arrested.

Twenty-five pickets, said to have been angered because the water supply in their homes had been cut off, stopped an auto carrying Seymour Van Bremen, 68, foreman of the coal company's farm adjoining the small mine, and John Rockwell, 40, an employe, the authorities reported.

ONE ARREST

Charles Panoli, a striker, was arrested on charges of trespassing and disorderly conduct. He was accused of trespassing into the stables of the company's barns and attempting to unharness two horses.

Walter Evers, another striker, was charged with assault and battery. State police denied anybody had been injured.

The Shamrock mine, employing less than 100 miners, once was owned by Lord Gerald Fitzgerald, first husband of the Princess of Thurn and Taxis, a niece of Josiah V. Thompson, who died yesterday.

Holiday miners throughout the region were spreading their activities to cover every single operation in Fayette, Greene and Washington counties to balk reported attempts of independent mines to resume operations.

For the most part picketing at the mines was comparatively light this morning. A mass demonstration was held at the Frick-owned Ronco operations, many miners coming across the county line from Greene and Washington counties.

A reported offer of $50,000 to the first superintendent getting his mine into operation by the management of one of the largest coal companies in the district was rumored among the pickets today. The rumor served to strengthen the determination of the miners to remain out.

RALLY SHIFTED

Two holiday meetings are scheduled for the week-end. The convention of miners, planned at the border rally called to spread the movement into West Virginia last week, was orginally scheduled for Saturday in Uniontown. The meeting now has been shifted to Bobtown, Greene County. It will be an overnight picnic, according to leaders.

An executive meeting of officially recognized delegates only will be held at Richeyville, Washington County, Saturday afternoon. The meeting will adjourn to Bobtown where miners from all over the district will gather for the overnight camp meeting and a rally will be held the next day.

No definite plans for the march on Clairton have been made. Local leaders were still conferring, but it was considered unlikely that any definite plans would be made until Saturday's meeting.

Meanwhile, officials of the United Mine Workers still maintained an attitude of watchful waiting. William Feeney, president of District No. 4, had nothing to say concerning the policies of the organization, and so far as could be learned, neither he nor any of his associates were taking any part in the present controversy.

QUIET IN COUNTY

All was reported quiet in the coal fields of Allegheny and Washington counties today.

Yesterday striking miners of the Hillman Coal and Coke Company at Dravosburg were admonished by a deputy sheriff after they had halted trucks of the Allegheny County Poor Board leaving the docks of the company with loads of coal for destitute families. The men said they did not know the trucks belonged to the board.

Coal Strike Spreading, 75,000 Now on Holiday

International News Service.

Western Pennsylvania's bituminous coal "holiday" became all but 100 per cent effective today as Cambria County miners joined the wakout.

Only a few smaller mines scattered throughout the northern section of the soft coal region were still in production. Hardly 4,000 men are working in these operations.

Between 75,000 and 80,000 miners have joined the strike, as compared with 70,000 yesterday. The walkout has spread to approximately 450 mines.

Of the mines still unaffected by the holiday, the majority are located in the Barnesboro and Toby Valley districts where about 2,000 men are employed.

A few mines in the Cambia-Somerset field started operations this morning but pickets invading the district from Fayette County, augmented by recruits from Culver and Revlock, were marching on individual mines during the day and spreading the walkout as they went.

Mines of the Bethlehem Mines Corporation in Cambria County were closed by the operators to preclude any demonstrations. About 1,300 men worked in these pits.

Isolated Clearfield County mines remained unaffected as the roving bands of pickets from the southwestern coke region concentrated their attacks on the more important veins.

The Kramer mine of the Northwestern Mining Exchange—last large operation in Jefferson County—was idle today, 800 men having joined the walkout this morning.

CLEANERS WIN PICKET BAN

Judge James H. Gray granted a preliminary injunction today directed against the Cleaners and Dyers Local Union, No. 18,300, and Selig Morov, its president, enjoining them from interfering with the business of the Crandall, McKenzie & Henderson, Inc., the D. H. Seruset Company and Oswald Werner & Son Company.

A final hearing on a permanent injunction will be held soon. The order allows one picket in front of each plant, but does not permit picketing in front of receiving stations and offices. It also restrains strikers from interfering with customers or employes. Judge Gray is hearing testimony from 15 other companies requesting similar restraining orders.

Ford to Operate On Sliding Scale

DETROIT, Sept. 28.—(AP.)—Officials of the Ford Motor Co. today said the plant will be operated on a five-day, 40-hour week, with a complete shutdown several days each month to bring the average down to the 35 hours prescribed by the NRA automobile code which the company has not signed.

The officials said it was planned originally to operate the plant on a four-day, 32-hour basis, followed later by a period of five-day, 40-hour operation to bring the average to 35 hours a week. That plan, officials said, has been abandoned.

KNOWS CHEVALIER'S LIP

MRS. EVELYN OFFIELD, JACK OAKIE'S MOTHER, PRETTYING

Jack Oakie's 'Ma' Here With Gossipy Chatter

Did You Know Peggy Joyce Gets $1,000 A Month?

Jack Oakie's ma was in town today, and oh! she thinks Mae West is wonderful, and Chevalier oughta do something about that Hamburg lip, and those bewitching blondes out in Hollywood will never capture her boy Jackie, and her boy Jackie is the finest boy that ever lived, and she herself has a new boy friend at 65, and isn't everything just lovely?

A long sentence? Yes, but that's Jackie's ma, who, despite, or because of her years, is starting out to be a movie star. Her first picture's in town with her.

As lively as a two-year-old filly, as articulate as a talking picture, Mrs. Oakie (her correct name is Mrs. Evelyn Offield) insists that she "tells all." Listen:

"Oh, things were grand in New York. Chevalier—you know Maurice—came to see me at the station and kissed me goodbye, and, do you know, the next day I had two cold blisters. I told him to do something about that lip—you know which one.

"Jackie? Oh, he won't fall for any of them, although they're all crazy about him because I'm there. You know, when Jackie gets tired of 'em, he always goes back to Mary Brian. I think—you know, I think Mary's waiting for him, although they do say she'll marry Dick Powell—but I think she's waiting for Jackie.

"Oh, and I've got a boyfriend—Emanuel Cohen. He's the head of Paramount. Yes, he's my newest . . . Did you know Peggy Hopkins Joyce gets a thousand dollars a month as long as she uses the name Joyce? Yes, she does—a thousand a month."

BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION

10,000 WEIRTON WORKERS OUT AT 3 MILLS

Labor Frances Perkins was asked to send representatives to conduct an inquiry into alleged violations of the NRA code.

Sixty girls, employed as assorters, attempted to enter the Steubenville plant early today. With the exception of a few who managed to get by the picket line, they were prevented from entering.

Plants here and in Steubenville are down and the company apparently will not attempt to operate pending the conference between the strikers and President Weir.

Sheriff J. A. Pope, of Hancock County, with half a dozen deputies, two constables, and a dozen state police, patrolled the streets of Weirton, but only union trouble was encountered, they reported. Several arrests for disorderly conduct and drunkenness were made.

Only maintenance forces are permitted within the plants. Each man entering must show a pass signed by William J. Long, president of the Weir-Cove Lodge of the Amalgamated Association and leader of the union forces.

STRIKE 'PREMATURE'

Long said:

"We were not ready for a strike at this time. It was premature. It started with a grievance in the cold roll department, where about 400 men voted not to work on Sunday. They said it was unnecessary and they would do extra time on week days. When they refused to work Sunday the company replaced them with Negroes.

"They demanded that the Negroes be withdrawn. The company refused. One department after another walked out in sympathy. I pleaded with them to go back to work, but I could not control them and there was nothing to do but order a general walkout.

"Our first object is recognition of the Amalgamated Association as against the company unions. The question of wages will come up later. Nearly every man is making a little more than half of what they received before their time was cut under the NRA. I am getting $50 less a month."

An effort will be made tomorrow to call out the "white collar" men at Steubenville, the union leaders said. They were permitted to work today.

'WILDCAT' STRIKE

Two mass meetings held yesterday, attended by 6,000 workers, were addressed by E. W. Miller and Thomas Gillis, international vice presidents of the Amalgamated Associated.

They told the strikers:

"You are on a wildcat strike. You have violated the rules of the organization, but we are going to do our best to get you out of this difficulty. Go home and keep the peace."

A statement from company offices here stated that the plant had been operating under the company union plan and that no complaints had been made by accredited representatives of that organization. The men said the company refused to treat with the Amalgamated Association leaders.

Twenty years ago, Weir fought a battle with the Amalgamated Association here in which he won and which crippled the union for many years. At that time he was head of the Phillips Sheet and Tin Plate Company, which later became the Weirton Steel Company. John Williams, now president of Weirton Steel, was general superintendent. At present Williams is in Wales on vacation.

'Chiselers' Face NRA Action by Retailers' Code

By LEIGH MATTESON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—An ingenious method of preventing cut-throat price competition without resorting to the "stop-loss" provisions now contained in the master retail code was under consideration today by Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson and President Roosevelt.

Not much is known about the method, except that it would enable a retailer to make a direct cash profit out of any competitor who "unfairly" attempted to attract customers by going very far below cost in sales reductions.

LOSE MERCHANDISE

In addition to this penalization, the cut-throat competitor would be deprived of merchandise he had advertised at the "unfair" prices, and customers would be displeased by his action, it was said.

Both Johnson and the President are said to be carefully weighing the possibility of utilizing this method of curbing certain present retail practices which Johnson specifically denounced as "unbridled cut-throat competition and chiseling" at the opening of the public hearing on the retail code.

In order to use this method, however, the NRA would be forced to substitute other provisions for all the present recommended "stop-loss" and resale discount restriction provisions in the code, which applies to drug stores as well as all general retail and specialty stores.

48-Hour Week Asked In Grocery Code

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—(AP.)—A 48-hour maximum week for retail grocery employes and a 44-hour week for workers in wholesale grocery houses was proposed in codes of competition submitted yesterday to the recovery administration.

Hearing upon the labor provisions was set for October 5, before the NRA, with fair practice and other sections of the codes going before the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

As presented, the retail code fixes a work week of not more than six days nor more than 10 hours a day, and the wholesale charter a maximum six hour day with not more than nine hours per day.

Both codes provide that at Christmas, inventory time, and at other peak periods, employes may work not more than 56 hours per week and 10 hours per day, with payment for overtime.

The retail code provides a minimum of $15 a week in cities of more than 500,000 population; $14 in cities of 100,000 to 500,000; $13 in cities of from 25,000 to 100,000; a 20 per cent increase in villages and towns of from 2,500 to 25,000 to fix wages between $10 and $11, and in communities of less than 2,500 a 20 per cent increase up to $10.

The retail code limits the number of inside workers who may be exempted from the maximum hour provisions to one in six, including executives, proprietors, partners or persons not receiving monetary wages.

815,000 RETURN TO WORK IN AUGUST

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—(AP.)—Re-employment of 815,000 persons during August, with 11,001,000 still jobless, was estimated yesterday by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

At the same time Green said:

"Relief needs this winter will be greater than ever before.

"The President's re-employment program in its first month brought greater progress in employment than in any month since the depression.

"Reports of the Labor Department show that in the 17 industries covered by its figures, 750,000 persons went back to work from July 15 to August 15, and when other industries are added to this total, the federation estimate shows that in all 815,000 men and women went back to work in the month of August.

"Trade union reports for the first part of September indicate that the re-employment program is still going forward. They show a larger employment gain in September than in August, the largest gain in fact for any month since March, 1933, except June."

He said that looking ahead to winter months "when more than a million will probably lose their jobs, progress in the conquest of unemployment seems slow indeed."

"But miracles do not happen even under the NRA, and the fact that more than 2,800,000 have gone back to work since March, when all industries are counted, is at least a beginning toward recovery."

Green said 3,500,00 families were on the public relief rolls in August and that this number "may increase" to 4,500,000 during the winter.

"This beginning of re-employment must not mislead us into thinking that the need for relief is over or that it is even decreasing.

"In spite of the return to work of 2,800,000 by August the number of families on relief rolls in our principal cities in August was 85 to 90 per cent above August last year. The desperate condition of our unemployed families is cumulative. We are now feeling the results of four years of unemployment."

UNIONS TO WAR ON 'CHISELERS'

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—(AP.)—A closer unionization of workers to keep "chiselers" from evading NRA codes was advocated before the union label trades department of the American Federation of Labor today by John J. Manning, secretary-treasurer. He said:

"That there will be bootlegging and cheating on the part of the managers of some industries goes without saying. To minimize this great danger to favorable results we must redouble our efforts to organize all entitled to membership in our unions."

Calling the NRA an effort to bring radical changes in industry, Manning added that "in most of the codes so far approved, especially in the maximum hours provision, the daily and weekly number of hours of service are so long and the wages so small that the codes accepted will fall short of what is hoped for."

Town's Volunteer Watchdog Saved By Mayor

BALDWIN, Kan., Sept. 28.—(AP.)—Red Romeo, Baldwin's ownerless and self-appointed watchdog, was saved from being shot by official action of Mayor Carl Butell.

Some person recently made a complaint that the dog was a "nuisance" and asked that he be killed by the city marshal. As no tax had been paid for him, the dog's fate appeared sealed.

Then the protests poured in. H. F. Field, of Kansas City, sent a check for the taxes. A telegram came from California stating money was on the way. The Mayor said:

"So far as I am concerned, Red Romeo will be permitted to live to a ripe old age."

STRIKE OF FORD MEN GROWS

EDGEWATER, N. J., Sept. 28, (AP.)—Employes of the Ford Motor Company assembly plant at Edgewater were asked today to go on strike in sympathy with those who have already left the Ford plant at Chester, Pa. About 500 Edgewater workers responded, while 1,000 more went to work as usual.

A growing delegation of Chester strikers, now said to total about 1,500, gathered outside the plant and picketed peacefully while the entire Edgewater police force of 23 looked on.

Thomas J. Dunphy, of Philadelphia, leader of the Chester strikers, said he expected their number to total 2,000 by the end of the day. More are expected to arrive by automobile this afternoon, he said.

Four alleged Communists from New York, who attempted to address the pickets, were chased to the city limits by the workers themselves.

91 Years of Learning How to Save YOU Money

IT HAS BEEN SAID that every large business is but the lengthening of the shadow of some one man, who, in the early days of his career had visions extending far into the future—and the ambition and courage to carry them out. For us Adam Gimbel was that man. Back in 1842, in a barter-weary country-side he laid down his peddler's pack, opened his small store and marked all goods with one clear price . . . the price at which he could afford to sell and still stay in business . . . then announced that there was but this one price for everyone. The idea was brand new out Indiana-way, but gradually people came to like it. In the long run it saved them money.

Ninety-one years of storekeeping has given the Gimbel Organization a great deal of practice and experience in learning how to save people money. And Gimbel savings have ever been reflected in the price of goods to the customer until our stores have become known first for the values they give.

Now, specifically, we are talking about Gimbel Month and its values. From March till July we bought and stored goods in our warehouse for Gimbel Month. Today this store owns $4,500,000 in goods at retail, more merchandise than we have ever owned before at one time. We had the cash plus the wisdom plus the foresight to do it. During the past week these values have been reviewed item by item, group by group. At any time they would have seemed exceptional. In view of present costs and the real scarcity of merchandise in many lines they become nothing short of miraculous. Strong statements, some will say. But beginning Monday they will be backed with the goods, the good substantial, standard quality merchandise Pittsburghers need for Fall and Winter. Come, celebrate with us, Almost a Century of Progress, BEGINNING MONDAY, OCTOBER 2nd.

PATIENCE PLEA MADE IN NRA DRIVE

A plea for patience was made today by the leaders of the women's house-to-house consumers pledge drive as the Blue Eagle canvass neared its finish. To the housewife refusing to sign because her husband hasn't yet been put back to work the canvassers are saying:

"We can't all go back to work at once but we can just as soon as the NRA is made a success by universal support of the merchants and employers who are abiding by its provisions."

RADIO APPEAL

To make the drive a success, Mrs. I. B. Kreimer, of the women's auxiliary, NRA, said in an address over station KQV yesterday:

"The consumer must do his part. You who are employed help another fellow to get a job. Insure your own by doing so now, by buying now, spending now and supporting the Blue Eagle. Increased consumption alone will enable industry to continue production at the higher costs involved in accepting the Blue Eagle.

FASHIONABLE TO BUY

"It is no longer fashionable to play POOR. It is fashionable to buy. To preach economy when there is extra money at hand is to shirk duty and ignore sure benefit."

Adding her indorsement to the "Spend in September" movement sponsored in Pittsburgh by the Sun-Telegraph, Mrs. Kreimer added:

"Buy the things you need to the maximum of what you can afford. Although your individual purchases may seem very little, they will help, and you will profit personally by buying right now."

New Democratic Club Will Meet

ANOTHER MISERABLE NIGHT!

He Couldn't Have Felt Worse With No Sleep At All

Morning finds him limp as a rag and blue as indigo. How he dreads to face another day. Achy, dull—only half-alive, he feels and acts like an old, old man. Yet strangely enough, the cause of his condition is simplicity itself—and easily corrected in a few days.

It's Asthenia

(Run-down condition, usually caused by Constipation)

Millions of men and women are in the same lamentable plight today . . . and not one in ten can guess the cause. That's the insidious thing about Asthenia . . . it drags you down, slows your mind, robs you of your joys and pleasures, yet you hardly realize you're slipping.

Would you like for once to brush the cobwebs from your eyes . . be ready and eager for any task . . experience all the glories of this glorious old world? Then rid yourself of Asthenia and stay rid of it.

You think that you're not the least bit clogged—you say that you're "regular" as can be—but physicians will tell you that it is only too easy to deceive yourself in this respect and stay doped with poisons. Thus millions of micro-organisms accumulate in the intestinal tract and produce that dull, achy, pepless feeling known as Asthenia.

Decide right now to turn the tables on Old Man Gloom. Take Pluto Water every morning for ten mornings, and see a new world in ten days!

The NEW TASTELESS WAY TO TAKE PLUTO

in four-fifths glass of hot water.

Gentle, Effective

Don't miss a day. Take it before breakfast as recommended—one-fifth glass Pluto Water in four-fifths glass hot water—for ten straight days. Cleanse your system of every vestige of health-destroying impurities. Then you will understand why for nearly 90 years, from all over the world, people have traveled to French Lick Springs for this ten-day Pluto Water treatment. And why physicians everywhere recommend it as a mild and effective laxative—non-irritating and non-habit-forming.

Two sizes—20c and 45c—at all drug counters. Bottled and sealed at French Lick Springs Hotel, French Lick, Indiana.

LINDYS PRAISE RUSSIA FOR AIR WORK

MOSCOW, Sept. 28.—(AP.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his wife are so impressed by the experimental aviation work that is being carried on in Soviet Russia that they hope to return to this country in a couple of years to see for themselves how the experiments have worked out.

The colonel told of this desire at a banquet given in honor of himself and his wife last night. Two United States Senators—W. G. McAdoo, of California, and R. R. Reynolds, of North Carolina—were present, and a four-piece orchestra periodically played "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean."

Lindbergh said:

"Your technical achievements cannot be doubted after seeing your new construction and experimental laboratories. In fact, we are both anxious to return in two years to see the results of your present experiments translated into actualities."

Mrs. Lindbergh pleased her audience by saying:

"I am honored to sit at the same table with Soviet women aviators who are participating in the development of this science on equality with men."

Four of Soviet Russia's leading women pilots were present and joined in the enthusiastic applause.

Responding to a toast, Senator McAdoo stressed that he was here in a purely private capacity. It is his first visit to Russia in 35 years. He said:

"I am amazed at the phenomenal achievements I have witnessed."

Senator Reynolds said:

"I bring greetings from one of the greatest unions in the world to one of the greatest unions in the world."

Motoring Cowboy Continues to Wear Spurs

LIBERAL, Kan., Sept. 28.—(AP.)—Henry Hitch, who once rode the range on horseback, has a motor car now but he still wears his spurs.

He explains:

"Every time I climb into the contraption without my spurs, the darned thing quits running."

ALMA MATER

Another college year begins! Trunks are packed; tickets bought. For fathers and mothers who wave good-bye there's a sense of loss with their sense of pride. • But instead of separation this year, let the telephone keep you in touch. Regularly each week give the youngsters a call. Share their news . . . follow their progress. • So much can be said that can never be written. So much can be learned from the tone of a voice. Next to seeing one another, you will find, "Voice Visits" are best!

Remember the low Night Rates on Station to Station calls. After 8:30 P. M. Standard Time the cost of a three-minute call to any college within 100 miles is only 35 cents!

FALSE TEETH
"Stay Put" Says Druggist

"With my gums gradually shrinking I had difficulty keeping my plate in position with various denture powders. Most of them lasted only a few hours. Now I use FASTEETH and what a difference! I now wear my plate for 24 hours with absolute security and comfort. Fasteeth does not wash away or become thinned out, but "STAYS PUT" until I am ready to remove plate. FASTEETH is tasteless. Does not sour or cause foul breath. Holds false teeth all day long."

Accept only FASTEETH to enjoy false teeth comfort like you've never had before. Ask for FASTEETH.

Voudely-dink

If you lived in a certain section of South Africa and said, "Voudely-dink," things would begin to happen. If you live in America, year of '33, and say "NRA," things also begin to happen. WHAT happens depends on where you are sitting. Here, at Liberty and Oliver, truly amazing things are happening. Men and women who have not bought new clothes in years are buying them now. They're paying the butcher, the baker, the light, heat and 'phone man—BUT ALSO they are immediately recapturing their confident appearance by dashing down to Harris' and getting into new clothes! They REFUSE—and rightly—to jeopardize their newly-gotten jobs by going around another six months with that unfit, apologetic look in their eyes. They don't INTEND to wait—and wait—for their right to look their best—when by merely walking into this modern, wide-awake store they can end, once and for all, their clothing worries. Yes, Mr. and Mrs. Employed—we have already opened an account for you here at Harris'—and all you need to do is to come in and claim it! We're doing MORE than our part, by OK'ing the credit of all men and women put to work under President Roosevelt's great co-operative recovery plan. Remember that terms of payment will suit YOU. Remember, further, that under our low cost, highly specialized form of operating, we need not and do not charge you one cent over and above our regular CASH prices for any merchandise in any department of the store. Remember, finally, that our unqualified guarantee accompanies your purchases here; to wit: IF YOU CAN BUY MERCHANDISE OF THE SAME GRADE FOR LESS THAN AT HARRIS', YOUR MONEY WILL BE REFUNDED WITHOUT ALIBI OR ARGUMENT.

"If You Are Employed, We've Already OK'd Your Credit!"

Hill Billy Hunting Season

By AIRCASTER

"Dear Aircaster" is the way a letter atop the morning's mail begins, and at the bottom there is the signature of John Florence Sullivan, a helpful soul, whom you may not know professionally as Fred Allen, solemn-visaged funster of radio because his splendid "Salad Bowl Revue" on the NBC red network gives way here to Rosey Rowswell's weekly show.

Fred seems anxious to solve a problem for the customers. It concerns "how to catch a hill billy."

"The way to do it," says Mr. Allen, "is to skulk out in the hills of Arkansas or Wilkinsburg at midnight. Set up a microphone. When the hill billy comes out of the hills in the morning, he will see the microphone and will immediately creep up to it and begin singing "The Last Roundup." You must then quickly place a bag over his head—or you'll be listening to another hill billy on your radio."

"And," adds the gay Mr. Allen, "have you heard of the newest havoc the hurricane has caused among radio listeners over here on the seaboard? It seems that programs were blown together in the tornado. A Virginia listener reports hearing Amos 'n' Lum at 7 o'clock, and Andy and Abner at 7:30."

Proper Credit

One notes with interest that CBS'S 'big show' with Isham Jones and Lulu McConnell, which opened Monday, is the first in history to credit a script to its author—Dave Freedman. I mean "radio author," of course, for I remember the Booth Tarkington series of yesteryear, really started the courtesy.

George Jessel has just signed as a sustaining artist with CBS. He starts a weekly sustaining series with the Freddy Rich orchestra on October 7, at 10:30. Those who have heard his auditions predict that he will give Cantor a headache.

Discord

Paul Whiteman doesn't seem to have the unanimous support of band leaders in his theory that repeal will bring softer sweeter dance music, story-songs, and the end of jazz.

Al Goodman, for instance, says that no era will ever put an end to songs that are vivacious and lilting, and Abe Lyman, one of the hotter maestros, regrets that jazz, as we know it, has to be lampooned. Jazz is the rhythm of the age and the people want it, he insists.

Says Abe further:

"Jazz, they say, is flashy sensationalism; it is like vulgar loudness, it is like a skeleton in the musical closet. Excuse me, but like hell it is. It is out of its swaddling clothes and has both diginity and imagination. As long as we have individuality, we'll have hot music."

Globe-Trotting

—By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN—

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Almost every day this week a letter has come in asking information about caring for or adopting children. Today H. J. L., intersted in adopting a child, wants the names of reliable Protestant orphanages.

Practically all are reliable. The asylum condition where children are mistreated or unproperly cared for is a bugaboo of the past. Three places that I know about where the children are in good condition are the Pittsburgh Home for Babies at Ingram, the Salvation Army Home in Bellevue, and the Zoar Home in Allison Park. There are others, of course.

Mark September 27 for future reference as a lucky day to get married. Living testimonials are Mr. and Mrs. William Reith, South Side; the Franklin Wentzels, Swissvale; the J. W. Campbells, West Newton, and Mr. and Mrs. Phineas Rudolph, of Penfield. All celebrated golden anniversaries that day.

M. McMillan, who started working in the mines at the age of 9 years and since then has seen many labor disturbances, writes a very interesting letter to me. In it he tells of his meeting many years ago Ramsay MacDonald, England's great labor leader, now Prime Minister, and working with the late Pat Dolan, president of the coal miners in this section. Of Pat Dolan he writes, "I never dug coal with a finer man."

The globe trotters are complaining again about a certain downtown beauty shop that issues certificates for free permanent waves and then charges the customer $1.75. When the customer explains they point to some very fine print on the margin of the certificate. Mrs. Margaret Walters sent in today's complaint. Will other globe trotters please take heed? I'm passing the letter on to the Better Business Bureau.

Ancient Roman Catacombs Provide Eerie Setting For Radio Drama

The weird and eerie catacombs of ancient Rome, where more than 6,000,000 early Christians lie buried along the 500 miles of underground passageways, is the setting for this week's most remarkable radio drama, "The Ghost of the Catacombs."

The drama is based on an actual spiritual seance that occurred there recently, disclosing startling incidents of Christian martyrdom.

Whether the spiritualistic findings are facts or fancies, the radio play does not attempt to determine; nevertheless the excellent cast of characters set forth with gripping realism the story of suffering, religious zeal and sacrifice which so nobly marked the early Christian leaders.

Based on an article in next Sunday's American Weekly magazine, distributed with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, "The Ghost of the Catacombs" is heard today and tomorrow over the following stations:

Our Anniversary Sale is a tradition with us . . . and while we had certain ideas and plans, we wanted them confirmed by the only court that could hand down an impartial and definite decision . . . the Women Who Do The Buying . . . So We Went Out And Got The Facts . . . We interviewed a thousand Pittsburgh women . . . a complete cross-section of our buying community . . . We asked them for suggestions . . . MARCONI IN U.S. GIVES VIEW ON TELEVISION

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—(AP.)—Senator Guglielmo Marconi, of Italy, wizard of the wireless, came to American shores today with the declaration that although television is emerging from the research stage it is not yet quite ready.

At the same time he expressed confidence that the business slump would lift.

Accompanied by the charming Mrs. Marconi, the Senator is in this country for a stay of three weeks or more, during which he will attend the Chicago World Fair, and as he put it, "learn something about radio in the United States."

MICRO-WAVE TESTS

Explaining that one of his objectives in the recent micro-wave tests, during which he has demonstrated that these waves are not necessarily limited to the range of vision, was to find a means of pure transmission, he made some rather definite comments in respect to television.

He did not expect, he said, that television would become as important as the transmission of speech, but he believed that it would find one of its greatest uses in the sending of facsimile, such as whole pages of newspapers, etc.

He would not hazard a guess as to the time for the arrival of television, beyond the statement that it "is just emerging from the research stage."

WIRELESS PHONE

Admitting that he was conducting some chemical experiments, which he declined to disclose, he said that there was no doubt that the wireless phone would become a much greater adjunct in communication than at present. He did not think that it would ever replace the wire telephone, rather it would be an asset.

Even today, he pointed out, the wireless phone makes possible such means of transmission as across oceans, from ship to shore and to inaccessible places on the globe. In this connection he mentioned the air phone that links Australia to the rest of the world.

Commenting on present world conditions, he said that there was great interest in Italy in President Roosevelt's recovery campaign, and that he himself had every confidence in the United States. He added:

"I am sure the [illegible] will lift."

The Senator and Mrs. Marconi were met down the bay by his old friend, David Sarnoff, president of RCA and by Antonio Grossardi, Italian consul general of New York. They will leave for Chicago Saturday so that he can participate in Marconi Day at the World's Fair on Monday.

JOB PROPOSAL UP TO COUNCIL

City Council next week will act on an ordinance authorizing hiring of temporary employes in the Department of Public Works to prepare plans for projects the city hopes the federal government will finance under the emergency act.

The temporary workers would not be employed beyond December 31.

Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang informed Council temporary employes are already drawing up plans for work to be done with federal funds and the present ordinance merely authorizes the continuance of employment.

HIT-PAY-RUN PAIR GUILTY

Two men who, it was testified, paid a boy a dime to forget injuries suffered in an automobile accident and then drove away, today were found guilty of failing to stop and render assistance. The boy was a Juvenile Court ward.

The defendants, Harry Harris, 40, of 1844 Webster avenue, and Israel Goodman, 42, of 3515 Beechwood boulevard, were recommended to the mercy of the court, and asked for five days in which to apply for a new trial.

DORMONT WIFE SUES ENGINEER FOR ALIMONY

Agnes H. Over, of 3126 Pioneer avenue, Dormont, in a petition filed in Common Pleas Court asking $150 a month alimony from John W. Over, an engineer employed by the Koppers Company, declares she is without funds and subsisting on the barest necessities of life.

Mrs. Over said she was married October 6, 1925, and has four children, Henry Thomas, Mary Louise, William R. and Agnes Catherine Over. Asserting her husband is earning $500 a month, she asks $500 for counsel fees in addition to alimony.

She charges cruel and barbarous treatment. Over has filed a cross suit.

WIFE TRADED FOR TRUCK

International News Service.

LOWEVILLE, N. Y., Sept. 28.—Walter Rusaw, a farmer, is in jail here today because he traded his wife to his brother for an automobile truck.

The wife and her two children went to Roy Rusaw, of Mexico, a village in Oswego County. The fact that Roy already had a wife and three children did not seem to interfere with the trade. They all put up together.

Porto Rican Students Protest Educator

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Sept. 28.—(AP.)—Two hundred students of the University of Porto Rico late yesterday drove to La Fortaleza in black-flagged motorcars to lodge a protest with Gov. Robert H. Gore on his appointment of Rafael Alonzo Torres, Socialist leader, to the university board of trustees.

The students did not object to Torres' politics, but contended he was undistinguished in literature, the arts and science.

PFARR SCORNS $100 MONTH PAY OFFER

In debt $3,000 for operating expenses for his office and with little hope of having the County Commissioners pay the bills, Fire Marshal Thomas L. Pfarr today was waiting for the commissioners to make the next move.

The commissioners have offered Pfarr $100 a month salary, expenses and desk room in the department of Claims and Investigation. Pfarr does not believe the salary is fair or that he should get only desk room when there are many spacious rooms empty in the new county building.

Pfarr blames his difficulties on Commissioner C. M. Barr.

The marshal asserts he is opposed by Barr because he refused to approve Barr's plan to build a wooden dining hall in the jail courtyard.

Pfarr maintains Barr intended to place a relative in charge of the new jail building and threatened him when he disapproved the wooden structure.

BACKYARD GOLD RUSH ENDS

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—"I'm just as well satisfied. Maybe we'll get the oil tank in now."

With a philosophical shrug, Mrs. Nathan Garelik today calmly accepted the petering out of the great Bronx gold rush.

The stampede to the Bronx gold fields, to the very back yard of the Gareliks, in fact, got under way when workmen digging a pit for a supply tank for the Garelik oil furnace encountered shining flakes of metal in the soil.

The foreman of the gang yelled:

"We got gold, lady!"

Then the rush was on. Amateur prospectors gathered rapidly and it looked like a long, cold winter for the Gareliks.

Said the whole Bronx, half enviously:

"Such a good luck!"

But came then B. G. Shields, chief assayer of the United States assay office.

He examined the yellow flakes. He said calmly:

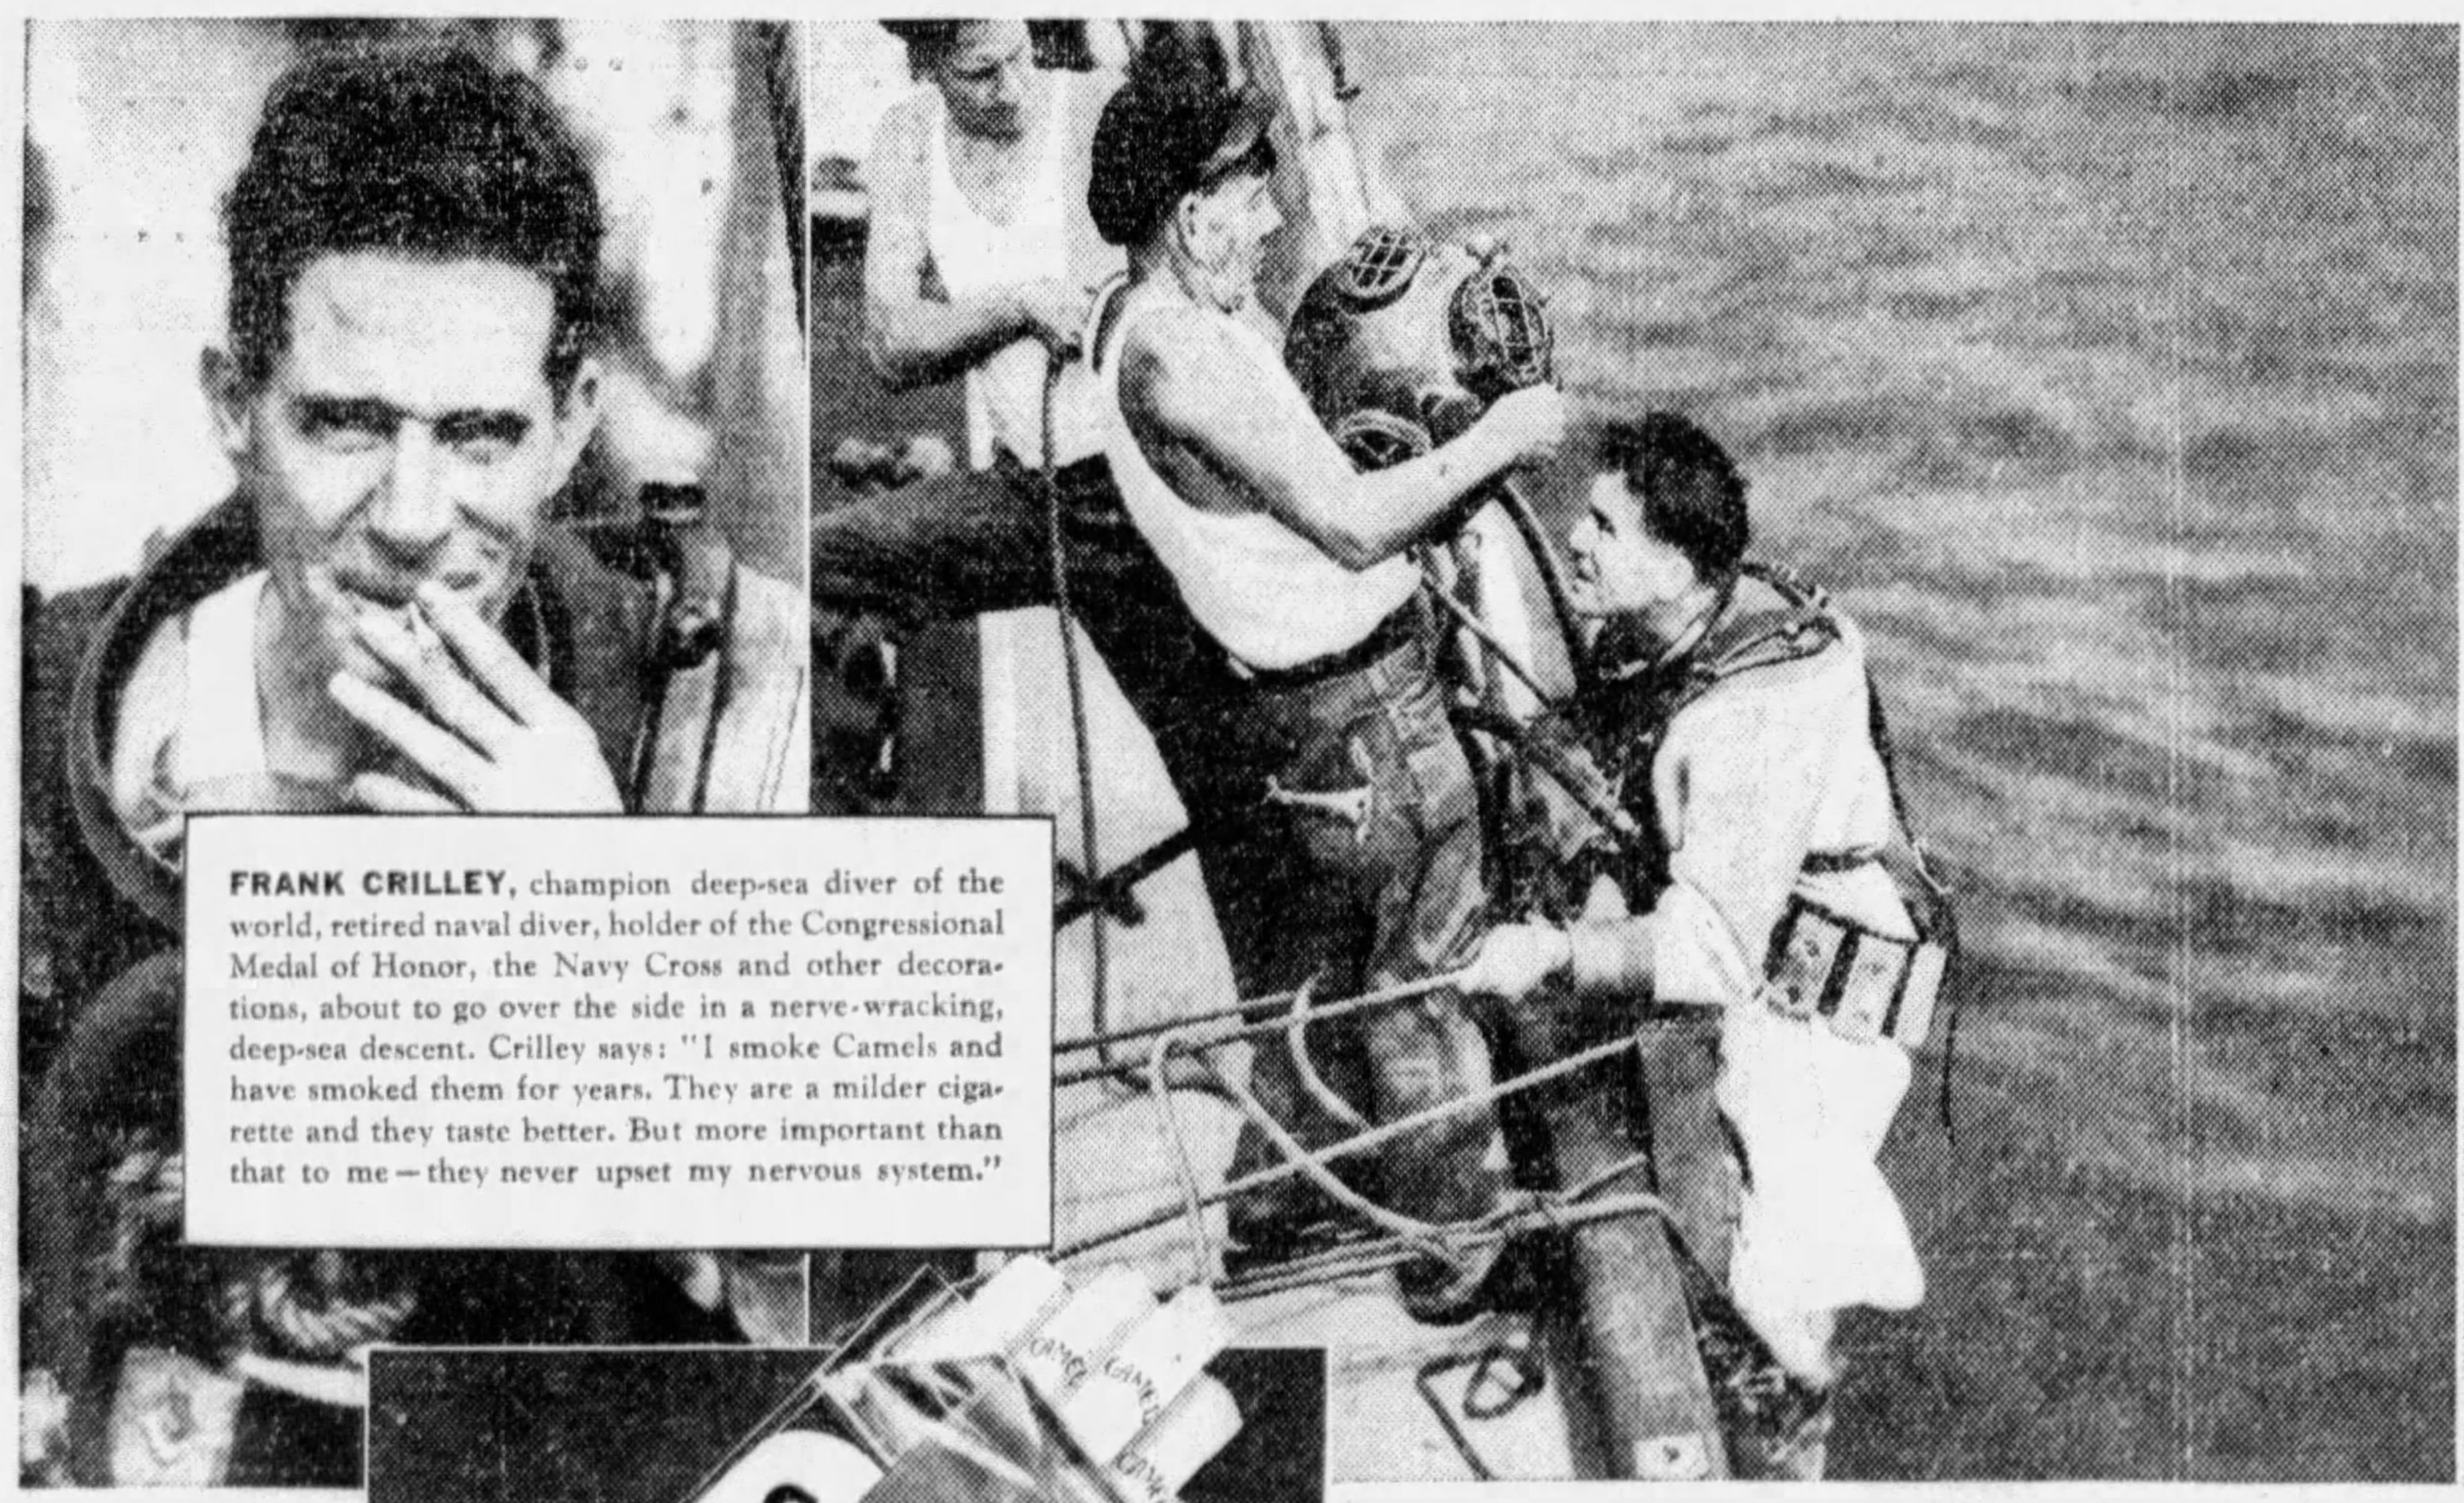
IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES TO DIVE TO THE BOTTOM OF THE SEA



FRANK CRILLEY, champion deep-sea diver of the world, retired naval diver, holder of the Congressional Medal of Honor, the Navy Cross and other decorations, about to go over the side in a nerve-wracking, deep-sea descent. Crilley says: "I smoke Camels and have smoked them for years. They are a milder cigarette and they taste better. But more important than that to me—they never upset my nervous system."

DIVING FOR FUN calls for healthy nerves, too! You can smoke all you want and never have jangled nerves, if you switch to Camels. The costlier tobaccos in Camels are milder, and they taste better, too!

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

FRANK CRILLEY says: "Deep down under 300 feet of water, working feverishly under terrific pressure—no place for a nervous man! That's why a diver's nerves must always be in perfect condition. And that's why I smoke Camels and have smoked them for years. They are a milder cigarette and they taste better. But more important than that to me—they never upset my nervous system." His heroic feats prove his statement.

Camel's costlier tobaccos are milder, do taste better. They never get on the nerves. Men and women whose very lives depend on healthy nerves have discovered this. Your nerves will confirm it. Start smoking Camels today and learn the difference.

IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW

Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

NAZI MINISTER DENIES LAND GRAB PLOT

GENEVA, Switzerland, Sept. 28.—(AP.)—Nothing is further from Germany's thoughts than to seek territorial expansion by force, Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels declared today at an interview.

Dr. Goebbels also asserted it was ridiculous to accuse the Nazis of exercising "cheap revenge" in their campaign against the Jews.

Touching on the outstanding problems of the new Germany's relations with the world, Dr. Goebbels pictured his homeland as a peace-loving nation, bent on reconstruction and serving as a barrier protecting the world against the expansion of Bolshevism.

He said he felt that mention must be made of the reproach that the new Germany is pursuing a policy of intellectual expansion merely as preparation for an ultimate policy of expansion by force.

Returning to the Jewish question he said any other nation would have done the same as German in dealing with the Jewish problem. To his mind the Hitlerite action toward the Jews had been humane.

Dr. Goebbels frankly admitted that during the revolution Jewish incidents, caused by uncontrollable elements, did occur. But he insisted that the revolution, in contrast with similar historical events, had been an act of discipline and order. He said:

"The Jews were the absolute and unlimited masters of the press, literature, the theater and the cinema. They made public opinion, exercised a decisive influence on the stock exchange, and were the rulers of Parliament and its parties."

He protested against what he termed the atrocity legends spread abroad by Jewish emigrants, including the allegation that members of the government themselves set fire to the Reichstag last February.

7 HELD IN 25 BURGLARIES

Two boys, a woman and four young men were being held by the police today to explain 25 or more burglaries in Squirrel Hill and Oakmont. One of the boys is the son of a Pittsburgh policeman.

Rings and watches were prominent in the total loot. The value was not expected to exceed $1,000.

Three of the prisoners were taken in a camp at Oakmont. They have not been implicated with the actual burglaries, but the police said they received some of the stolen goods. They are listed as Thomas Duncan, 22; Edward Duncan, 26; and Ben Moore, of Verona. The other three were arrested in Pittsburgh.

WISCONSIN MOB IN HITLER CLASH

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 28.—(AP.)—Dr. Hans Luther, German ambassador to the United States, was an interested spectator yesterday as a crowd shouting defiance to Hitler fought police at the door of the exclusive Milwaukee Club.

Police took no action until the crowd blocked traffic, and then they made a determined charge with swinging clubs. One man, who gave his name as John Piasecki, 42, Milwaukee, was taken to Emergency Hospital after he collapsed in a police patrol car. He is suffering from concussion of the brain.

Twenty-three others were arrested, including three women and Fred Bassett Blair, once Communist candidate for Governor of Wisconsin.

Dr. Luther, who came here to be a luncheon guest at the club, stepped from his automobile a block from the door. An inconspicuous figure in a gray business suit, he made his way unobserved through the crowd. He glanced over banners on which were written:

"Bloody Luther, agent of Hitler," "Nieder Mit Hitler" and other legends.

REICH FIRE LAID TO 'RED' PLOT

LEIPZIG, Germany, Sept. 28.—(AP.) — An alleged Communist conspiracy behind the burning of the Reichstag Building and other incendiarism today engaged the attention of judges trying five men on charges of setting fire to the German Parliament Building.

Eugene Pfeiffer, a maker of window blinds, testified he gave one of the defendants, Marinus Van Der Lubbe, a coat and cap in a Communist restaurant prior to the Reichstag blaze last February.

The witness asserted he had heard Van Der Lubbe claim to be a Communist and say something extremely radical ought to be done against the Nazis. Pfeiffer, however, added:

"At first I had the impression that Van Der Lubbe was actually a Communist, but his unkempt appearance made me wonder."

When the judge asked what an outward appearance had to do with Communism, the witness replied:

U. S., JAPAN OUT IN ARMS TALKS

GENEVA, Sept. 28.—(AP.)—A patched-up disarmament agreement designed primarily for Europe and based on mutual political arrangements, with the United States and Japan both out of the picture, seemed today to be the tendency of disarmament negotiations here.

Indications were seen that the American delegation was not fully informed about political details of the forthcoming arms conference, which probably will include a greater consideration of the German viewpoint of equality than is generally realized.

It was learned authoritatively that Japan's position is to allow European powers to reach an agreement if possible and then allow Japan to pass on the results.

NEW WAY TO SHAVE!

Thousands of local men now using it...quicker...painless...no irritation

If you have a light, easy-to-shave beard, this won't interest you.

But if you're inclined to get razor-rash, smarting or skin irritation on your neck after shaving—if your beard is extra heavy—or if you have such a thin, sensitive skin that shaving is actual punishment for you, then this will be real good news to you. You'll find this new kind of shave made to order for you.

Barbers discovered its use

Barbers in the South started this new shaving method—first on men with neck-rash, later on all their customers because it made shaving so very much easier.

Today this new way to shave is used by the finest barber shops in the country — the U. S. Senate Barber Shop, the famous Terminal Barber Shops, at the Ritz Carlton, at the Waldorf Astoria. And many thousands of men have adopted it for shaving at home.

A famous skin protector

Here's the story. Barbers found that if they applied Noxzema Skin Cream, with its soothing medication, before lathering that it not only protected a raw, irritated skin—but that it actually made it far easier for the razor to glide through the thickest, wiriest beard.

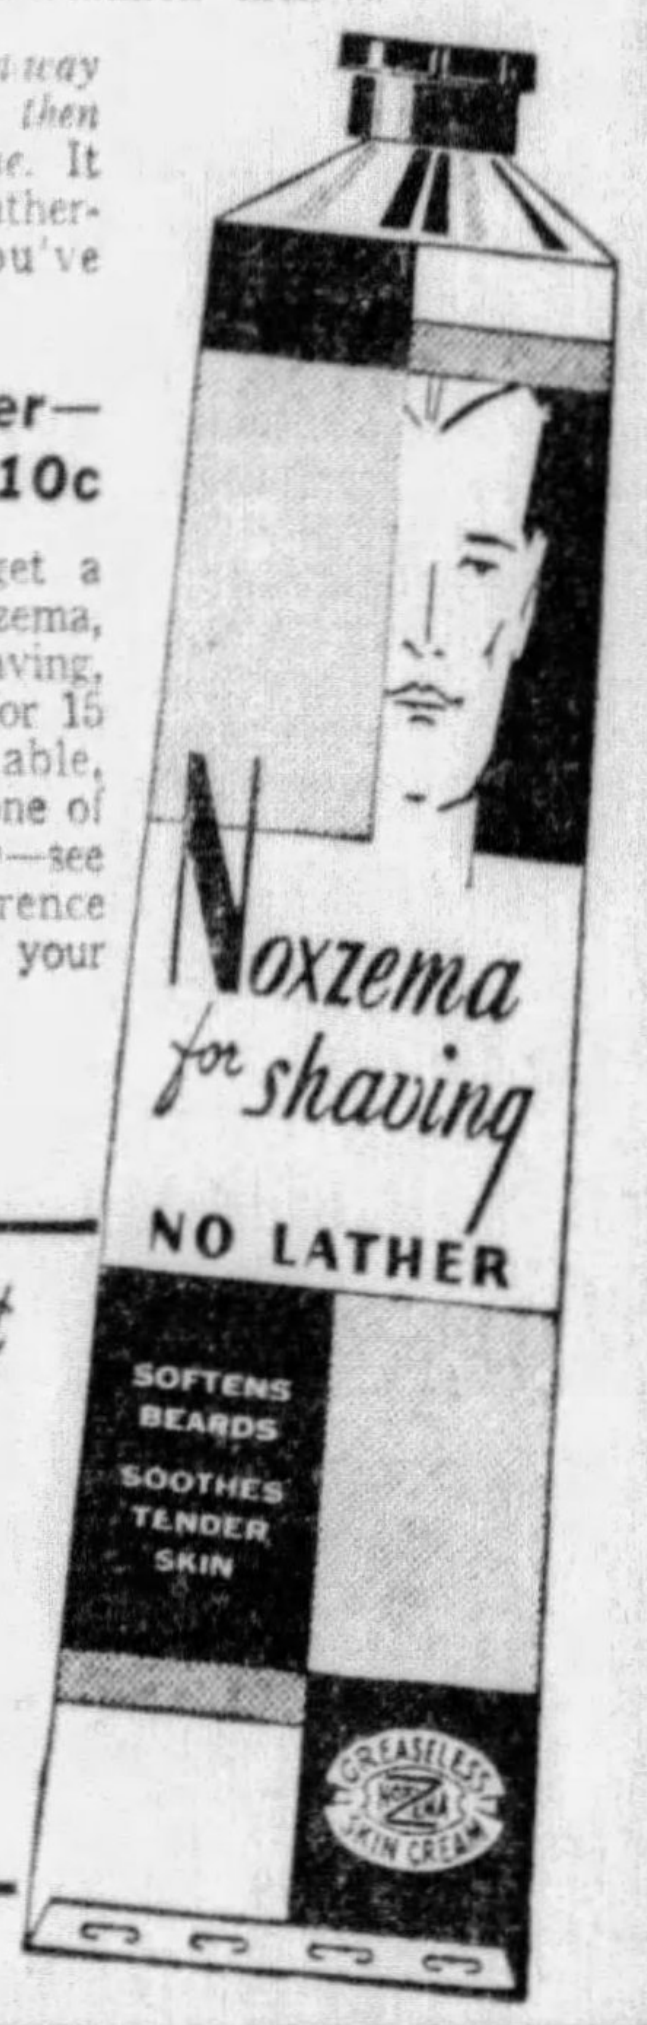
And so, throughout the South, "The Noxzema Shave" has been featured and is rapidly becoming famous among men who have trouble shaving.

Try this "Noxzema Shave" for a week—then stop. See what a tremendous difference it makes. When you use Noxzema, you avoid the tiny razor cuts—Noxzema forms a protective film which enables the blade to glide over the skin without cutting dry skin. There's no razor pull—Noxzema melts the beard. No after shaving burning—Noxzema is soothing, cooling. You get a quick, easy, close shave and "feel like a million" after it.

If you shave the modern way with no brush or lather then shave with Noxzema alone. It works better than any latherless shaving cream you've ever used.

Special trial offer—large tube only 10c

This week you can get a generous supply of Noxzema, packed in tubes for shaving, for only 10c—enough for 15 or more cool, comfortable, painless shaves. Get one of these trial tubes today—see what a world of difference Noxzema will make in your shaving.



BIG TRIAL TUBE ONLY 10¢

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Break

At last I know the spell of you is spent,
  But I shall sigh no lingering adieu;
Nor patronize you with a trite lament,
  Implying helpless sorrow that we're through.

I shall move on without a backward glance
  For you or much belonging to the day
When we were armed and drunk with our romance;
  Without a word to you—I'm on my way . . .

And though the wound of it may last a while,
  To rob your life of symmetry and song;
And trap you into tears, and dim your smile,
  I don't pretend I'm sorry for the wrong.

Instead, I class it with my lighter crimes . . .

—Will Herbert.

No Class

The newspapers have related how generous was the late Sime Silverman and that he was "an easy touch." All of which is true. One of the old time actors, whose luck ran out on him, was a daily visitor to the renowned editor's offices on 46th Street—and Sime always slipped him a stake.

One Winter day the fellow made his usual call and Sime gave him one of his newly purchased overcoats, plus some money.

He returned an hour later looking a little glum.

"Now what's the matter?" asked Sime.

"I was wondering," replied the has-been between hiccups, "if you couldn't get me one with a belt in the back."

Kidding the Kidders

Take it from one of our neighbors, which is how we got it—there is a conductor on an early Long Island train who has a sense of humor. As the rattler pulls into the Pennsy Station he calls out:

"New York, New York—that Wicked City!"

As If You Didn't Know

And a postcard reveals that the most fitting epitaph for any Broadway columnist is:

"Loved By Many — But Hated By More."

Naturally

Sid Silvers, who may be seen in "My Weakness," if you don't bend down to tie your shoelace, that is—says he actually heard it. It was at the funeral in Hollywood af a star's sixth husband.

One femme whispered to another:

"Do you think she'll marry again?"

"Not until after the funeral," was the reply.

Hehehch

George Jean Nathan describes a mind-reader as a person who imagines that the members of a vaudeville audience have minds to read.

Balm

One of the locals was disheartened over severe notices which greeted his performance in a new show. A pal tried to comfort him with this mind over matter stuff.

"At least your critics do not consider you unimportant," he was told, "you never are unimportant when you prompt people to throw a ton of bricks at you."

Merciless Truth

"The game first breaks you in and then breaks you down."

Of All Things

No week, it seems, passes without some heckler pointing out that some of the expressions used here—were pilfered from ancient times. For years now we have employed "go gay" when a new pair of lovers appear on the Broadway scene. "Soandso and soandso are going gay" is the phrase.

Comes this bullet from a lad who asserts it may be found in the Bible (Old Testament). The citation is Baruch VI: 9, the Epistle of Jeremy, and the verse is:

Things to worry about.

System

Arthur Caesar, who has exiled himself from Broadway for five years, was being discussed again the other night.

"Whatever became of him?" someone queried. "I never hear of him any more. I miss his insults."

"I saw him in Hollywood recently," said a returned local, "he is saving his money so that he can come back and afford to make more enemies."

Fact

Not so long ago in the Tombs hoosegow, two Broadway outlaws were awaiting trial. On the night before they were both to come up for sentence they played cards. After losing six games (at $1 the game) one of them tossed away his cards and groaned:

"Boy, are you lucky!"

The one who complained was freed. The other drew "not more than 10 and not less than five" at Sing Sing.

Quiteso, Quiteso

By Way of Report

The foreign debt arguments which fill the papers every day—recall the effective method of bill-collecting used in the early days of New York.

The collecting agency would send a bright yellow coach, with horses in yellow harness (the driver wore a suit to match) around to the delinquent's house. Out would step the driver in yellow, ringing a bright lemon-colored bell, as he called upon the unfortunate debtor.

Thus—everyone in the neighborhood knew what was happening, and the poor guy usually paid his obligation, if he could, right on the line to save himself more humiliation.

Peace Party For Stars Promoted

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 28.—No doubt about it, this is Hollywood's gayest and most spectacular social season in years.

Just as the stars are trying to decide what costumes to wear to the "old Bowery" party to be given by the Darryl Zanucks and the William Goetzes on October 7, there comes the news that Edgar Allen Woolf is plotting a sensational soiree for the week after or thereabouts.

The Woolf party is the most daringly conceived of all. He'll invite all the Hollywood feudists to attend and to make up their spats or settle them violently if they must. In a spirit of fun, Edgar will try to engage the Olympic auditorium, local boxing arena, as a scene for the festivities.

Some of the people he may invite are Constance Bennett, Gloria Ewanson, Lilyan Tashman, Hedda Hopper, Charles Chaplin and James Tully.

Miss Swanson

The invitations to the Zanuck-Goetz party include suggestions of characters for the guests to impersonate. You can take your pick of Carrie Nation, Bob Fitzgibbons, Tony Pastor, Bertha the Beautiful Sewing Machine Girl, the Gas House Gang, Steve Brodie, Joe or Nick Schenck, Eddie Cantor and a dozen others.

* * *

Pat O'Brien is another who is full of Wilson Mizner lore. He tells of the time when the much-loved wit was interceding for a youth who was accused of robbing telephone pay stations.

Wilson boomed to the district attorney:

And then the official did what few men ever were able to do—top Mizner.

"How was it," he snapped, "all in nickels?"

Airmen Jump On Screen

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Forty-six Soviet airmen, successfully making the greatest mass parachute jump ever attempted, are pictured in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. The event demonstrates the tremendous strides the Soviet has made in aviation. The 46 jump from the big airplane in quick succession and float down gracefully as the parachutes open. The Globe Trotter describes the demonstration.

Intimate pictures are presented of the New York Giants and the Washington Senators, National and American baseball champions. There are talks by Bill Terry and Joe Cronin, the managers.

Major Roscoe Turner, famous air pilot, is seen arriving at Floyd Bennett Field, New York, after having flown from Los Angeles in 10 hours 5 minutes, breaking the cross-country record.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

The Holdup

A BELL sounded harshly through the big hospital ward. Visiting hours were over for the day. The ward began to empty swiftly, until only one figure remained at the side of one of the cots. The boy stood looking down at the girl in bed. Her face was white and pinched, her forehead creased.

"I told you not to worry now, Dotty," he said gruffly. "You ain't going to get better if you're thinking about other things all the time. I'll get the money all right."

"I know." The girl spoke timidly. "The doctor said today I could go home next week. But where can you get the money, Jim, for the hospital bill?"

"I'll get it," Jim repeated. "I told you a guy promised me a job for the rest of this week. Good money, too. Enough to pay the bill and have something left over for when you come home. Please don't worry, Dotty."

Dotty closed her eyes and sighed.

He kissed her hastily and with embarrassment, for the woman in the cot across the aisle was watching them. Then he hurried through the long ward, twisting his cap between his hands.

He had walked 10 blocks before he discovered that he was bareheaded . . .

He was walking west, and he was completely unmindful of the traffic that whizzed by him at each block.

Jim plunged his hands into his pockets and walked faster. He had to do something, he knew. He had appealed to the relief agencies and they were investigating his case, but it might be weeks before he got any help there.

By the time he had reached his rooming-house he was in a desperate frame of mind. He was cold and hungry, for his last twenty-five cents had gone for a bouquet of half-faded flowers for Dotty. Again that drumming in his brain, and now he repeated the words aloud:

"I've gotta do something! I've gotta do something!"

The badly-furnished room was cold and dreary. In spite of its cluttered state, it seemed empty without Dotty. Jim began to pick up odd scraps of clothing from the chairs in a half-hearted effort to clean up.

As he opened one of the bureau drawers a bright object caught his attention. He picked it up and looked at it. It was an army revolver. His father's. One of the few things that the old man had left him.

He stood staring at it, fascinated. He'd almost forgotten about the thing until just now. And he'd never had anything to do with firearms. This, he thought swiftly, might be the answer to his problem. He dismissed the thought from his mind, but it kept recurring, and the desperation that had been pounding at his brain all night urged him on.

It sounded easy enough when you read about it in the papers. Robbers were getting away with large sums of money almost every night. Jim shuddered. His nerve began to give out. Then he thought of Dotty, white-faced and worried, depending on him to help her. He slipped the revolver into his pocket.

Jim had no definite idea of just how to start when he closed the door of the furnished room. Out on the street, he began to walk east again. His fingers closed over the butt of the gun as his thoughts of Dotty and the money he had to have began to pound once more in his brain.

When he had almost reached the river he looked around him. It was dark now, and the neighborhood was unfamiliar. So much the better. A few pedestrians passed him, walking quickly, but they looked as poor as he. Jim's steps began to lag, and he was half-tempted to turn back.

He saw a small shop ahead. It was not much of a store as stores go, but there was a dim light burning behind drawn curtains. Jim stopped dead in his tracks. This, he knew, was his opportunity. The shop-keeper was closing up. He might, even now, be counting his day's receipts. There probably wouldn't be very much money there, but it would be enough.

Jim's breath came quickly. He looked hastily up and down the street, and stepped into the doorway. The door, of course, was locked. There was no answer to his rap against the glass. The proprietor doubtlessly thought he was a late customer and didn't want to be bothered. Jim threw his weight against the door. Once. Twice. there was the sound of something cracking, and the rotten old wood that held the lock in place splintered. He drew his gun from his pocket and pushed into the shop.

A man was crouching behind the counter directly in front of him. The drawer of the cash register was open, but there was no money in sight.

"Come across with that dough," he quavered in a hoarse voice.

The man moved, but it was not to reach for the money. A gun gleamed in his hand for an instant. Jim ducked instinctively, and the bullet whizzed past him. His finger tightened on the trigger of his own revolver. There was a shot. And the face behind the counter disappeared.

Jim could hear the man groaning in agony, but when he reached his side, there was no sound. The man was dead. Jim stood frozen, his mind, at first, refusing to work. Then the horrible realization burst on him. He had murdered a man. Not intentionally. But that would do him little good. He knew little about the law, but he did know that a robber who kills a victim during a holdup is guilty of murder in the first degree.

He fled, forgetting the money he had come to get, and everything else in his desire to get away. He fled through the back door of the shop, hurdled a fence and reached the next block. He began to run, and his breath came in labored sobs.

When he found himself at the river's edge, he stopped running.

Then he began to think of Dotty again, and of the horror of the thing that he'd brought on her. He thought of the electric chair, and something snapped in his brain. Before him was the river. And he knew that it was days, sometimes weeks, before they found a man's body. Dotty would be taken care of, he knew, if he wasn't there. She'd be better off without him. If he were dead she'd be spared the shame of having a murderer for a husband.

He sighed, "Dotty!"

And that was the last word that he spoke.

Startled neighbors had summoned the police to the scene of the crime. They found the body of the man, the money strewn all over the floor, and the gun that belonged to Jim's father. They heard a pounding from somewhere in the cellar and went down to release the man who was locked there. He was, he explained, the proprietor of the shop.

The inspector scratched his head.

"This makes it a little queer," he murmured. "I can understand a guy taking a shot at a thief who was robbing a store, but I can't understand why he'd beat it afterward." . . . .

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The Pitt Theater, which was erected by the late Thomas Kenyon to be a vaudeville house at a time when that was the most popular form of entertainment, will get back to the purposes for which it was built tomorrow. The new management will present eight variety acts and a feature picture in each bill, to be presented continuously from noon until 11 p. m. Prominent in the first program will be the Skelly Sisters, whose brother is Hal. The photoplay will be "Dance Girls, Dance," in which will be Alan Dinehart and Evalyn Knapp.

* * *

"Dinner at Eight," which will open in the Nixon Monday night with an all-star cast, is a screen version of the play of the same title by George S. Kaufman and Edna Ferber that Burns Mantle included in his selections of the 10 best plays last season. It was a hit of New York that never got here.

* * *

"Sliding" Billy Watson, one of the group of outstanding comedians of burlesque, who used to visit Pittsburgh annually, and who hasn't been here for nine years, will head next week's bill in the Variety, "Hollywood Dollies." He was a contemporary of Tommy "Bozo" Snyder, pantomine comic; Al Reeves, Dave "Snuffy-the Cabman" Marion, Lew "Dope" Kelly and others. Victor Graff, well known locally as a master of ceremonies, also will be in the company.

STAGE DINNER IS REAL THING

Meal for Six Hot From Kitchen

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Mr. Seibel

Since Marie Wainwright played "As You Like It," and they brought on a huge haunch of smoking venison (if venison smokes) to feed the hungry foresters, and since the unforgettable spaghetti in David Warfield's "Music Master," no stage meal has made the critic's mouth water like that dinner served every night in Eugene O'Neill's new comedy, "Ah, Wilderness," in the Nixon Theater. There are six people at table, and they eat so naturally, they seem so much at home, they apparently enjoy the dinner so thoroughly, that I asked Gene Lockhart, who plays Sid Davis, to tell me how the thing was managed. Philip Moeller is a great stage director, but it takes more than inspired stage direction to create such an illusion of appetite and table eitquette.

Both Gene Lockhart and Marjorie Marquis have done considerable stage directing themselves. That also holds good of George M. Cohan, who presides at the head of the table as a model host. Perhaps the other actors in this scene, excepting little Walter Vonnegut, have all been stage directors in their own right, which would explain a good deal. When a great stage director has to direct a group of stage directors, stage direction should hardly be needed. There is perfect co-operation and perfect illusion.

But Gene Lockhart admits there is something else which adds to the illusion. This may detract from the fame of Ruth Chorpenning, who plays Nora and serves this incomparable shore dinner. The truth must be told—Ruth, or Nora, did not cook it. It came from one of our Pittsburgh restaurants, and is the last word in stage realism. Those six actors get a really fine dinner every evening, and what they cannot eat the grips demolish afterward under the valiant lead of the property man, trained by Howard Thurston.

HERE'S THE MENU

The dinner is complete in every respect. There are full portions for everyone at the table. Even the bluefish is the real thing, as I am assured by Kramer's chef. Without infringing on Eugene O'Neill's copyright, here is the full menu as it is served smoking hot at every performance:

Clam Chowder
Hot Rolls, Parker House
Butter and Saltines
Bluefish
Mashed Potatoes
Lima Beans
French Peas
Stuffed Olives
Six Broiled Lobsters
Drawn Butter

When this news gets to Broadway there will be hundreds of applications to join the cast of "Ah, Wilderness." No doubt there will be dozens of companies formed to play the comedy all over the road.

DOES LOCKHART DRINK?

George M. Cohan assures me that Gene Lockhart, who plays his drunken scene so foamily, doesn't drink, and that he had to give him three lessons in the art. Perhaps it's due to Lockhart's considerable experience as a stage director and presiding genius of several summer playhouses, that he learned the art in so few lessons. The most accomplished barfly of pre-Volstead days could not surpass him as a horrible example of genial inebriety.

He is duly grateful to Cohan for whatever benefit he may have received from his bibulous instructions. Like other members of the company, he has a great reverence and affection for Nat Miller. No man is easier to work with on the stage than the genial owner of the "Evening Globe." The reporter on the "Waterbury Standard" takes off his hat to the editor-in-chief.

Of course this may be due to the fact that Nat Miller presides at table, and would serve short portions to anyone that did not show a decent respect toward the head of the house.

Dear Miss Robinson:

I have had it in my mind for a long time to write you about my problem. Here it is.

We go around with girls and boys whose ages range the same as ours—from 16 to 22. When we girls want to go on a picnic or a swimming party, my mother and their mothers don't object because we just go places right here in town, and they know that we always behave ourselves.

But when we ask if we can go on a beach party, or something like that, which means going out of town, my mother always asks "who is going to go along as chaperon?" We say "perhaps one of the girl's mothers may go." And so far, one or two of them always have.

Last May we went on a beach party that included girls and boys, about 17 in all including two chaperons, who were my mother and my chum's mother.

It seems as though my mother and hers are the only ones who object to having us go without someone like that with us. We can't quite understand why they do. We always behave.

THE SAME QUESTION

On this particular party my mother saw just how we acted. We had a good time, and still behaved ourselves, as we always do and always intend to.

Now we have decided to go on another party of the same kind, including boys and girls of the same group. And the question, "Who is going as chaperon?" has again been asked.

We haven't decided that yet, and so I am asking your help. Should we be required to have a chaperon? Is it the proper thing to take one, or not? And if it is the proper thing, why?

We don't feel that we need anyone to keep us straight. We don't intend to do anything we shouldn't. Why should her mother and mine feel the way they do, when the others don't?

ELSIE.

Why do your mothers feel that way?

Because they're wise, my dear. They want to be sure to keep you safe.

WISE MOTHERS

No, I'm not implying that you intend to misbehave; that you desire to betray their trust in you. I know you don't. But moonlight, plus young blood, make powerful dynamite—and they've betrayed many a "well-meaning" youngster into life-long shame and misery.

Mother knows that, because life has given her understanding, and she is trying to keep you safe from hurts.

And there is something more ruthless than even your own hot, young blood, against which mother wishes to protect you, and that's the world's wagging tongue.

You may believe you're very modern. But the human race en masse, isn't modern. It's still a suspicious savage, suspecting deviltry and danger in every impulsive act.

Why were chaperons invented? Why was a girl's reputation hedged about with a thousand protective taboos? That's why. And, whether you believe it or not, the "emancipated" girl of 1933 needs some of those protections, quite as much as her pantaletted sister of 1833.

So let Mother come along, youngster. And thank Heaven that you both have such wise and kindly friends.

Given in Marriage -:- A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge's Fear of Husband's Jealousy Is Revived

When Hugh, with amusement in his voice, asked me what was the matter with The Larches, that I could not telephone Avis Arlen from there, I had a primitive impulse to run the motor car into the nearest tree—anywhere that would deposit him in the road on his head.

The obtuseness of men! I raged to myself. If he did not know that the chief objection to my telephoning from The Larches was the certain reaction that Dicky would have to my going to Hugh's temporary home, for any reason whatsoever, then it was because he was deaf, blind and mentally befogged. But in my present mood, I would have cut off my right hand before I would have betrayed any hesitancy to take his advice.

I was "in for it," no matter what I did. I knew that. When Dicky should learn that I had gone to The Larches to telephone, not even the fact that I had done it to save his mother uneasiness, his niece actual unhappiness, would weigh with him against his jealous dislike of the friend who had done us both so many signal services.

I realized that Hugh was bending toward me, waiting for an answer to his query. Indeed, even as I pulled myself together, he repeated it.

HUGH IS GAY

"Is there anything the matter with The Larches?" he said again, still with amusement in his voice. "You didn't see any traces of quarantine over there, did you? I can assure you the board of health has given us a clear bill. There is neither smallpox nor leprosy in the house."

I laughed nervously.

"I am very glad to be assured of that," I said, with an attempt at casualness. "But it is not that which is troubling me. It is what my mother-in-law will say if she should get any idea that I was trying to keep any telephone conversation, especially one that concerns her granddaughter, a secret from her. And she has no idea that I went to Patchogue. I did not dare tell her that. She thinks I went to Southampton and to Hampton Bays."

"Well!" Hugh said as I paused for breath. "You did, didn't you?"

His voice again held a chuckle, and I realized that for some reason he was unusually gay and apparently light-hearted. Was it because—I checked myself. I had no right to speculate in that direction, even though it fed my vanity.

"Yes, but you see, having lived in this section for a long time, she has a very shrewd idea of the time it takes for a trip to those places, even if she discounts the time out for the ostensible shopping for hats which I did at Hampton Bays. She in all probability is looking for me now, and becoming exceedingly angry and uneasy because I have not come back. If she should see me passing the house and not coming in, I really don't know what would be the effect upon her. She is in a terribly nervous state as it is."

ACCEPTS SUGGESTION

"Then," Hugh said, with a quizzical note in his voice, "why go past the house at all?"

I was silent for a fraction of a second, wondering how I ought to respond to this suggestion. I never have thought him clairvoyant, but his next speech sounded as if he had read my thought.

"Do you remember the old proverb concerning the sheep and the lamb?" he asked.

A memory of the times I had quoted it to myself made me give a short little laugh.

"I see you do," Hugh said, "and I recommoned the saying strongly to your attention. But there is no use invoking trouble that can be avoided. Therefore may I suggest that we take the wood road back from Southampton to Sag Harbor, thus enabling us to come to The Larches from a direction that would obviate our passing the farm."

Again I heard the quizzical note in his voice. Again I pondered the feasibility of adopting his suggestion. Then I steeled my courage with the reminder that, unless I wished the certainty of a tantrum upon Mother Graham's part, I could do nothing save accede to the suggestion Hugh had offered.

"Very well," I said at last, "we will go down the wood road."

Correct Manners

By CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Engagement Announcement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am about to become engaged and my parents wish to have my engagement announcements printed.

1—Should these be printed or engraved?

2—What is the correct wording to be used?

3—Should the name of my parents only appear, or should my fiance's parents' name appear also? He has no father, only a mother. F.

In answer to all of these questions . . . it is not in good form to send formal engagement announcements. The engaged girl writes to her close friends the news that she is about to announce her engagement. Then, if her family wishes, the formal announcement is made in the newspapers. Also, if they wish, engagement announcement parties are given, but these are not, of course, necessary.

The Widow's Name

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A friend of mine is to be married this fall and the widowed mother has sent announcements of the wedding, with the wording as follows:

"Mrs. John James Smith requests the honor of your presence and so forth." I claim that she is correct . . . that she still has a right to her deceased husband's name, whereas my friend insists she should have used her name . . . Mrs. Mary Jane Smith.

Who is correct? B.

You are right . . . a widow uses the same form of name that she used when her husband was living. And this would be especially true of the form of her name for this most formal social item, the marriage invitation. For her to have used the name Mrs. Mary Jane Smith would have been in the worst of taste.

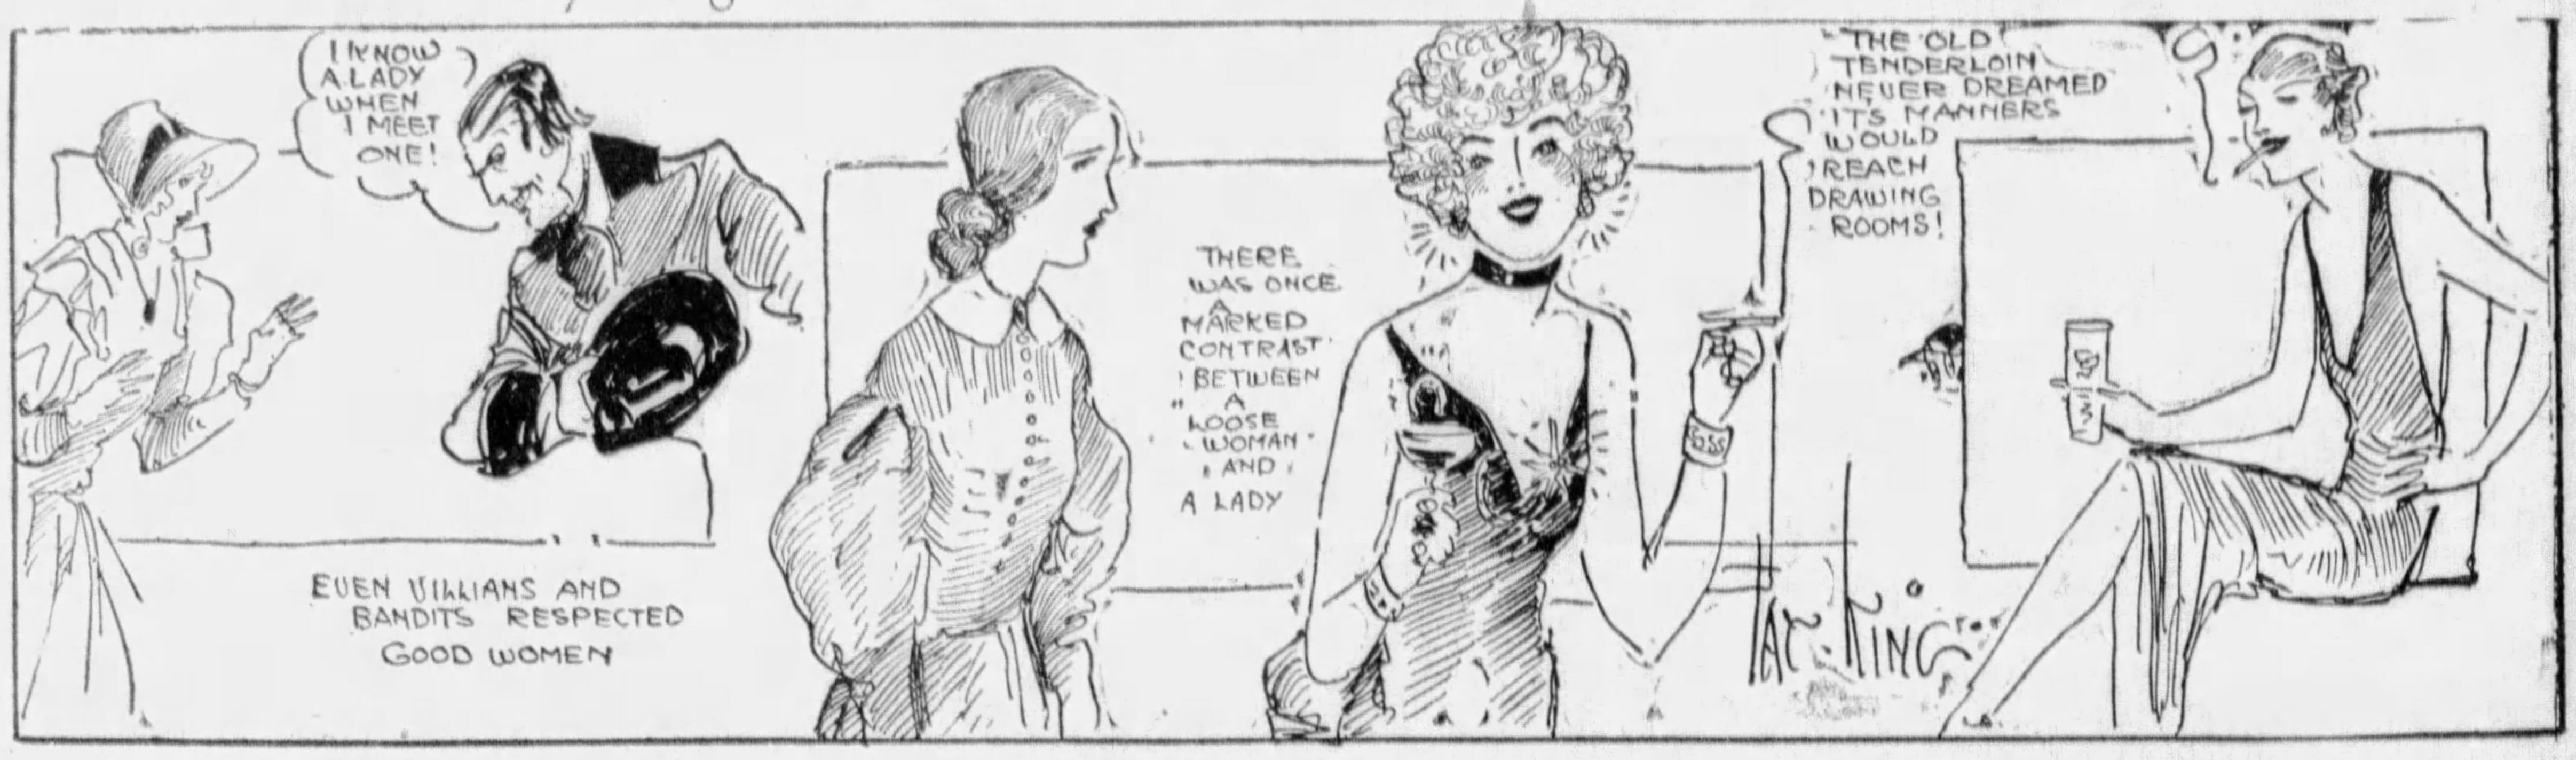
Fay King Finds Some Women Have Advanced Downward



I KNOW A LADY WHEN I MEET ONE!
EVEN VILLIANS AND BANDITS RESPECTED GOOD WOMEN
THERE WAS ONCE A MARKED CONTRAST BETWEEN A "LOOSE WOMAN" AND A LADY
THE OLD TENDERLOIN NEVER DREAMED ITS MANNERS WOULD REACH DRAWING ROOMS!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

Once I was talking to an attractive woman who had spent her honeymoon in a wide open frontier town long ago. I asked her if she had not been afraid in such a wild place, being young, beautiful and sometimes alone for days.

She explained there was nothing to fear, because in such towns in those days there was only two kinds of women, good and bad, and every man respected and protected a good woman.

The contrast in dress and manners was so marked, one was never mistaken for the other.

But alas, today, ghosts of old red-light districts and tenderloin districts would be amazed to find their districts moved up into higher circles.

Contract Bridge -:- -:- HOW TO PLAY anr HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Accepting the Half Loaf

When partners hold not only tremendous honor strength but fits in two suits, they are very foolish to accept a small but apparently certain penalty in preference to going on with their own best bid. This point is brought out in a story told by Mrs. Fred R. Hammond, of St. Louis, Mo., of a hand played recently in Duplicate in that city. East and West had available a Grand Slam, but at the table where Mrs. Hammond held the South hand they elected instead to double five spades, which was made with two overtricks due to an Opening heart lead. The hand, which produced this unusual result, was:

North, Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.

	♠ K 10 8 3 ♡ — ◇ Q J 10 9 8 6 5 2 ♣ 2
♠ Q 5 ♡ J 10 7 4 2 ◇ 7 4 ♣ Q 10 7 6	North West East South	♠ — ♡ A K Q 9 8 ◇ A K 3 ♣ A K 9 8 3
	♠ A J 9 7 6 4 2 ♡ 6 5 3 ◇ — ♣ J 5 4

The bidding was as follows:

North	East	South	West
Pass	2 ♡	Pass	2 NT
Pass	3 ♣	Pass	4 ♡
Pass	Pass	4 ♠ (1)	Pass
5 ◇ (2)	Double	Pass (3)	Pass
5 ♠ (4)	Double (5)	Pass	Pass
Pass

1—South's bid of four spades appears extremely daring and, as a matter of fact, may be severely penalized, but South figures that East and West have a sure game and that the only way to minimize losses is to accept a paying penalty instead.

2—While on the face of it a bad bid, actually it is very fine. It whets the appetite of East for penalties because he feels that spades are banked in the West hand and hence that the spade contract can also be severely penalized.

3—The trump suit is too ragged for South to bid further. The pass, of course, strongly suggests that North should return to spades if by any means he can stand play in that suit.

4—North now assists partner's bid, anticipating defeat but hoping that the void in hearts may prove valuable to South.

5—East's preconceived ideas as to the distribution of spades prove too strong and he here makes a very bad Penalty Double. A much better course would be to bid the Slam in clubs or hearts.

At another table, where North and South did not enter the bidding, the Grand Slam contract in hearts was reached in the following way:

North	East	South	West
Pass	2 ♡	Pass	2 NT
Pass	3 ♣	Pass	4 ♡
Pass	6 ♡	Pass	7 ♣
Pass	7 ♡	Pass	Pass
Pass

Household Hints

Eucalyptus oil will drive away flies. Place a little in a saucer on the window sill.

White satin shoes can be cleaned by rubbing them with bread crumbs mixed with a very little finely powdered blue. Work in the direction of the pile.

If cereal is not a popular dish with the children try brown sugar with it. Even an adult may appreciate this change. Sometimes a cup of cocoa is relished by a child as a treat and change from milk.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Whiteheads appear on the face, usually on the cheeks and under the eyes, when pores close and sebaceous oils bank up into bead-like masses. The deposit must be removed. Hold a fine needle in a flame to sterilize it, split the seed-like sac the whole length, hold it open with the fingers and pick out the bead with the needle point. It is next to impossible to press it out, although that sometimes can be done. Touch the wound with boric acid solution.

Because the hair brush plays the dickens with marcels and finger waves, it has been shelved the last few years. Not such a good idea, since the brush helps to keep the hair clean and, in a way, it stimulates the blood streams of the scalp. The wave can be saved and the grooming go on. Comb the hair forward over the face, down at the sides. Do all the brushing from the crown of the head. That's the way it should be done anyhow, since hair emerges on a slant and doesn't like to have its fur rubbed in the wrong direction.

COMMERCE MEN OPPOSE STATE VET BONUS

Proposals for a state bonus for ex-service men and abolition of tax qualifications for voting were presented with unfavorable comment today by the Pennsylvania State Chamber of Commerce to its members as a poll was launched to reflect sentiment on 12 constitutional amendments on which voters will act in November.

The proposed bonus, requiring $50,000,000 indebtedness, was referred to as a federal obligation in the state chamber. The comment accompanying the ballot is:

"Veterans of the wars named were in the service of the federal government—not of the state of Pennsylvania—and should be compensated accordingly."

A poll tax alone for voting qualification is cited as a practice subject to abuses by party organizations, which it is maintained would pay the tax for their followers. It is pointed out:

"Elimination of the taxpaying qualification would deprive the counties of revenue from the poll or occupational taxes and correspondingly increase the burden which real estate must bear."

The toll bridge bond issue is cited as being self-liquidating. A mere statement of facts pertaining to the governmental setup is cited on the amendment for the Greater Pittsburgh Plan.

WIFE STANDS BY JAILED SLAYER

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 28.—(AP.)—Convinced her husband is innocent of murder, Mrs. Irene Jones, dry-eyed and stoical, brought words of cheer yesterday to his jail cell where, as Benjamin Jones, he is held for South Carolina Penitentiary officials on a charge of escaping nine years ago as C. D. Cooper from a life sentence for beating a man to death.

She told jail officials:

"I am not so much concerned with his past life. I married him three years ago and I can testify that he has a heart of gold. No one could ask for a better husband. I'm going to stand up and fight for him to the end."

Jones, 47, employed as a motion picture projectionist, was recognized here by a former employer who saw his picture in a detective magazine. She notified Sheriff's officers. While the prison authorities at Columbia, S. C., took steps to have Jones returned there to serve the rest of his life sentence, his lawyer said he would apply for a write of habeas corpus.

TRUANT YOUTH SHOOTS SELF

MARION, Ind., Sept. 28.—(AP.)—Phillip Barkdull, 13, played "hookey" from school yesterday, his youthful companion told police investigating the boy's death, and decided to shoot himself in the foot in hopes the injury would soothe his father's anger over his truancy.

So, on their way back to Marion, after visiting at Sweetser, young Barkdull sat down on the railroad tracks to inspect an old .38-caliber revolver carried by Orville Laughlin, his chum, who told officers the following:

Five or six times, Phillip pressed the gun against his foot and pulled the trigger. It would not fire. Then Phillip, laughing, wondered what would happen if he pressed the weapon against his head and tried to fire it. That time it fired, and Phillip, fatally wounded, fell across the tracks, where his body, mangled by a train, was found three hours later.

Orville said he was frightened after his companion was killed and fled to the home of his parents.

CHURCH INCOME DROP REPORTED

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—(AP.)—Contributions to Protestant churches in the United States in 1932 totaled $378,000,000, said a report submitted yesterday at a meeting of the general promotional executives of the principal denominations, held under the auspices of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

The report, based on a study of trends in church finances, said the total was 40 per cent less than contributions in 1929. The national income during the same period showed a drop of 54 per cent, it added.

Contributions in 1929 were reported as $581,000,000; national income for that year, $85,000,000,000; and the 1932 national income, $40,000,000,000.

GIRL'S CHARGES CONVICT BOSS

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 28.—Nathan Dashefsky, of Allentown, part owner of the D. and D. Shirt Company, at Northampton, which Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of the Governor, picketed in an anti-sweatshop demonstration, today was adjudged guilty by a jury in Federal Court of violating the Mann White Slave Act in connection with charges made by a former girl employe.

The jury recommended mercy. Pending a decision on a motion for new trial, Judge George A. Welsh committed Dashefsky to prison without bail.

Dashefsky was convicted of having taken Rose Pany, a 17-year-old worker, to Paterson, N. J., in June, 1932. The girl testified he locked her in a hotel room, sent five men to see her and collected the proceeds. Dashefsky denied he had ever been in Paterson and averred the girl's father, Ignatz Pany, had attempted to extort $5,000 from him on a threat to ruin his business.

AGED VISITOR ROBBED

En route to the home of his sister, whom he had not seen in 25 years, John Durkin, 74, of Kansas City, was attacked and is believed to have been robbed of $150 on his arrival here September 17, homicide detectives revealed today.

The aged man was found, dazed, on downtown streets by a cab driver who took him to the home of the sister, Mrs. Alice Thompson, of 2713 Custer avenue, Carrick, whose name was found in a letter he carried.

Recovering consciousness Sunday, Durkin told relatives he had $170 when he left his home in the Middle West. When he arrived in Carrick he had $20. His condition is critical.

VOTE MACHINE TAMPERING CHARGED BY WITNESSES

MAGEE'S VOTE SEE-SAWS IN RECOUNT

Drops 20 to Connelley In Tabulation of 52 Districts

Vote totals for William A. Magee and Councilman C. B. Connelley, candidates for Council, continue to see-saw back and forth today in the returning board's official count of the primary election returns.

Magee lost a little yesterday and today, although he picked up many small gains to offset in large part the few comparatively large gains of Connelley. In 52 districts counted, analysis brought the estimate that Magee dropped only about 20 votes to Connelley and gained a few over Councilman George S. Oliver.

A check of figures in the return board's tabulations against unofficial returns made election night showed that yesterday Magee lost, in two districts, 132 votets to Connelley. The Sixth District of the Fourth Ward gave Connelley 52 over Magee and the Eighth District of the Sixteenth Ward 80 votes.

Magee, however, made gains of tens and twenties in independent districts which partially offset these, and the day ended with Magee losing 77 to Connelley and gaining four over George S. Oliver. Magee, in unofficial returns, was leading by 2,500 votes.

EXPLAIN DISCREPENCIES

Few changes were reported in other races, although the board of the Eighth District, Sixteenth Ward, was called in for to explain other discrepencies.

It was reported to Commissioner W. D. Mansfield that something was wrong with the mayoralty count in this district, that there were only 147 registered votes, and the mayoralty count showed 156 for Herorn, 40 for Mackrell and 21 for McArdle.

Numerous other boards appeared yesterday and explained their discrepancies satisfactorily to the County Commissioners. The only ruffle of the day occurred when Commissioner C. M. Barr warned Attorney Saul Rubin that he could not presume to represent every board that appeared, that the boards must ask for his help.

'I'LL PUNCH YOUR NOSE!'

Barr objectetd when Rubin took an affidavit which board members of the First District, First Ward, were to sign. This paper explained how it happened that 17 ballots were voided by the board's neglect to have the voters take off the coupon. Barr warned Rubin and threatened to throw him bodily out, saying:

"I'll punch your nose."

Work was slightly speeded, a night session helping the 80 members of the board to cover more ground. The average of two out of three district boards furnishing incomplete returns continued, and the Commissioners summoned boards to appear at the rate of 10 a day. Some will be heard during the night sessions.

Discrepancies in the tally sheets of Third District of the First Ward brought an order for a recount of the vote there and members of the return board opened the box of the Fifth District of the Third Ward to check on the box's tally sheets.

Members of the board of the Seventh District of the Fifteenth Ward were ordered to recount the ballots when the board found none of the return sheets agreed.

A. M. MASLOWSKI

GLASS THROWN, ROUTS GUNMAN

Two bandits, who fled in disgust after holding up W. A. Maslowski, proprietor of Wence's drug store, 4381 Murray avenue last night, were sought by police today.

One of them purchased a newspaper and the other asked for a glass of water. Then one pointed a revolver at Maslowski and ordered him to "stick 'em up." Instead, Maslowski seized a soda glass and hurled it at the gunman. The druggist then dropped behind the soda fountain in time to dodge a bullet from the thug's revlover. Meanwhile, the gunman's accomplice hurried to the cash register, but failed to open it.

Two armed men held up a barbecue in the Cliff Mine road, North Fayette Township, early today, and escaped with a small amount of money, according to county detectives.

FLOOD CONTROL PUSHED AS U. S. PROJECT

Leaders Organize to Have Cost Borne by Government

Spokesmen were being named today to serve as key men in presenting the case of more than 100 cities and communities of the tri-state district before the Federal Emergency Public Works Commission at Washington, urging the government to pay all costs in the construction of watershed reservoirs on the Monongahela and Allegheny rivers.

A second campaign of letters and telegrams to Washington authorities from municipal and industrial leaders also was being launched through the Tri-State Authority, which is campaigning for construction of the Pittsburgh Flood Commission's project.

It already carries approval of the United States Army engineers as an economic necessity for communities adjacent to the Monongahelt, Allegheny and Ohio rivers.

HEARING PLANNED

The hearing date has been tentatively set for October 9, it was announced at a meeting of the Tri-State Authority leaders meeting yesterday in the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce.

Opposing the army engineers' recommendation that communities share in the $51,000,000 project to the extent of $35,000,000, the leaders said the direct objective of the hearing will be to stress the improvements as a federal problem.

With five key men named yesterday, George S. Davison, president of the flood commission and chairman of the group, was to appoint additional leaders.

WILL MASS ARGUMENTS

A general meeting will be called in Pittsburgh prior to the Washington hearingg at which arguments of the individual districts will be dovetailed to enable the presentation of a concrete case, it was planned.

Leaders named yesterday and the communities in which they will direct campaign efforts were: Mayor Ralph C. Benedum, of East Liverpool, O., for communities including Beaver, Pa., Midland, Pa., Wellsville, Chester and Newell, W. Va.; Mayor J. C. McMaster, Steubenville, for Toronto and Mingo Junction, O., and New Cumberland, Follansbee and Wellsburg, W. Va., Mayor J. G. Payne, Oil City, for Warren, Tidioute, Franklin and Titusville; Mayor J. Fred Thomas, Sharon, for Rochester, Meadville, Beaver Falls and New Castle; Burgess Kenneth McL. Lean, Munhall, for West Homestead, Homestead, Rankin and Whitaker.

Vest Pocket Baby Gains Weight In 13 Days

FERGUS FALLS, Minn., Sept. 28.—(AP.)—Embarking on her thirteenth day of life and representing the latest in vest pocket babies, the tiny daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Kragness today boasted a six ounce gain in weight and a full name just like other babies have.

It's Miss Donna Lois Kragness now for the little one who weighed only 26 ounces at birth as medical authorities, astounded at first that such a small infant could live more than a few hours, said the child had "a fairly good chance of living."

SUSPECT IN OLD SLAYING FREED

Patrolman John Spezzano, who for 23 years followed the trail of the murderer of his father's friend, Giovanni Rossi, will have to start over again.

A suspect whom he arrested two weeks ago, Constantino Gianna, 42, of 677 Independence street, was released yesterday when Spezzano failed to make a case against him.

A search of musty court records showed that the coroner's jury which investigated the case had recommended the apprehension of Giovanni Giralmo. Giralmo, however, was never indicted.

SQUIRES SEEK MORE POWER

Four bills for Legislature action will be pressed at the next session according to plans announced today at the state convention of the Minor Judiciary Association of Pennsylvania meeting in William Penn Hotel.

The aldermen and justices of the peace will urge increased jurisdiction in trespass actions, amendment of the jurisdiction act to enlarge general powers, increase to $25 the amount involved in which their decisions shall be final and to increase jurisdiction from $300 to $500.

Mayor George A. Hoverter, of Harrisburg, was presiding. It was expected that he will be re-elected president at tomorrow's closing session. The executive committee likewise will be renamed, including Justice of the Peace A. W. McMillen, of Carnegie, and Elmer T. Greiner, Bellevue.

A banquet will be held tonight with Judge Samuel H. Gardner and District Attorney Andrew T. Park as speakers.

'MISS AMERICA' PICKS 'IDEAL'

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 28.—Wanted—a man, tall, dark and handsome, about 21 years of age with good job and brains. Money as an alternative no objection.

Miss America of 1933—blonde, blue-eyed Marion Bergeron, 16, of West Haven, Conn.—calmly surveyed the specimens assembled for the occasion of her first public appearance last night at the Summit Hotel here. She confided:

"You know, I have'nt seen him yet. I mean my ideal man.

"He's got to be tall, over 6 feet anyway; black curly hair and about 21 years old. Weight well about 165, I guess, and, of course, he's got to be good looking, but he doesn't have to be real wealthy so long as he's got a nice job and brains."

Miss America's idea of "good looking" is some one like her motorcycle policeman father back in West Haven, or her distinguished looking manager, Armand Nichols, veteran of seven Miss America contests.

POLICE SOUGHT TO STOP USE, PROBE TOLD

Members of Election Boards Called to Night Hearing

Members of several election boards will be called for questioning tonight when the committee, investigating the breakdown of the voting machines at the recent primary, holds its first night hearing in the County Commissioners' conference room. More than a score of persons are expected to be present, Fred Obley, secretary of the committee, announced.

Nine employes of the County Bureau of Elections spent several hours before the committee yesterday, giving their version of what took place in the four cities of the county on election day. The witnesses were the chief custodian, the chief mechanic and seven of the eight zone custodians, all of whom gave first-hand information on the hundreds of complaints sent into the department.

Among the highlights of testimony were the following:

Police, constables and deputy sheriffs made repeated efforts to have election boards substitute ballots for the voting machines, even when the machines were working properly and the election boards satisfied.

Election machine custodians refused to approve election board members who they felt had not received sufficient instructions, but the board members worked notwithstanding.

Many machines were put out of order when a cone on the plunger leading from the motor slipped. Custodians believe set screws were loosened in an effort to break down machine.

Buttons on several machines were wrenched off and broken. This could not be done without a wrench or pliers, custodians testified.

Attorneys Edward O. Taber and William B. McFall did most of the questioning yesterday, Chairman Frank J. Harris remaining for only part of the session.

'UNDER-COVER' MOVE

The first witness yesterday was Ray C. Dever, chief custodian, who said that from the many calls which flooded the office, he was of the opinion that there existed an under-cover move to not use the machines. He said the first report came from Dave Roberts, Hill district politician, who said the machine would not work and that paper ballots were needed. Dever said examination showed the machine had not even been set up for operation.

Albert Lauer, chief mechanic, said he believed the machines to be mechanically correct and useable. He told of having received a complaint from the First District of the First Ward that the machine would not operate and investigation showed the canvass cover still sealed on the machine. Lauer said there was not one case where a machine could not be operated and the serious breakdowns were very few.

LOOKS LIKE 'TAMPERING'

Lauer said it looked very much like someone had tampered with the electrical connections of the machines. He said set screws on the plunger had become loose in many cases and stopped operations. He also said the contact points had been spread apart. He added that the tampering could

Gasoline Robbery Suspect Arrested

Jack E. Stoy, 38, an automobile mechanic of Carmichaels, was arrested by Waynesburg police yesterday at the request of state police at Bridgeville, who said he was wanted in connection with a gasoline robbery. They denied the report Stoy was wanted in connection with the murder of State Highway Patrolman Herbert P. Brantlinger, in Bridgeville.

Stoy was brought to Pittsburgh for questioning.

Who Will Give Name to Our New National Bird?

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

How about a name for the blue eagle?

Every pet bird and every fighting rooster has a name.

Must be somebody in the land who can think up a good label for the recovery hawk whose song is a factory whistle, who flies from dawn to dark and whose roost is in every man's home.

He has broken all records for non-stop flights. He hitch-hiked from coast to coast on windshields. No matter where you go, he is there ahead of you.

The name must be masculine, must suggest great dignity and poise and at the same time be reminiscent of an optimistic character who likes to go places and do things. Send your suggestions now.

Elevator Operator Assists Durant in Evading Gangsters

CHAPTER XIX.

The prospect made Durant smile grimly. It wasn't a chivalrous act he contemplated, but Sue Leonard did not rate chivalry. Why, compared to her, Gertie Waxted was a jewel of price beyond purchase. Why, Gertie, whom he had never met until yesterday, was probably sitting in his apartment now, terrified at the danger he was risking. Bless her heart!

He emerged from the apartment and descended one floor. It was just as well to pretend, in the event of any untoward happening, that he had been in Gertie's apartment. So he pressed the elevator bell on the twenty-fourth floor, and a moment later stepped into the lift.

"I said down," he said to the operator as the car started upward.

The man looked at him over his shoulder. "Oh, yeah? I'll take you down in a minute if you want to go. But maybe you'll listen to me for a second. You socked Jim Crelliman on the button this morning, didn't you?"

Durant's heels came slightly off the ground as his weight went forward on his toes. Of course, Crelliman owned this building; this man was one of his employes. He was probably taking Durant up to some apartment where other employes might make things unpleasant. But the same kind of punch that Durant had landed on Crelliman this morning would put this man out of business. His fist clenched. He'd run the machine himself. . . .

The car came to a sudden stop. The operator faced Durant and there was no pugnacity on his countenance. Durant restrained the blow he was prepared to strike.

Warned by Operator

"Listen," said the operator. "I don't know you from a hole in the ground, but any guy that belts Crelliman is a pal of mine. I was on duty this morning and I know you were in Miss Waxted's apartment. I know that Crelliman went in there afterwards. I know you came out and Crelliman came out later nursing a lump on his jaw. And now you're back again tonight. A damn' lucky thing for you that this happened to be the day when I get my afternoon off. But I'm back at night. The other operator wouldn't think to tell you that the lobby is crawling with Crelliman's gunmen. They know you're in the building. I've been around. I know when the boys are out to do a little business. And while I can't prove they're going to do that business with you, it's a cinch they'll be glad to see you. If you don't like my hunch, play your own."

"I'll play yours," said Durant softly. "What's the rest of it?"

"We're at the thirtieth floor. There's a service elevator that comes out at the trade entrance around the corner from the main entrance. It's not used at night, but it works. If you run down to the ground floor you can make your getaway, maybe."

"And why do you take a chance that may get you in wrong with Crelliman?" demanded Durant.

Synopsis

Jackson Durant, young lawyer, has alienated his society friends and lost his fiancee, Sue Leonard, because of his success as the "mouthpiece" who won the acquittal of the notorious Tony Gazotti. Miss Leonard then becomes engaged to Tom Siddall, youthful broker. Shortly afterwards Siddall is arrested, charged with the murder of Mimi Montagne, who was shot dead on the terrace of a penthouse owned by Jim Crelliman. Sue begs Durant to get busy in Siddall's behalf. Durant believes the broker is innocent and secures the aid of Gazotti, who introduces him to Gertie Waxted, closest friend of the murdered entertainer. The lawyer takes Gertie to his apartment for questioning. She agrees to help Siddall's defense. Durant borrows her ring and visits the pawnshop of Levitoff, pawnbroker, who told police he sold a gun to Siddall. Shortly afterwards Levitoff is found shot to death. Durant suspects Crelliman. Durant is spurred by a determination to help Siddall after he sees Sue with Crelliman.

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 28.—James E. Ferguson, the Governor's husband, struck back at his opponents in the Texas Senate today in a castigation of the two outstanding anti-Ferguson Senators, Clint Small and Wealter Woodward.

An editorial in his political paper, the Ferguson Forum, was Ferguson's first public notice of the charge of his former employe, F. W. Chudej, that Ferguson had received $22,000 in cash from unknown sources this year. The money was referred to by Small as "cash receipts of the Governor's office."

Calling them "Lilliputian statesmen—bipeds of disappointed political ambitions," Ferguson declared they sought to bring his "personal and private matters" into the record of the relief fund investigation because they were "frantic with the failure of their attack upon the relief commission."

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Dr. William L. Sirovich, who bitterly attacked Communism in Congress, returned today on the steamship Conte di Savoia from a survey of conditions in Russia and declared he had been "converted." He said he would see President Roosevelt immediately and urge recognition of the Russian government.

Congressman Sirovich also declared he believed Chancellor Hitler would bring about a war of tremendous proportions in Europe within the next year.

When Dr. Sirovich made his attacks on Communism in Congress the Russian government urged him to go there and find out what the conditions actually are. He did. He said today:

"I have changed my entire viewpoint regarding Communism. We should give instant full recognition to that government. Communism is not for Anglo-Saxon governments, but for Slavic Russia it is succeeding. We in the United States have nothing to worry about from Communism. Russia is eager to trade with us. Once she is recognized a market will be found for our farm produce, now going to waste."

PA. REALTORS URGE TAX CUT

HARRISBURG, Sept. 28.—(AP.)—Tax problems and their importance to real estate is the principal topic of the thirteenth annual convention of the Pennsylvania Real Estate Association.

A symposium on the subject, termed the most "serious part of our convention," by Philip N. Arnold, president of the association, occupied last night's meeting. Arnold pointed out that 84 per cent of Pennsylvania's taxes are levied on real estate.

A state-wide plan, discussed by speakers in the symposium, included: Orderly reduction of taxes; lightening of the real estate tax burden; more equitable application of local taxation; compulsory uniform accounting by governmental units; equalization of assessments, and elimination of antiquated governmental machinery.

PENNSYLVANIANS GIVE GOOD REASONS FOR SENSATIONAL SWING TO NEW FORD V-8

HERE'S THE REASON: The New Ford is the only V-8 selling for less than $2,000.00. Smooth as only a V-8 can be, the New Ford's engine is made more quiet and vibration-free by a unique 3-point rubber suspension mounting. It gives a full 75 horsepower; 80 miles an hour—hour after hour.

IT'S THE MOST COMFORTABLE CAR I ever rode in...

HERE'S THE REASON: Seats are wider, roomier, deeper. Rubber chassis cushioning, deep resilient seat springs—automatic ride control shock absorbers—like those of the Lincoln—make the New Ford V-8 smooth riding.

IT'S THE MOST ECONOMICAL CAR we've ever owned...

HERE'S THE REASON: Official tests in eleven different states show that the New Ford V-8 gives 18½ to 22½ miles on a gallon of gasoline. Many owners report even greater mileage.

I NEVER DREAMED a car under $1000 could be so BEAUTIFUL...

HERE'S THE REASON: The New Ford V-8 is modern. From the smart radiator grill to the rear fenders, graceful streamlines form a beautiful unit of modern designing. Bonderized fenders will not rust. Ford All-Steel bodies have no wood to warp or decay. Ford beauty is permanent.

have been done by anyone inside the curtains, who had access to the lower power section of the machine.

F. C. Ferrante, custodian, said the only serious trouble he had was in the Twenty-fifth district of the Nineteenth Ward, where the machine was reported as broken down. Investigation revealed that the voter was not putting sufficient pressure on the button to operate the machine.

Robert Hughes, custodian, said that he had his headquarters in the Squirrel Hill Police Station. He said the board in charge of the polling place there was satisfied with the machines and continued to use them in spite of the fact that police, constables and deputy sheriffs ordered them to use ballots and stop operation of the machine.

BUTTONS PRIED OFF

Hughes said also there was a movement on foot before the court ordered ballots out, to have the word sent to all boards by city police as soon as the court had taken some action. He said all police radio cars were ordered to the Henry Hotel political headquarters to get copies of the court order to serve on election boards.

Hughes also said that there were several buttons pried off machines in his zone and this could only be done by a wrench or pliers. He said that some of the electrical trouble in his zone could have been accidental and not from tampering.

Hughes said that he did not believe the election board officials received sufficient instructions. He said out of the 150 in his zone, who reported for instructions, only about 30 remained when the meeting closed. He said they signed their appearance slip which entitled them to five dollars, and then left. He said that later he refused to approve the payroll and certification of instruction for his boards. He signed the certifications, however, after realizing that it was too late to do anything about the situation.

MECHANIC ON JOB

Edward M. Skapik, another custodian, said also that he refused to sign the approval slips for the election officials, after realizing that they had not been fully instructed in use of the machines. He said on one investigation he sent a mechanic to repair a machine, but the judge of election told him not to make the repairs, not wanting to use the machine.

It was brought out at the hearing that one of the machines examined by R. B. Ferguson went out with 900 votes credited to Sheriff Frank I. Gollmar. He said this mistake was easily corrected by the return board. Ferguson said also buttons were twisted off machines in his zone.

W. D. Alcorn, Charles Murray and Paul E. Ferraro, custodians, made similar reports to the committee. Charles Wagner, the custodian in charge of the Eighth Zone which included Clairton, Duquesne and McKeesport, is ill at home and unable to be present.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 28.—(AP.)—Jacob G. Schurman, of New York, educator and diplomat, told the Shanghai Rotary Club today America's task in the Philippines is completed. He said:

"The Filipinos have reached the limit of advancement and education in democracy achievable under American leadership. The Filipinos want freedom as they have always wanted it. America won't hold an alien people under its domination against their will and there is no alternative except independence."

SEA MAIL RATE $66,000 POUND, QUIZ TOLD

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28—(AP.)—Ocean mail subsidies paid to the Export Steamship Corporation annually, amounting to more than the organization paid the Shipping Board for 18 vessels, were disclosed today in a Senate investigation.

Senator Black (Dem.) Alabama, placed in the record reports showing that the line received more than $300,000 for carrying four pounds of mail and that in 1929 it was paid, under a contract awarded in the Hoover administration, at the rate of $66,000 a pound on ocean mail.

A formal statement that C. Bascom Slemp, of Virginia, who once was secretary to President Coolidge, had helped to engineer the ship purchasing deal at a price lower than originally asked by the Shipping Board, was placed before the committee by Henry Herberman, president of the Export company.

SLEMP ASKS $50,000

In a letter to Senator Black, chairman of the committee, Herberman wrote that Slemp had billed him for $50.00 for legal fees in connection with the sale of the ships at $7.50 a ton instead of $8.50 as asked by Admiral Palmer, of the Shipping Board.

The sale price, Herberman wrote, was a compromise, adding:

"Mr. Slemp acted in connection with this matter and felt that his services were worth, as I recall, $50,000. I actually paid him $15,00, $3,000 on July , 1925, and $12,000 on July 1 1925."

Slemp resigned as secretary Coolidge in January of 1925.

W. D. McLaughlin, of Long Island, N. Y., former treasurer of the Export Line, was testifying when Black presented Herberman's letter. McLaughlin said:

"I didn't know anything about it until one day Herberman told me to see Slemp in Washington as he had presented a bill for $50,000 and he, Herberman, couldn't see it, and neither could I."

TAILOR BILL SHOWN

McLaughlin also identified a $510 tailor bill made out to T. V. O'Connor, former chairman of the Shipping Board, by J. Coliendo, of New York, dated November 11 1924, as one that had been at the Export Line's New York office.

Under questioning by Senator Black, he said it was the bill Herberman had told "Jim (Fahey) to pay." He surmised it was paid out of the treasury of the Steers Terminal Corporation, a subsidiary of the Export Line, which also is controlled by Herberman.

Yesterday Herberman denied before the committee that he had paid O'Connor's bill for three suits and an overcoat.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

Today the mercury of the debutante list thermometer mounts one degree, bringing my list of sure-to-come out debutantes to 46. Of course some of them have already had their parties.

The new addition is Katharine Downing Dangerfield, daughter of the junior Benjamin Dangerfields, of Bennington avenue. Katharine is one of the best-liked girls in the younger set. Just when her debut party will be I'll have to tell you later, for the date hasn't been set.

Frances Frampton, one of the late additions to the bud list, will be presented to society at a tea Monday, November 27, which her parents, the Duward Belmont Framptons, will give in the Longue Vue Country Club.

Bud of November

Another November debutante will be young Anne Hamilton, daughter of the Donald C. Hamiltons. Her mother will give a luncheon for her the very first day of November in the Fox Chapel Golf Club.

Still another luncheon date for debs of the season will be October 19 when Mrs. Pitt McCoy Nutty will entertain at the Twentieth Century Club for debutantes Patricia Witherow and Florence Willock.

And tomorrow Mrs. Wallace Hurtte Rowe will give a dinner for some of the buds before the deb night at the opening of the William Penn's Chatterbox.

Eastern Debuts

An Eastern debutante whose peregrinations in social realms will be followed here with interest is Adelaide H. Childs Frick, daughter of the Childs Fricks, of Roslyn, L. I.

Her parents will present her to society at a dance Thanksgiving eve. And Adelaide will also be presented in Baltimore at the First Bachelors' cotillion.

* * *

Freshman At Vassar

Instead she will be ever so busy this winter being a freshman at Vassar. She'll probably be seen, however, at some of her friends' debut parties during the holidays.

Eleanor's younger sister, Marguerite Merrick, has left for the Masters School at Dobbs Ferry.

The Merricks with Eleanor and Marguerite and their younger children, Rosetta and Herbert DuPuy Merrick, are just home from Hyannisport, on picturesque Cape Cod, Mass., where they spent the summer and part of September.

Lingering At Ranch

Margaretta Frew, daughter of the William Frews, Devon road, will be off this fall for Miss Walker's School in the East. Just now she is still with her family at their Moose, Wyoming, place, "Four Lazy F Ranch."

* * *

The junior William D. Georges have been at the St. Regis Hotel, New York, before sailing for a European honeymoon. Of course you know that before their marriage Monday afternoon, the most fashionable wedding so far this season, Mrs. George was Mary Franklin Robinson, daughter of the William Christopher Robinsons, of Sewickley Heights.

Hunter Trials

There's much jubilation in the smart set that the Brandywine Hunter trials will be with us again. They'll be run this year over Barberry Farm, the J. O. Burgwins' Sewickley Heights place, instead of over the Morgan B. Schiller place. The date of this exciting event is October 25.

And after the trials, open only to horses of Sewickley Hunt members, there'll be a formal hunt ball in the Allegheny Country Club. Margaret Holdship is the chairman.

County Voters League Schedules Numerous Special Affairs

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

In addition to its monthly conferences at the Congress of Clubs, the Allegheny County League of Women Voters has planned a number of special events. These monthly meetings are the working conferences of the organization.

On October 18 a membership drive will be opened. There's a Christmas party on the calendar for December 16, a theater benefit in February, a rummage sale in May and the annual luncheon meeting with election in June.

Then there's to be a series of open forums in the Chamber of Commerce Auditorium, including a candidates' meeting on October 21. These are held on Saturday especially for the benefit of teachers who are league members and cannot attend its other meetings and for students of the eleventh and twelfth grades from the city and borough high schools.

At the top, an afternoon coat of American broadtail, with elbow-puffed sleeves and a silver fox collar attached lei fashion. Below, karakul wrapped slimly around the waist and collared with a huge double shawl of silver fox.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

A WIDE shouldered effect nicely calculated to avoid any top heaviness is still the silhouette which our best winter coats are aiming for, whether they be all fur, or fur and fabric.

* * *

THE safest bet for women of all sizes and shapes is the classic shawl collar, which lends a becoming V neckline. Flanked with sleeves that are really puffed, it becomes a swank treatment for the girl who passes average height by a lot of inches. With sleeves that are built up with the merest padding to show they are aware of fashionable trends which they decline to go for in a big way, the most diminutive maiden will find it becoming.

* * *

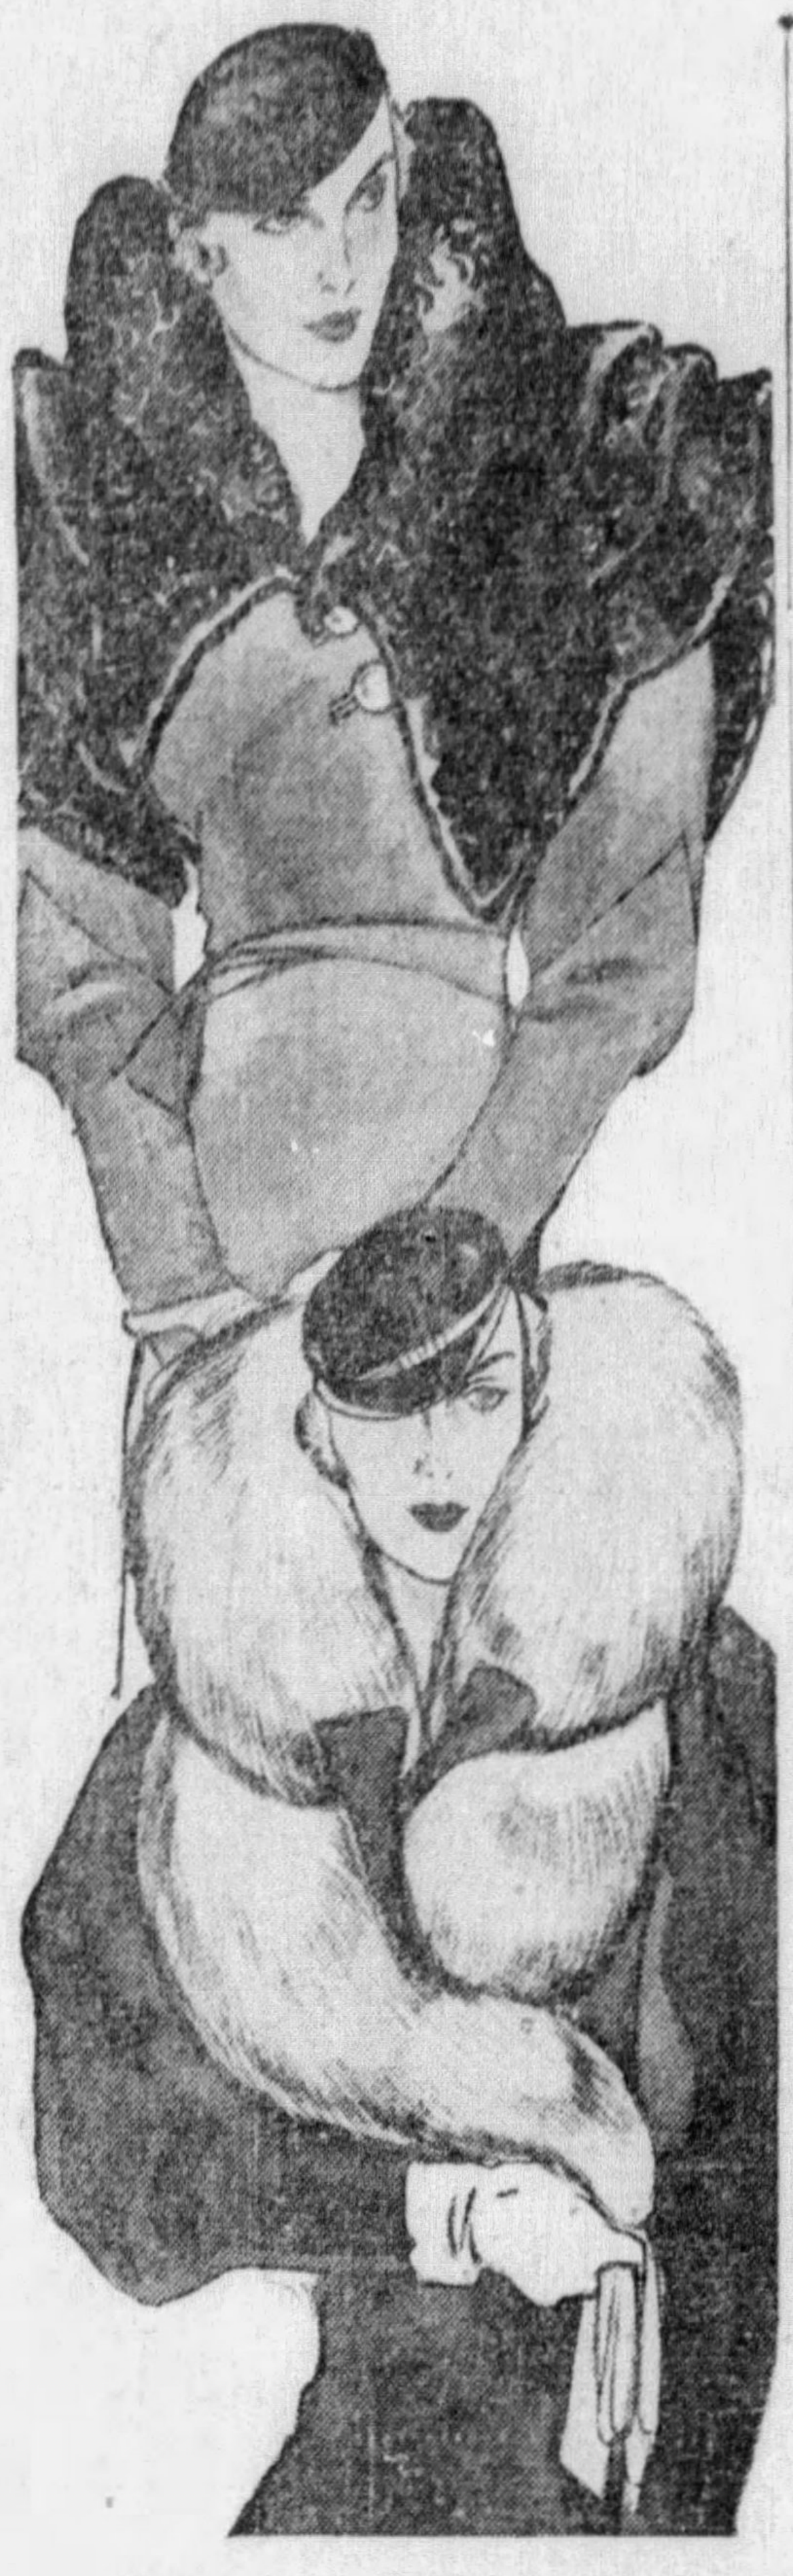
But there are many collars besides the shawl model. Postillion capes, reminiscent of one's great-great-grandmother, are very attractive this year. Real Alaska seal in log rolling brown, Persian lamb and sable are all used in this mode which is young but not too quaint to be dignified.

* * *

This fashion, however, is one that is made for fabric coats rather than all-fur models, and a trigly fitted waistline is essential if it is to be alluring. The little woman, by avoiding too much flare on the hem of the skirt coat below the fitted body, will find that the cape style is a reasonable venture for her as well as her taller acquaintances.

* * *

THE Ascot tie for the throat of one's fur coat is just as good style this year as last indeed, it has sneaked up on some fairly dressy models of pony skin, Hudson seal and the like, which are not plain swagger cut and dedicated to dirty weather and knockabout wear. There is a trick in wearing such a tie on a dressy coat which makes it more appropriate; one does not place the ends of the tie exactly one on top of the other. One spreads them out horizontally instead, in a pussy cat bow effect that splashes from shoulder to shoulder.



Above, a cloth coat with interesting sleeves, a sashed slim-fitted waistline, and a shoulder cape of Persian lamb. Below, another cloth coat trimmed with a shawl collar which is in two tiers of luxurious blue fox.

Herals a New Note in Footwear Fashions

Change . . . the secret power underlying most of the things in life; Change . . . one of the most important elements in the world of fashion . . . in the life of all apparel. Very naturally, the fashions fall in line this season as last . . . ready-to-wear changes have been numerous . . .varied . . . as interesting and puzzling as they are smart! Now. . . of a necessity. . . shoes get into step among the ranks of the great parade which is on for Fall! Watch them . . . study them . . . be sure that YOUR FEET look as thoroughly Autumn 1933, as your frock and hat!

COLOR + + +

Goodbye to a conglomeration of colors! The blacks and browns of Fall are all you need to give yourself that finished touch which shoes should bring! Bright chestnut color, perhaps, for wear with grey.

STYLE + + +

New shapes to shoes (change, you see!) Much higher to keep in line with the throat clutching frocks of the period. Brogues and ghillies, shallow oxfords and pumps for street. Pumps and sandals for afternoon. Sandals for evening (of fabric to match your gown). Sandals made of much more strapping now than they were.

LEATHER + + +

Suedes . . . kids . . . and a fairish amount of fabric scattered here and there. When hasn't the Fall and Winter season called for suede and kid? And when hasn't Fashion made some of her nicest numbers from the velvety sootiness of a GOOD piece of suede? This year will be like the rest in this way.

AND + + + +

the important thing . . . last but not least! Where to find these new shoes . . . where to get that ghillie you want . . . where to find the evening slippers of your heart and to have them dyed to match your gown? These answers . . . where, when, and for HOW MUCH are all answered in the shoe advertisements which appear in this newspaper!

STATE ACTION ON RESTRICTED BANKS NEAR

The state banking department this week is expected to take its first definite action regarding state banks operating under restrictions since the banking moratorium last March—institutions neither open nor shut, neither in liquidation nor operation.

William D. Gordon, secretary of banking, is expected to announce the names of several of the 69 institutions in the state for which reorganization and reopening is possible.

At the same time, one or two banks whose reorganization plans have been approved and fulfilled may be allowed to reopen.

MAY ASK CHANGES

No definite action, it was thought, will be taken on the majority of restricted banks working on reorganization. The banking department is expected to approve the plans of some and call for changes in others.

Approval of plans does not necessarily mean definite reopening. There generally are such things as sales of stock and waivers of deposits to be attended to before reopening is possible.

The slowness with which some national banks in this district have progressed with their plans and stock sales after approval by the Comptroller of the Currency is taken as an indication that all is not well in the minds of the depositors.

STOCKHOLDERS LIABLE

Stockholders in closed banks—the category into which restricted banks must eventually pass, if they cannot reopen—are liable for an amount equal to the par value of the stock they hold.

Many depositors have shown reluctance to "go along" on reorganization plans that call for no sacrifice from stockholders who had, depositors feel, an obligation to depositors who entrusted their funds to the banks.

Many reorganization plans call for large depositors to take stock of a new issue in return for calling off part or all of their claims against the bank. In addition, all depositors are sometimes required to wait until slow assets of the bank, placed in a trust fund, are liquidated before a good part of their deposits are paid.

UP TO DEPOSITORS

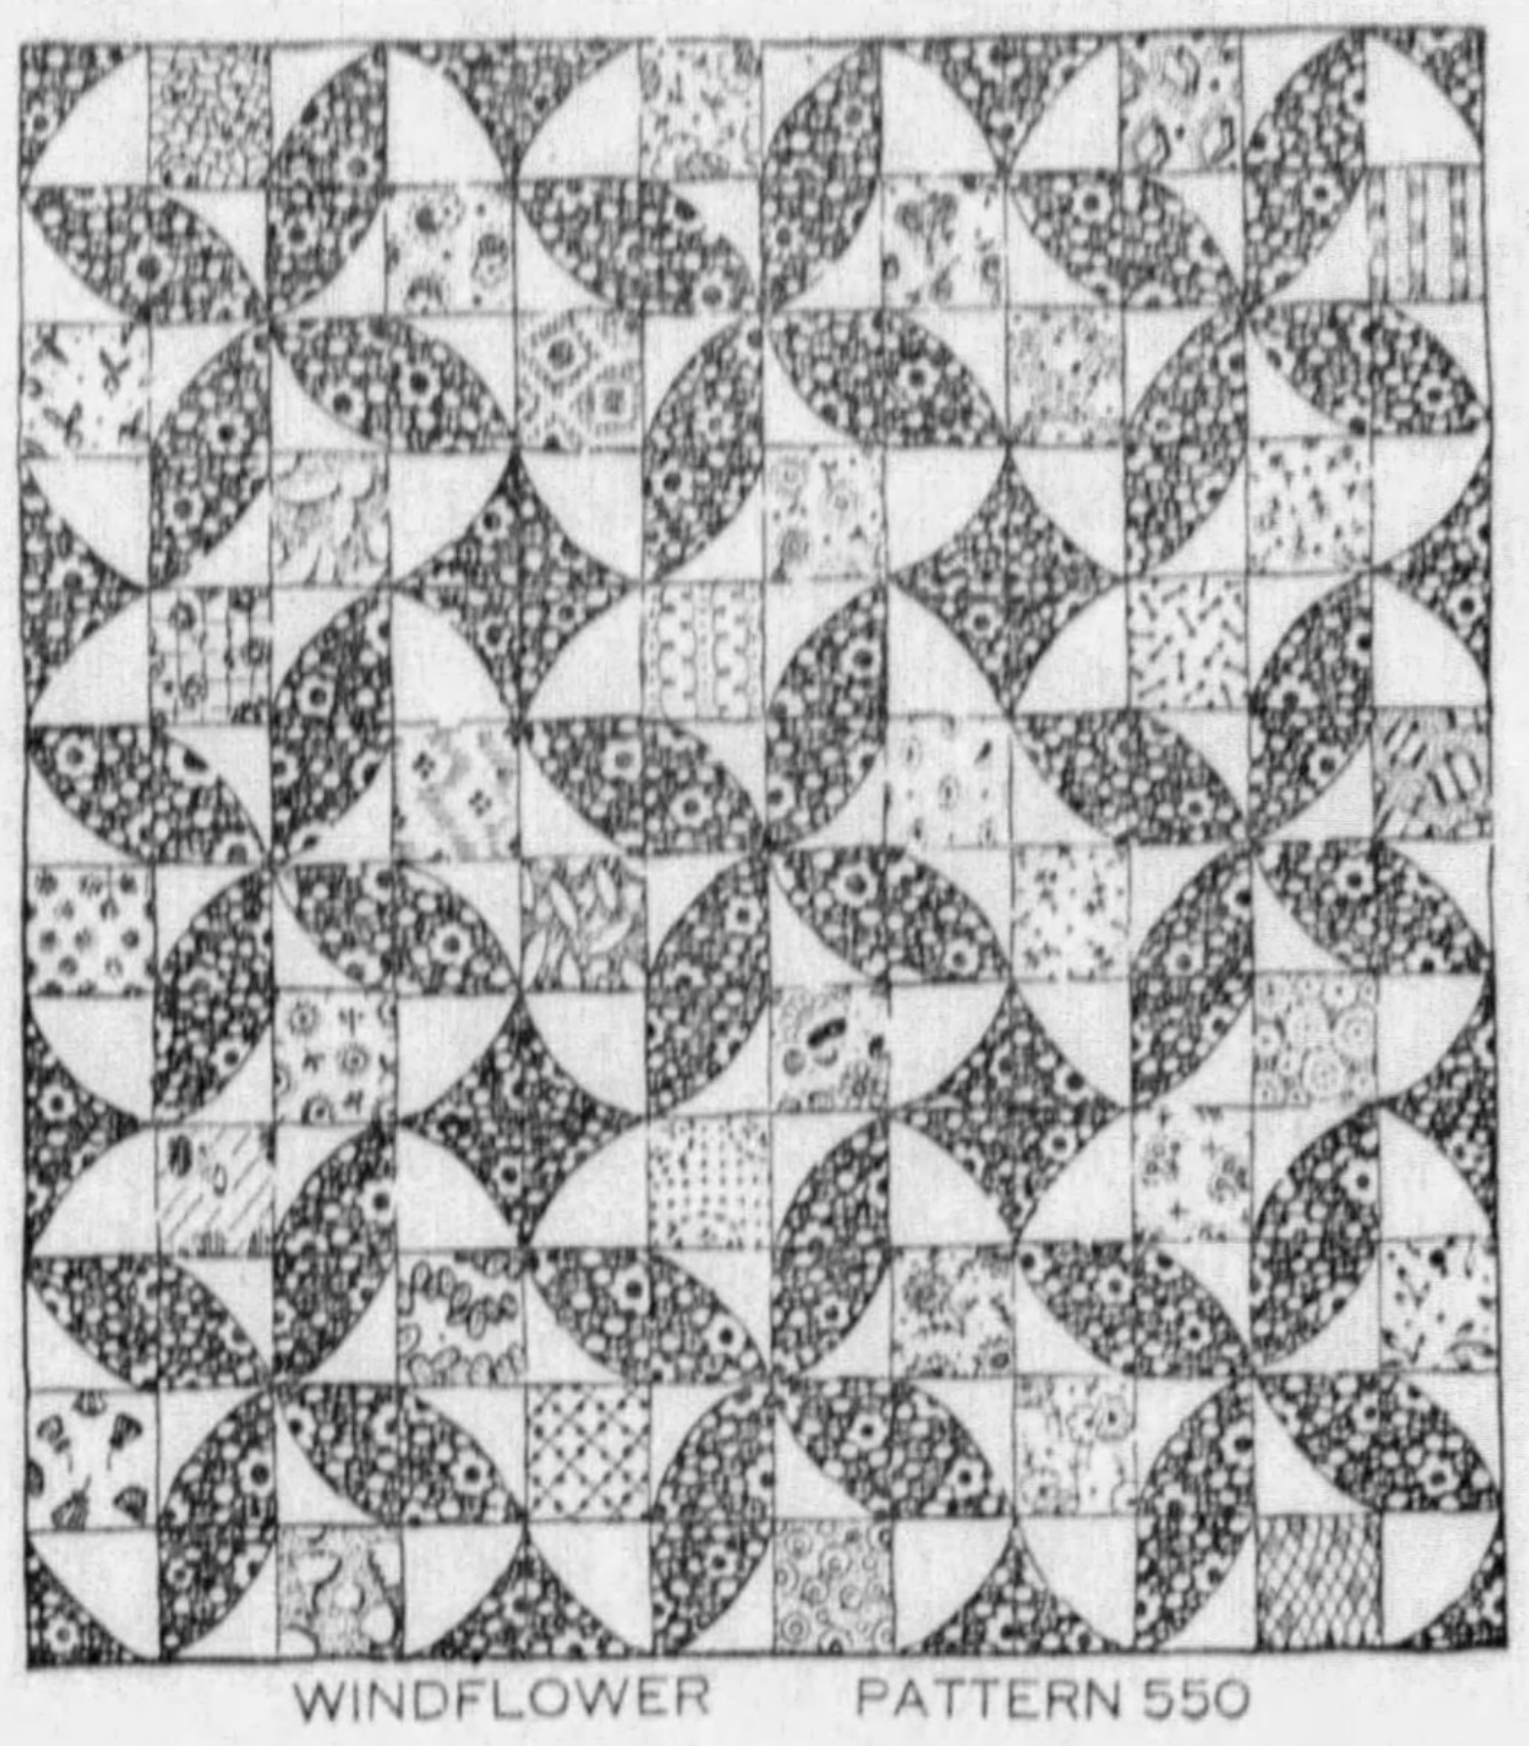
The fate of the few reorganization plans whose approval is expected by Dr. Gordon this week or that may be worked out later will depend on depositors' attitude toward these sacrifices they are asked to make.

Large dividends on bank stocks in the past, paid when banking was a profitable business, and the present alleged shirking of the stockholders to whom officers and directors were responsible, may lead some depositors to make larger demands than have been yet heard.

In answer, officers, directors and stockholders will probably point to their own decreased earnings, loss of their own deposits in the banks, shrinkage of their security accounts, sometimes to foreclosures on their homes, and balk at further loss through depression.

Some banking officials have privately stated they would rather do without stockholders' further sacrifice if they can obtain, in return, their co-operation in reorganization plans, for most are influential in affairs of their communities.

COLORFUL—EASY TO MAKE



WINDFLOWER PATTERN 550

By LAURA WHEELER

The Windflower quilt has come by its name honestly—the flower-like form looks as if it were gracefully blowing in the breeze. Squares of scraps are used, giving an effectively contrasting background for the flowers. This is one of those quilts that seems to suggest endless charming color arrangements. The scraps in the background suggest a lavish use of all colors, setting off the flower pattern, done in a darker color. If preferred, all the scrap patches could be made of one material, making a quaint checkerboard background.

Pattern 550 comes to you with complete, simple, instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10c for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth Avenue, New York City.

Periodic Examinations Are Health Preservers

A recent editorial in the Journal of the American Medical Association states that the protection of health through the periodic physical examination is like international disarmament. It has been "accepted in principle," but with little pracacal result. This is unfortunate, for one will deny the many benefits to be derived from periodical physical examinations.

Dr. Copeland

The periodic health examination was first suggested in 1861 by Horace Dobell. Since then it has been advised as a measure of protection against disease by physicians and surgeons, state and county medical societies, public health officials and various health institutes.

I believe that the public has failed to appreciate the value of such examinations. Perhaps this is because too little stress has been placed upon their benefits.

I agree with the article from which I have quoted. I indorse, too, the thought that "too much emphasis has been placed on life's extension and not enough on life enrichment."

If everyone, especially the young, would realize that health and happiness can be preserved only by care and prompt attention to body defects, many chronic ailments would be prevented. It is probable that many of the chronic disorders of middle age would not arise if the youth of today appreciated the importance of regular physical examinations. Then they would become familiar with the necessary measures for guarding the health of the body.

It is true that life may be prolonged by periodic visits to the doctor. But of greater importance is the fact that good health and happiness can be practically assured if the necessary steps are taken at an early age. Every youth should be taught that good health and physical strength are necessary for a happy and useful life. He must be made to believe that it is his daily obligation to keep physically fit and mentally awake.

We are indeed indebted to every agency that urges the value of periodice physical examinations in early life and that strives to impress upon the public the importance of the plan. It is hoped that by close co-operation between the medical professions and the public, progress toward better health will result.

I urge all my readers who have not recently consulted a physician to do so now. Also, have the children taken to the doctor for a complete physical examination and follow any instructions and advice that he may give you.

In addition, I would advise that regular visits be made to the dentist. Bear in mind that good and strong teeth are essential to health. The temporary teeth as well as the permanent teeth should receive proper attention.

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Test of Two Offensives. Evers Banks on Hubbell. Giants Find Myer Puzzle. • Pro Gridders Improve. Sharkey May Linger. Jewish Fighters Scarce.

ATTACKS OF PITT AND PREXIES DIFFER

When Jock Sutherland and Hank Day run their Pitt and Wash-Jeff football teams out onto the Stadium turf Saturday afternoon in a renewal of the oldest gridiron rivalry in these parts, the fans in attendance will get a glimpse of two entirely different offensives. Sutherland, as is well known, believes in power masked by deception at the start, but depends on terrific speed and the completion of the most minute details to earn his yardage. Following the advice of one of the Confederate generals in the Civil War, Jock believes in "getting thar fustest with the mostest men."

Hank Day

The Panther coach is a firm disciple of the theory that two men are better than one, and for that reason he sits up late on many a night trying to figure out some way of getting every other player on the team out ahead of the ball carrier without delaying the attack for more than a split second.

Day, on the other hand, prefers to fool the opposition. While the W. & J. mentor employs the Warner double-wingback system and utilizes the power that can be derived therefrom, he also follows closely in the footsteps of the Old Fox in the matter of deception, and sometimes goes a step or so farther.

TRICKY ATTACK KEEPS ENEMY GUESSING

As a result, the Presidents' attack looks like a three-ring circus, with two or three men handling the ball on every play, and spinning and faking around until the defense isn't quite sure just what it's all about. It may be argued that such an attack lacks power near the goal line, but when it comes to eating up yardage in midfield, and shaking backs loose for long runs and possible touchdowns, it has few equals. And that spectacular style, after all, is what the crowd likes.

Everything is going to be wide open Saturday, for W. & J. will be shooting the works, while Sutherland, no longer in a position to let his team rely on the defensive prowess of a Warren Heller, will be sending his quarterbacks out with instructions to score as early and as often as possible.

EVERS TIPS HUBBELL TO WIN THREE GAMES

Johnny Evers picks the Giants to win the world series and bases his dope on a strong faith in Carl Hubbell. The former star second baseman says the New York slab ace is more like a left-handed Mathewson than any other pitcher he has seen, and declares he won't be surprised if Hubbell beats the Senators three times, with Schumacher or Fitzsimmons winning the other victory required.

Evers says it is a mistake to think that one pitcher cannot dominate a short series. He found that out, he adds, when he was with the Cubs and they had to face Big Ed Walsh so often in Chicago city series when that great hurler was at his peak. Johnny does not underrate the Senators, but gives the Giants the edge on great pitching, remarkable spirit, a fighting frame of mind that goes right through the club, and the fact that the New York players are absolutely sold on the idea that Bill Terry is the new miracle man of baseball.

MYER PERPLEXING PROBLEM TO GIANTS

Buddy Myer

It seems that when opposing pitchers feel that Myer is an inside hitter, he bangs an outside pitch to left for three bases. If they decide he is an outside hitter, the Jewish star pulls an inside pitch to right for extra sacks. If they figure that a southpaw can stop him he is apt to come through with three hits. The Giants think they will have to trust to luck in his case, and they are picking him to be the standout on the Washington side.

Terry Has Last Laugh on Critics

By BILL TERRY

Manager New York Giants, 1933 National League Champions.

In addition to the very natural satisfaction to be derived from the pennant-winning achievement of the Giants, it has granted me one extra bit of enjoyment. It's given me a chance to guy my reporter friends.

You know, they couldn't concede the Giants a chance in the spring. Most of them consigned us to a place in the second division, thought we couldn't finish higher than sixth or seventh.

Of course, I'm only joking when I tell them "I told you so." For, while I couldn't agree with their second division estimates, I wasn't pennant conscious myself back there at the training camp in Los Angeles. To be frank about it, when we left the Coast in March, I felt that the season would be a distinct success if the Giants finished anywhere among the first three.

Looking back, I think the pennant hunch first struck me after a series with the Pirates late in May at the Polo Grounds. We beat 'em three straight and moved with those victories into a tie for the leadership.

The pitching of our young colts, Schumacher and Parmalee, in that engagement was what impressed me. I told myself:

"Say, you've got a real pitching staff, probably the best in the league. And pitching will win this race."

Along about that time, too, Blondy Ryan began to talk pennant. Blondy is light-hearted and chatty, and enthusiasm is natural w[illegible]m. His pennant talk was i[illegible] much conversation to the b[illegible] first, but as the season p[illegible] through a fairly succes[illegible]stern trip, they began to lis[illegible]ore attentively.

MOUNTAINEERS MAY NOT USE ECK ALLEN

By JESS CARVER

Lady Luck is a strange old gal, full of many (too many) whims and caprices. Tomorrow night, she'll be a'hovering over Forbes Field as the Dukes and West Virginia tie up in their annual ball game, counting, "eeney, meeney, miney, mo" over the rival elevens, and not certain herself which she'll favor.

Tomorrow's game looms as one likely to be decided by the breaks. Neither eleven figures to set any scoring record; indeed, it will not come as any great surprise if the boys wind up in a scoreless tie. But the Old Lady is just the type to put the finger on one man, making him either a hero or a goat and the difference between victory and defeat. You can't trust the Old Lady, she's fickle as the roll of dice.

SULLIVAN HERO

A year ago, little Red Sullivan put his foot to the pikskin and sent a perfect placement goal soaring between the uprights to give the Dukes a 3-to-0 victory. Previous to Red's goal, the Mountaineers looked like the best eleven, and had their thinking caps been set right, they'd have won the game with a touchdown, maybe two.

Yesterday's heavy rain interfered plenty with Coach Layden's plans. He took his squad indoors, working it in the gymnasium. If its muddy Friday night, the Dukes will be able to toss a pair of fine "mudders" at the Mountaineers in DeLuca and McDonald, both of whom can go on a sloppy terrain.

NEALE IN QUANDARY

Eck Allen's bum shoulder (he's the West Virginia quarterback) apparently is not responding to treatment as rapidly or as well as the Mountaineers desire and Coach Neale has announced that he'll keep him on the sidelines tomorrow night, substituting little Jimmy Scott.

Scott is no bigger than a minute, but he's heady and fast and a good passer. If he is used, Neale will have to sacrifice Tom Canich's blocking and defensive ability or Patsy Slate's running and punting strength to make room for the midget back. Canich plays Allen's quarterback position, and Scott will call signals from Slate's left halfback post.

Some of the boys who profess to, and really do know, are talking comparison between Izzy Weinstock, the present Pitt fullback, and Tom Parkinson, who battered opposing lines for the Panthers not so many y'ars ago.

IZZY HAS STUFF

Weinstock, forced to travel at top speed by the ambitious Dutch Weisenbaugh, had called up all his potential powers this fall and has been giving a truly fine exhibition of fullbacking. He's certain to start at the position against Wash-Jeff in the inaugural Saturday, which is not a break for Wash-Jeff.

Coach Jock Sutherland, unless he changes his mind between now and game time, will send the following lineup into the game with the Prexies:

Ends, Skladany and Rooker; tackles, Mereditch and Walton; guards, Hartwig and Onder; center, Shotwell; quarterback, Hogan; halfbacks, Sebastian and Nicksick, and fullback, Weinstock.

Hank Day's President squad suffered a blow yesterday when Nick Isaac, who had been converted into a quarterback from a center, suffered an injury to his side that will not only keep him out of the game with Pitt, but may make him a star member of the Wash-Jeff hospital corps for the entire season.

DAVE O'LOUGHLIN HEADS DISTRICT NET LIST

BROTHERS TOP ALL COMBINES IN DOUBLES

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Dr. Dave O'Loughlin, P. A. A. net captain, heads the third annual men's singles rating list of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association, according to announcement released today by Chairman Robert C. Schmertz of the P. T. A. ranking committee. The Winged Head leader succeeds his brother, Dr. John, who topped the procession in 1931 and 1932 and who this year accedes to Dave's old No. 2 post.

The elder O'Loughlins, paired together, likewise lead the doubles parade, with Dr. Dave and younger brother Billy coming next, the P. A. A. thus monopolizing masculine honors of the campaign.

WOMEN RANKED

The ranking group attempted this season for the first time to include women's singles and doubles and junior and boys' singles in their output. Mrs. Jean Artzberger stands at the fore of an abbreviated feminine contingent, while Miriam Sullivan of the P. A. A. and Margaret Carspecken Robinson, of Morgantown constitute the lone ladies' dual team noted. Dickie Dickson, Uniontown youth, and Oliver Hurst, Pittsburgh Country Club lad, are out front in the junior and the boys' divisions, respectively.

Dave O'Loughlin defeated Eikichi Itoh, Japanese Davis Cup player and seventh foreign contender, in the national singles championship at Forest Hills, this achievement being the outstanding Pittsburgh racquet performance of the past decade and undoubtedly swaying the balance in Dave's favor over brother John.

BROIDA IMPROVED

Frank Broida, whose fine play in annexing the Western Maryland title boosted him into the third notch, stands forth as the racqueter who advanced over his most signally '32 estimate. Frank Smith, Edgewood boss and conqueror of Broida in the West Penn tourney, likewise moved radically forward, fourth position rewarding him for excellent record.

Dope available for the women's and youngsters' slates was so meagre that these rankings are more or less experimental. It is hoped by the committee that addition of new tournaments will render this task less hazardous in 1934.

Frank S. McClintock of University Club and John D. Beatty, of Stanton Heights, collaborated with Chairman Schmertz in the job of working out the lists.

BUCS PRIMED FOR FINALE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

With Larry French and Ralph Birkofer pointed for pitching duty, the Pirates are in a very serious frame of mind concerning the two games with the Reds Sunday which are to wind up the season.

Second place money is the big prize that lures the Freebooters as the curtain drops. They can do no worse than split the runnerup cash with the Cubs if the Bucs win one of their two battles with the Reds. The Bruins then would have to win both their St. Louis engagements to finish in a tie for second place.

The Cardinals, moreover, could drop the Cubs into fourth place by winning their two engagements with Grimm's men.

Gibson used nearly all of his cast yesterday as the Pirates defeated New Bethlehem in an exhibition game. The score was 7 to 3. A big turnout of fans witnessed the contest. The score:

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: FREE RIDE TRAIN—This remarkable railway, on which one can travel 50 miles a day free of charge, is situated in Whittingham, Lanceshire, England, about five miles from Preston. It runs a distance of two miles between Grimsargh and Whittingham and was constructed about 50 years ago for the use of the staff of the Whittingham Mental Hospital. Many villagers of Goosnargh and Grimsargh take advantage of this "No Fare" system. A full-sized engine built a half century ago pulls the train. CONSTANCY OF CORRESPONDENCE—There are Believe It or Nots everywhere, but particularly in the Odditorium at Chicago. Here, in the person of C. W. Finney, assistant manager of the Believe It or Not Exhibition, I found one that was not really a part of the exhibit. Finney, who has been in the show business all of his life and away from home most of the time, has written a letter to his sister, Mrs. Howard Henry, of Aurora, Ill., every day for the last 20 years. That's a total of more than 7,300 letters!—and she has written him an equal number.

FIFTH AVENUE, WESTINGHOUSE MEET TODAY

GAMES TODAY

CITY LEAGUE

Section I

Fifth Avenue at Westinghouse.

W. P. I. A. L.

McDonald at Trinity.
*Rankin at Etna.
*Night game.

By JULIUS LEVIN

The race for the Section I championship of the City High School League was scheduled to get under way a day earlier than originally scheduled this afternoon when Coach Briggs' Fifth Avenue High School eleven tangles with Westinghouse on the latter's field in the Homewood-Brushton district.

Originally scheduled to open their championship race tomorrow, the Fifth Avenue-Westinghouse battle was moved up a day because of the Jewish holiday tomorrow and Saturday.

Westinghouse, coached by O. H. Burton, is the defending champion in Section I, and will take the field this afternoon a favorite to defeat the Red and White machine.

Fifth Avenue High is unfortunate that its football material of late has been far below the caliber of players reporting at other city schools. Last season the Fifth gridders went through their entire schedule without scoring a point. While this season's eleven is reported somewhat stronger, not much of an improvement is expected.

Two other games, originally carded for tomorrow, will be played today, one of them a night duel between Rankin and Etna at Etna and the other a day duel between Trinity and McDonald at Washington.

Benswanger Host To Scribes Tonight

This is the night of Bill Benswanger's big chowder party, or banquet of one sort or another, which he will toss for his sports writing friends as a parting shot for the baseball season of 1933. Bill is by way of being the president of the Pittsburgh Pirates, and is very popular with the scribes, who had him as a guest at their annual gathering last spring.

Mr. Benswanger

Tonight the Pirate chief gets his revenge by playing host to the writers. The affair is scheduled for 6:30 o'clock in the Pittsburgher Hotel.

Fight Results

At Philadelphia—Tommy Loughran defeated Jack Sharkey, 15 rounds; Jack McCoy and Frank Wetonski drew, 6 rounds; Don Petrin defeated Popper Stopper, 8 rounds; Addie Houghton won by technical knockout over Al White, 5 rounds; Obediah Walker won by technical knockout over Salvatore Ruggirello, 3 rounds.

YOUNG STARS NEAR FINALS

NEWTON SQUARE, Pa., Sept. 28.—(AP.)—Two of golfdom's young guard share the spotlight today in the semi-finals of the first Pennsylvania women's golf championship tourney.

They are Edith Quier, of Reading, Pa., and Frances Williams, of Allentown, Pa., and both may have a shot at the title.

Miss Quier, whose uninterrupted march has been a feature of the tournament, meets Mrs. Clarence H. Vanderbeck, of Philadelphia, only survivor of three former national champions who started match play, in one of the semi-finals.

Yesterday, Miss Quier eliminated Mrs. Conyers Button, of Philadelphia, 4 up and Miss Williams put out Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, 6 and 4.

But what about cigars? Do you look for—and expect—a dealer to cut his price on the cigar you smoke? If so—we ask you to consider these facts.

Within recent months—the living conditions of two great groups in the cigar industry have been improved. The tobacco farmers—who are being cared for through the Processing Tax. The employees of cigar manufacturers—who are getting higher wages and working less hours.

The price your dealer asks for a cigar is a fair price—and represents a living income to the farmer—to the cigar plant employee—to the dealer himself . . three important links in the chain of service to you.

When you ask the dealer to cut this price—you are asking him to cut his own salary. You are asking him to give you the profit he must rely upon to support his business and his family.

Is it right . . is it just . . for any smoker to expect and to accept this sacrifice?

Bayuk and other cigar manufacturers—with the cooperation of retail dealers—are today giving you greater cigar-value than ever in history.

Bayuk believes the cigar smokers of America will recognize the retail dealer's right to a fair profit. We ask your support in freeing the dealers from this price-cutting evil.

The Pittsburgh football Pirates have their first National Professional League victory to their credit today and the fans are acclaiming the brilliant doings of two local boys.

Before 6,000 fans at Forbes Field last night, the Pirates nosed out the Chicago Cardinals, 14 to 13, thanks to two perfect placement goals for the points after touchdown by the veteran Mose Kelsch and a consistently fine performance in the backfield by little Jimmy (Boo) Clark, who fullbacked at Pitt in 1929, '30 and '31.

CLARK IS STAR

The play of Clark, Kottler, Brovelli and Mose Kelsch stood out as the locals refused to be downed by bad breaks, and outplayed, outgamed and outscored the Cards.

It looked as if the intercepted pass jinx was again going to down the Pirates. The locals were putting the steam roller to work and had scored three first downs when McNally, the Cards' center, intercepted a lateral pass and ran 50 yards for a touchdown.

Joe Lillard, star Negro halfback, missed the try for the extra point, but it was about the only thing he did miss all evening. He played a whirlwind game, was a constant threat on the offense, passed well and handled the job of safety man on the defense to perfection.

In the second period, he tossed a long pass to Moe, the other halfback, who caught the ball in the end zone for a touchdown. This time Lillard's extra point attempt was good.

PIRATES SCORE

The Cardinals' attack functioned in fine fashion as the first half drew to a close and the ball had been advanced to the Pirates' four-yard stripe when Jim Bausch attempted a pass out into the flat, a dangerous and risky procedure at any time. It was intercepted by Butch Kottler, and behind fine interference, the Pirate back scampered 95 yards for the score.

Then the veteran product of the local sandlots, Mose Kelsch, got his chance, and booted a perfect kick for the extra point.

The third period found the Pirates' defense wobbling and the game nearly was lost when a lateral went astray. The Cards fumbled, after obtaining possession of the ball, Oehler recovering for the locals, and the passing combination of Tanguay to Moss functioned twice in the final drive for the second touchdown.

PASS BRINGS VICTORY

With the ball on the Cards' nine-yard line, the Pirates twice were thrown for losses. On fourth down, Tanguay cut loose with a bullet throw that Moss took between the posts. Kelsch was given another opportunity to fill the hero role and he came through.

The Pirates looked far better than they did in the game against the Giants. Clark and Brovelli played great football. The punting was improved, Tesser getting away some good kicks.

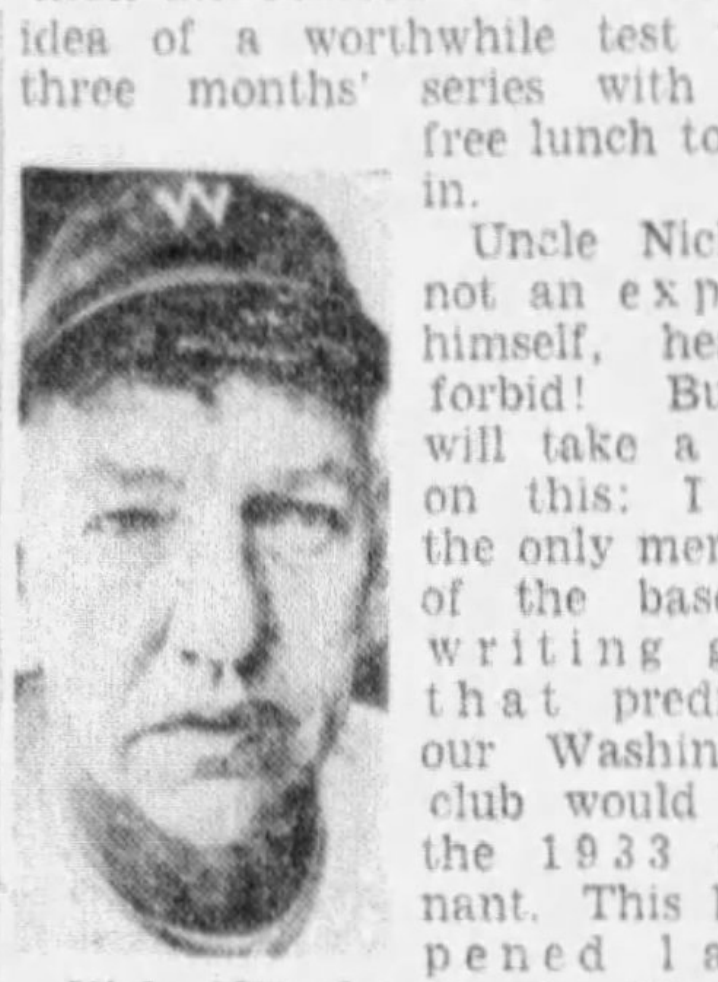
CRAWFORDS IN SERIES

With the second half title of the Negro National Baseball League at stake, the Pittsburgh Crawfords and the Nashville Giants will clash at Greenlee Field at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the first game of a three-game series. A doubleheader will be played at the Cleveland Stadium on Sunday.

Choice of the Experts, Nats Are Skeered

By NICK ALTROCK

Well, folks, for today's world series essay, I analyze the experts and rip 'em apart to see what makes 'em tick. Because an expert is a queer article of literary commerce. It's the expert who dopes out which world series team is strongest and then announces that don't go for a short series. An expert's idea of a worthwhile test is a three months' series with the free lunch tossed in.



Nick Altrock

Uncle Nick is not an expert himself, heaven forbid! But I will take a bow on this: I am the only member of the baseball writing guild that predicted our Washington club would win the 1933 pennant. This happened last March. Under the influence of a chocolate ice cream soda, I wrote and told my readers the Senators were a sure-fire bet. I did not have the nerve to retract this the next day, so I stand before the public here and now as the only genius to figure the American League race out right.

WRONG ALL THE WAY

On the other hand, it looked like all the other soothsayers stenciled their 1932 stories and used 'em again last spring. They all looked in the crystal ball and saw the Yankees. In fact, the Yanks were going to be so far out ahead it would take 600 light years to come to the second team in the race.

In the National League they read the tea leaves wrong, too. They figured the flag was a sort of tri-color to be scissored up amongst the Pirates, Cards and Cubs. They figured the Giants would finish in the Holland Tunnel.

So, adding two and two together, they got nothing. And that is why the only thing our Washington club fears is the experts. We snicker at Hubbell's screw ball, smile at the rest of the pitching staff and chortle at the Giants' sluggers. But we fear the experts. Because, you see, the experts favor us to win the series.

CONSISTENTLY WRONG

And can you blame us? Among other recent triumphs of the experts are these:

1—They predicted Germany and Austria would win the World War.

2—They predicted United States Steel would go to 300 by January, 1930.

3—They predicted "Abie's Irish Rose" would close the first week.

6—They predicted radio was only a fad like mah jong.

MAYBE THEY'LL RECANT

However, our Washington club has not given up hope yet. Between now and next Tuesday, the experts may hit the opium pipe again and come out of their stupor with the Giants written on the wall.

We certainly hope this will happen. But, if the prophets keep on picking our club right down to the home stretch, we are sunk good and plenty—unless the experts are giving the nation a new deal, too.

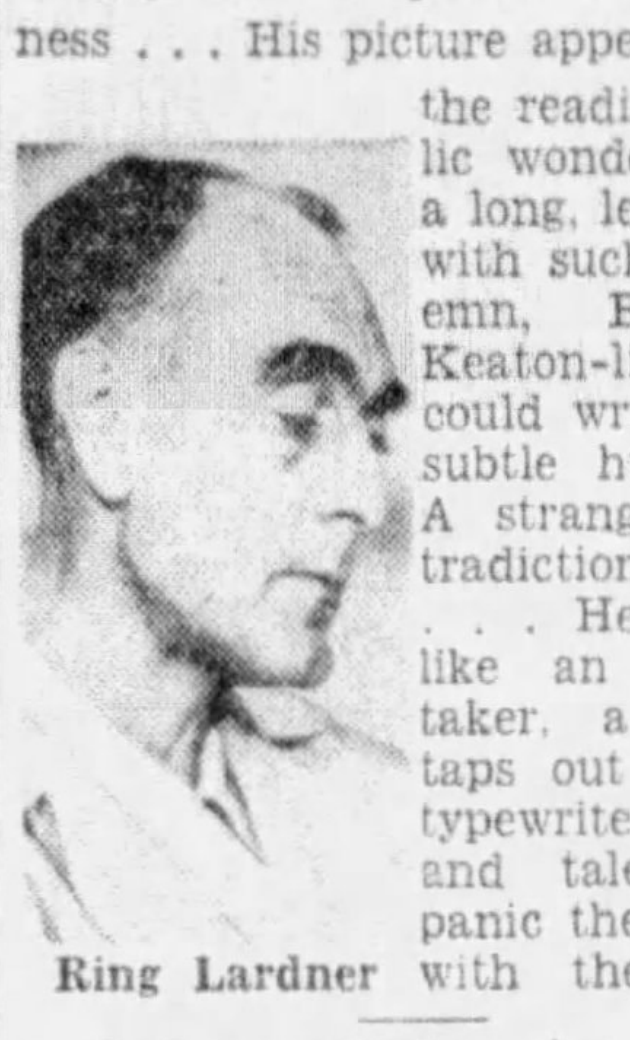
SPORT VIGNETTES

Two decades ago . . . A young baseball writer flits like a meteor across the literary sky into sudden popularity as the author of screamingly funny stories about baseball players . . . "Letters of a Busher," he calls them . . . They catch the popular fancy, and stamp the name of Ring Lardner indelibly on the public consciousness . . . His picture appears and the reading public wonders how a long, lean man with such a solemn, Buster Keaton-like face could write such subtle humor . . . A strange contradiction he is . . . He looks like an undertaker, and he taps out on his typewriter words and tales that panic the nation with their wit.



Ring Lardner

And now that genius of the written word lies still in death . . . There was only one Ring Lardner . . . He had many imitators, no peers . . . Veiled behind his delicate humor was a keen understanding of human nature . . . He was a debunker, a satirist of purest ray serene, who cut through sham with a laugh . . . Purposely he twisted and misspelled words, and even the most illiterate appreciated him, while the intelligentia applauded him . . . His success lay in the fact that he made even the most ordinary reader feel superior to the puppets he depicted . . . "What dumb clucks they are," was the reaction to his characters, and yet the great short story writer actually was limning the foibles of the reader himself and his fellows with the artistry of a master.

There is the story of the copy reader on a newspaper, unfamiliar with Lardner's style in his early days, who was given one of the humorist's stories to prepare for publication, hot off the wire . . . Long and diligently he pored over his task, correcting spelling, reshaping sentences, and, finally, when he had finished, he remarked: . . . "Whew! And they pay good money to send a bird like that to cover the world series!" . . . A carbon copy of the original had to be dug up to save the day.

One of Lardner's most delightful bits of humorous reporting was done on one of Sir Thomas Lipton's unsuccessful bids to win the America's Cup . . . Not once in the entire series of races did he refer to the racing craft as yachts . . . Instead he wrote of them as rowboats, scows, barges, schooners, etc., and most of the series was written from the viewpoint of a man below deck on the press boat, depending upon reports from above . . . And what fun he had telling of the becalming of the contestants!

All life was a joke to Ringold Wilmer Lardner until the ravages of tuberculosis, from which he suffered for 10 years, began to exact their toll . . . Even then the outside world didn't know . . . A Pagliacci to the end . . . Even ironic Fate laughed at, or with, him when Death claimed him almost on the eve of another of those world series he loved so well . . . The Busher has gone home, at the premature age of 48, but the characters he created will remain with us so long as books are read and baseball endures.

Elmer Vorderburg, who played a decent game at halfback for Carnegie Tech several years ago, but dropped out of the picture last year, has had a career filled with misfortunes that would stop a less stout-hearted lad . . . Two years ago, he fought his way to a place on the first team. Last year, he suffered a knee injury which left him helpless, and he was not even a member of the squad. However, he helped coach the freshmen, and did his bit wherever he could . . . The Tartan athletic authorities figured his athletic days were over, but last summer he returned to his home in Toledo determined to come back. He was short of funds, but he got a surgeon to perform an operation, spent weeks in a hospital, painted the hospital to work out his bill and turned up at Tech's training camp as sound as ever . . . And don't bet that he won't be in there when Tech opens with Temple at the Stadium Saturday of next week.

Tech football players call Steve Terebus, latest halfback sensation, Sputzie, which is the small boy's term for a sparrow . . . Terebus is just about as big as a sparrow . . . During one of the early scrimmages, one of the opposing players said: "The Bible says something about 'seeing the sparrow fall,' but I'll be darned if I've seen that one fall yet this morning!"—HARRY KECK.

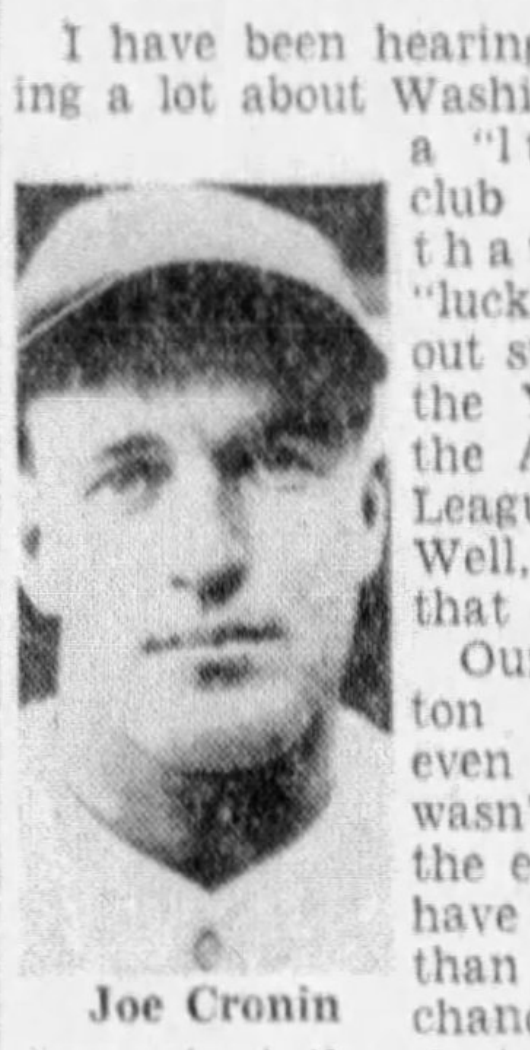
CRONIN DENIES CLUB 'LUCKY' CHAMPION

By JOE CRONIN

Manager, Washington Senators, 1933 American League Champions

I have been hearing and reading a lot about Washington being a "lucky" ball club this year, that it was "lucky" to beat out such a club as the Yankees for the American League pennant. Well, I can't see that at all.



Joe Cronin

Our Washington ball club, even though it wasn't picked by the experts to have much better than a fighting chance for the pennant at the start of the season, was much stronger than rated, I figured at the time.

I knew our club had the defensive strength. I was fairly confident it would hit well and I had great faith in the rebuilt pitching staff. And when we broke the Yankees' seven-game winning streak back in April—we were the first club to beat them in the season—I felt we would give them a great fight all the way. And so did all of the players with me.

THE TURNING POINT

I don't consider that our success is due to any Yankee collapse. The Yankees have played great ball all of the way. But we have been a better ball club. I think we proved that in losing only one of the six series we played with them up to the time we clinched the pennant.

I have been asked often recently when our club really became convinced it was a sure-fire pennant club. I'll tell you. It was the second week in August when we played four games with the Yankees in New York, moved on to Boston for three games with the Red Sox, then jumped back to Washington for another game with the Yankees.

When we went into New York we were leading the league by three games. But the players weren't talking pennant. Our club played a doubleheader in Yankee Stadium the first day and lost both games. Lost them in the last inning, too. And our lead was cut to one game.

CLUB RETAINS SPIRIT

But our club didn't lose heart. We went back at the Yankees to take the next two games and even the series. Then we cleaned up the three games in Boston and beat the Yankees in the game in Washington.

With those six wins in eight games, we went West for the last time carrying a league lead of five and one-half games and confident nothing could stop us.

SHARKEY MAN BEATEN BY LOUGHRAN

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 28.—(AP.)—It can be marked down today that the fighting career of Jack Sharkey, stormy petrel of the heavyweights for almost 10 years, is over, and in the same breath there's no telling where 31-year-old Tommy Loughran is going to wind up.

In Baker Bowl last night, home of the down-trodden Phillies, Sharkey came to the end of the trail. Tommy Loughran pecked his eyes with left jabs through 15 rounds, stood up under a terrific body bombardment, grinned back courageously from a blood-stained face, and in the end won the decision, though the officials barely gave it to him.

But there was no question in Sharkey's mind. He said:

"Tommy won all right."

The crowning blow was a right-hand punch Tommy flung into Sharkey's face in the tenth round, a desperate smash that landed on the bridge of the former heavyweight champion's nose, and to the gleeful amazement of a crowd of less than 10,000, knocked Sharkey to his knees, stunned him, though he came up without a count.

It was an evening of sweet triumph for Loughran, even though he got no pay and the gate receipts scarcely covered the $25,000 guarantee paid Sharkey. Four years ago, when a heavyweight title chance was at stake, Sharkey stormed into Tommy in the third round of a battle in the Yankee Stadium, whipped an overhand right into the head of a boxer who should have laughed at such an unorthodox punch, and stretched him on the canvas.

NEW YORK BOUT STANDS

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—(INS.)—Despite Tommy Loughran's decision over Jack Sharkey, Madison Square Garden today planned to have Sharkey fight the winner of the Patsy Perroni-Don McCorkingdale bout scheduled for October 9.

Matchmaker Jimmy Johnston today said he thought Sharkey should have had the decision over Loughran and therefore would put him on with either Perroni or McCorkingdale October 31.

SHUTE, DUDLEY WIN MATCH

Under conditions that disheartened the small gallery that watched the match, Densmore Shute, British open champion, teamed with Ed Dudley, professional at Atlanta, Ga., yesterday to defeat Nelson Zimmerman, of the Wildwood Country Club, and Emil Loeffler, professional at Oakmont, 3 and 2, in a four-ball, best ball match at Wildwood.

sional football team. When the trusty foot of old Mose Kelsch, called in as a pinch kicker twice in the game and making good both times booted home the important point that brought a 14-to-13 victory over the Chicago Cardinals in last night's thriller at Forbes Field, it climaxed a great uphill fight in which Art Rooney's Pirates showed a most gratifying improvement, though naturally at such an early stage of the season the work of both teams was faulty at times.

Both good football and plenty of fighting spirit were required to rush from behind and overcome a lead of 13 points, and the locals did not fail in either direction while completely cutplaying and outwearing the visitors in the second half. The kicking was immeasurably better than in the first game, and so was the rushing attack. The passing still can stand improvement, and yet it was a fourth-down heave that carried the locals through to victory.

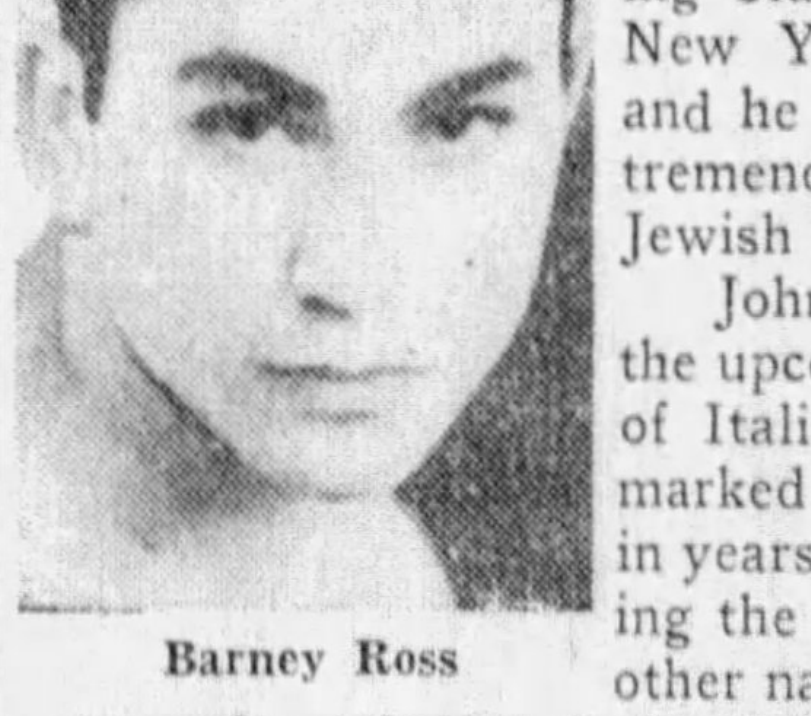
CLOSE FIGHT MAY LET SHARKEY LINGER

Jack Sharkey's defeat at the hands of Tommy Loughran in Philadelphia last night, in Pennsylvania's first legalized 15-round fight, following the beating adminstered by King Levinsky, ordinarily would have ended the fomer heavyweight champion's attempted comeback. It would appear that if Sharkey can't beat Loughran, who also has seen his best days, he might as well give up his comeback as a bad job.

However, the closeness of the fight, the split decision, and the fact that Loughran was failing so fast at the finish that he might not have been able to last another round, may force fandom to endure Sharkey's hanging around a while longer. Jack may get another match with Loughran or somebody else out of his strong finish, even though there is no public demand for him and he'll get no more $25,000 guarantees.

DECREASE IN NUMBER OF JEWISH BOXERS

With Barney Ross topping the lightweight division, and Maxie Rosenbloom heading the light heavyweights, the Jewish race boasts world champions in two of the eight regular classes of the boxing game. That would appear to be a very creditable showing, but Johnny Attell complains that not enough younger Jewish boys are coming up in the ring sport. Attell is matchmaker for the Ridgewood Grove Sporting Club, one of the few small clubs in New York to survive the depression, and he observes that there has been a tremendous falling off in the number of Jewish fighters throughout the country.



Barney Ross

Johnny says he finds that most of the upcoming youngsters of promise are of Italian descent and that there is a marked scarcity of Jewish boys, whereas in years gone by the Hebrew lads climbing the grade far outnumbered those of other nationalities. While several other reasons have been advanced for the shortage, Attell's theory is that the new generation of American-born parents of Hebrew descent discourage their sons from taking up such a strenuous game as boxing for a livelihood, especially if they suffered hardships themselves in their younger days.

STOCK MARKET REGAINS PART OF LOSSES

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Financial markets marched to slow music today, stepping cautiously in paths cluttered with fiscal uncertainties and industrial recovery problems.

Stocks got back some of their rather severe losses of the previous session, but the trading activity turned extremely dull on the intermittent rallies. Public participation was at a minimum. Professional floor traders accounted for most of the fluctuations. Grains, cotton and other commodities were hesitant and somewhat lower in the early hours. Here, too, buyers and sellers appeared a bit befogged by recurrent rumors of the government's attitude toward inflation and sound money. Bonds shifted about in an uneven range. The dollar was steady to firm in foreign exchange transactions.

Shares of Allied Chemical and United States Smelting got up about 3 points each and National Distillers, which will be "ex" a whisky dividend on Monday, also gained about 3. Others up fractionally to a point or more included American Telephone, United States Steel, Case, Chrysler, General Motors, Consolidated Gas, Johns-Manville, Westinghouse, Du Pont, Western Union, American Smelting, Public Service of New Jersey, New York Central, American Commercial Alcohol and Standard Oil of New Jersey.

In supposedly well-informed brokerage circles it was reported that the so-called "smart money" has been out of the market for the past two weeks or more and apparently is waiting for clarification of the administration's monetary policies before returning to the fray. Many large operators, it is said, have even left the city and a number are traveling abroad. There has been a mild revival of short selling by some speculators, but this, generally, is of the "in-and-out" variety. The more important traders, while not especially bullish, are seemingly quite timid taking any sizable long-term bear position.

Market analysts, for the moment, are busily engaged in figuring out the possibilities of credit and currency expansion. In some inflationist quarters it is argued that money in circulation could be increased substantially without deviating from sound banking principles.

In line with this reasoning it is recalled that gold holdings of the federal government are now only slightly below the record high for any country in the world. These holdings, totaling some $4,327,000,000 at the statutory price of $20.67 a fine ounce, it is contended, would support roughly $17,300,000,000 of currency on the theory of a 25 per cent metallic coverage. At the present price of newly-mined gold of around $30 an ounce, fixed by the Treasury for export purposes, it is estimated that $26,000,000,000 in currency could be supported. This huge aggregate would be about 4.6 times the $5,605,000,000 of money which is now in circulation.

WHEAT TAKES SHARP DIP

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—Decided downturns in grain prices early today followed news that conferences at London to fix a quota for Russian wheat exports had proved unsuccessful. Russian offerings of wheat today were reported 2⅛ cents a bushel cheaper in Liverpool. Opening ½ to 1⅝ cents down, Chicago wheat futures declined further afterward. Corn started ½ to 1 cent off and subsequently underwent an additional setback.

A fall of 2 cents a bushel in wheat as compared with yesterday's finish was soon witnessed. Corn and oats ruled lower with wheat, as did provisions.

'Don't Sell 'Em on Strikes' Adage Has Street In Quandary

The spread of labor unsettlement is unquestionably proving one of the principal deterrents to resumption of active speculation for the rise in the markets. One of Wall street's oldest rules admonishes against selling the market on strike news. But conditions surrounding the situation today are far removed from those operating in past instances. Labor is occupying a much different position under the operation of the NRA, for example, than it would under ordinary conditions.

Strength and increased activity in federal issues yesterday brought reports of expansion by the Reserve in its open market operations in accordance with plans of the administration to speed up credit expansion. These stories suggested that Reserve reports shortly would show the rate of its operations in governments had been stepped up to approximately double the recent $35,000,000 weekly increase of its holdings. Government security circles, however, were disposed to doubt anything of the sort had occurred. Rather they expressed the view that the "wish was father to the thought," declaring bonds would not have been easier today if that were the case.

Pivotal stocks, it is shown in a tabulation made by one firm, are far removed from the year's high levels, perhaps more so than generally realized. At yesterday's closing declines ranged from about 4¾ points in Texas Corporation to as much as 23⅛ points in Consolidated Gas. New York Central and Steel common each was ruling 21½ points under its best level.

Growth of the gold bullion holdings of the Bank of England since the turn of the year have been considerable. On January 11 last, the bank's gold holdings were £120,544,105, whereas the latest statement available today shows gold held by the bank in the amount of £191,763,000. This is an indicated rise of £71,221,895 in about the last eight months. Naturally the major expansion has taken place since last April when the United States abandoned the gold standard forcing floating wealth which hitherto had found lodgement here to safekeeping elsewhere. While the bank has been a steady purchaser of gold in the London open market, no small part of the rise in its gold holdings is accounted for by flight of capital from our shores.

While there have been fairly numerous margin calls recently, most houses report that this type of selling should not be as pronounced as recently. The new margin requirements have kept most accounts from being shaken-out drastically and houses have insisted that accounts be kept within the new margin provisions. In some cases they have sent out calls for as little as $100 in order to strictly enforce the rules.

Winthrop W. Aldrich, president of the Chase National Bank, New York, returning from a two-month trip abroad, said the reaction in Europe toward NRA, especially in England, was one of keen interest and that hope is expressed on all sides that the experiment would succeed. Everyone is entirely sympathetic toward President Roosevelt's recovery efforts. Mr. Aldrich felt quite optimistic about the NRA and seemed to be very hopeful of the outcome of the experiment.

OKLAHOMA CITY POOL WIDENED

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 28.—Completion last night of Russell Petroleum Company's well No. 1 Highley, in wild-cat territory, about a mile northeast of the state capitol and at the edge of the city limits, proves an extension of the Oklahoma City field for more than two miles to the north. The estimated capacity of the well is 500 to 1,000 barrels daily. Standing as an obstacle to a campaign of new drilling through the entire east side of Oklahoma City, including one of its best residential districts, however, are city ordinances prohibiting drilling for oil within areas not zoned for oil. Production from the new well seems to be coming from a different sand than in the city field proper and if so, the area might have to be listed by the State Corporation Commission as a fifth common source of supply in this district.

U. S. TO LIMIT WHEAT LOANS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Co-operating with the Farm Administration's efforts to secure a 15 per cent reduction in wheat acreage, Governor Morgenthau, of the Farm Credit Administration, announced that wheat production loans to farmers will be limited.

The Regional Agricultural Credit Corporation and seed and crop production loan offices will limit financing of wheat seeding to 85 per cent of a borower's average anual acreage of winter wheat based on the last four years. This financing will be limited to 85 per cent of the average regardless of whether the borrowing farmer has signed a wheat control contract or not, according to Morgenthau.

LOCAL MARKET MOVEMENTS NARROW

Trading volume diminished noticeably on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today as the "big board" developed rallying power under the influence of moderate short covering and reinstatement of long holdings sold out earlier in the current reaction. Some observers were cautiously bullish on the general market situation, basing their attitude on the fact that prices have had a rather severe set-back over the past two weeks or so. Yesterday's drop in industrial stocks averages was far deeper than in the rails and utilities. Ability of the rails to ward off the selling was considered favorable from the "chart" standpoint.

COTTON BARELY STEADY, OFF

December eased to 9.96 or about 4 points net lower, but the market was steady and within a point either way of yesterday's close at the end of the first half hour.

At midday December was holding around 9.98c and May 10.38c, with the general list showing net losses of 2 to 4 points.

European Copper Demand Improves

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—Cables reports show good buying of copper abroad to a range of 8 to 8.075c a pound c. i. f. Hamburg, Havre and London. European buyers seem to have more confidence in the situation abroad than last week and have begun to buy with more determination.

Soft Coal Output Higher Last Week

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—The National Coal Association estimates bituminous coal production in the United States for the week ended September 23, as about 6,850,000 net tons. Production for the like week of 1932 was 6,325,000 tons, and for 1931 was 7,510,000 tons.

Government Plans Big Lumber Orders

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—The government will order 250,000,000 feet of lumber within 30 days for construction work at 1,466 winter camps of the civilian conservation corps, Director Fechner announces.

OUTLOOK MORE HOPEFUL FOR OIL IN WEST

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 28.—Western ideas prevailed in the drawing up of the oil code, and accordingly leaders of the industry here are hopeful concerning the new outlook.

Mr. Rukeyser

Oscar Sutro, vice president of the Standard Oil Company of California, who has been appointed regional administrator, in chatting with me, pointed out that the outlook for the petroleum industry is better than it has been in years. He said that the code permitted the rational co-operation among competitors in respect to controlling output and price which in former years he had hoped to attain through congressional amendment of the anti-trust laws.

An advocate of price fixing, Mr. Sutro said that the experience of California in the last two years showed that mere mechanical balancing of supply against demand had not prevented demoralization. The reason for this, he indicated, was that at times demand represented purchases to go into storage, rather than into immediate consumption, and that at other times this oil came out of storage and reduced the demand for current production.

WOULD FIX PRICE

Mr. Sutro would fix the crude price at a figure which would permit a small profit for the marginal producers. He agreed that of necessity that would mean a handsome profit for the more efficient producers, but added that he didn't see how that could be avoided unless you wanted monopoly.

Mr. Sutro indicated that there had already been frequent violations of the code, and that he thought that the government ought to go all the way and license businesses. Then, he suggested, violators could be padlocked for a period. He thought such enforcement more practical than attempting to put violators into jail.

DECISIVE INFLUENCE

Mr. Sutro's classic speech on price fixing at the code hearing at Washington last month proved a decisive influence.

Mr. Sutro insisted that the industry be given "the means it needs to pay the labor bill which we all think should be paid and should be put in force."

He added:

"Now this is an industrial recovery act. It is not a labor statute. No one quarrels with the labor provisions of this act in their general aspects, or with the purposes of the administration, but they think you have flinched—and I say it with a great respect—we think you flinched on the economic question which we believe the administrator of the United States of this statute should face and solve, and by that I mean the price question."

I think the general situation would be helped if more emphasis were placed on the profit building aspects of the National Recovery Act.

Three outstanding bankers here told me that they are in sympathy with the idea of deposit insurance, which will go into effect on January 1.

BID FOR NEW YORK BUSINESS

The Los Angeles and San Francisco exchanges have prepared statistics showing how much cheaper it is to buy competitive stocks—stocks traded in both here and in New York—on the West Coast than in New York.

Incidentally, brokers here say that the New York Exchange was not a New York City activity, but a national market. Accordingly, they think it unfair to tax outsiders for the support of the municipal government.

EXECUTIVE'S ARGUMENT

Ross Ambler Curran, an executive of the San Francisco Stock Exchange, told me that he thought local stocks were undervalued compared with stocks listed in New York because of the restricted sphere of interest in them.

His argument runs as follows:

"California is growing several times faster in population and surplus wealth per capita than the United States as a whole. Its agricultural, industrial and financial institutions are developing proportionately.

"Therefore it would seem that there are among the stocks listed on our exchange not only in the 'competitives' (the stocks listed here and in New York), but also among those as yet not nationally known, investment opportunities comparably superior to others less favorably placed, and, what is more important, less exploited marketwise."

The largest newspaper publicity campaign on any one product in their history was inaugurated today by the Atlantic and Pacific stores in order to introduce to the country three coffees appearing in new packages. The new style coffee packages will appear in 16,000 of the company stores.

Officials of the company said they have increased their wages more than $10,000,000 and added more than 10,000 to their payroll, due to the NRA.

BUREAU'S PRICE INDEX RISES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—(AP.)—Wholesale prices—the Labor Department's gauge of the cost of living—reached a higher point during the week ended September 23 than in any similar period this year.

The index figure, taking 1926 as 100, was 71.5, an increase of 20 per cent since March 4, when the index dropped to 59.6.

The week was the first since January, 1932, when the first calculation of the Bureau of Labor Statistics was made, that all 10 of the major groups showed an increase. The figure for the week ended September 16 was 70.5.

Increases in farm prices were responsible for most of the gain, rising more than 6 per cent with grains, livestock and cotton leading.

The 10 major groups include 784 separate price series weighted according to relative importance. Manufactured food and textile prices each gained more than 1 per cent.

France Cuts Food Quotas From U. S.

PARIS, Sept. 28.—(AP.)—Further drastic quota restrictions issued today are likely to curtail imports into France from the United States and Latin-America, particularly Argentina.

The ministry of agriculture radically cut quotas on foodstuffs for the fourth quarter of the year. As an example, the total imports of apples and pears were reduced from 68,000,000 pounds to 26,000,000 pounds, which is slightly above the present quota, from the United States alone.

Other foodstuffs hit include meat, grain and butter.

Forbes

Sees Return Of Installment Buying Soon

By B. C. FORBES

THE NEXT notable development in business may be revival of installment-buying.

Millions of families, some from choice and some from necessity, have let almost everything they own and use run down — furniture, floor covering, bed supplies, clothes, shoes, tableware, radios, ornaments, refrigeration, musical instruments, toilet articles, everything.

Mr. Forbes

As soon as it becomes generally accepted that America is definitely headed in the right direction, many families who have frozen on to their savings, and restricted purchases to the sheerest necessities, are likely to resume rational spending, rational living.

Long-idle breadwinners who have been restored to employment, in pressing need of many things, will naturally turn to installment-buying to enable them to establish something approaching a bearable standard of living.

Whereas it had been widely predicted during the boom that a spell of depression would absolutely ruin installment enterprises, the records have proved astonishingly satisfactory. The mortality among installment houses, so far as is known, has been no greater than among other lines of business, as a whole.

NRA, LIKE every widespread innovation, entails in its working-out hardships upon some. This is inevitable. All that can be done—and less should not be done—is to exercise patience and magnamimity in striving to iron out obstacles.

My barber has just been reciting his problem. He had two old men who were perfectly satisfied to work on special terms, terms which enabled them to retain a fair proportion of what they actually earned.

As soon as he adopted the Blue Eagle, he could no longer legally maintain his arrangement with them. Result: one has already been dropped and the fate of the other is uncertain.

In order to make ends meet, the barber explains, each chair has to take in a certain amount weekly, enough not only to pay the man, but to pay a share of the rent, taxes, light and other overhead. Times being as they are, it is essential that each chair be manned by an employe young enough to do rapid work.

Here you have a real human problem.

I HEAR complaints that some employers regard the minimum wage prescribed under their NRA code as all it is necessary to pay, and that there is a disposition to release higher-paid workers—who can either quit or accept re-engagement at lower remuneration.

Let enough people, either employers or employes, attempt to "put over" unfair practices, to try to take advantage of others, and everybody in the land will find themselves at worse disadvantage than one relishes contemplating. This is a time for give-and-take, for conciliation, for consideration, for co-operation.

Gen. Johnson has become distinctly less bellicose.

SOME SHREWD investors are beginning to purchase the securities, including preferred shares, of utility companies that have been particularly pummelled and have either stopped or slashed dividends. They reason that the unloading of securities of good utility companies is being overdone.

Bonds of leading railroads now selling at 50 to 60 cents on the dollar are also being quietly accumulated on the theory that they possess merit as semi-speculative investments even should there be no further inflation and that their market value would logically rise should inflation become more pronounced.

Agitation for Genuine Money Inflation Increases

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

AGITATION FOR real monetary inflation has been growing during the past few months. Many business leaders believe that such a step will be necessary if further progress toward recovery is to take place.

In discussing inflation, it must be remembered that there are two kinds. There is price inflation. We had this in 1929 and the preceding years. We have had price inflation of certain commodities as well as of common stocks this year.

There is also monetary inflation which has not taken place in this country but which the President has been empowered to undertake.

Price inflation or deflation may take place without any change in the gold value of currency. Usually such changes are temporary. Monetary inflation involves a change in the gold value of paper currency. Such a change usually is lasting once a definite basis for stabilization is reached.

* * *

Roosevelt Holding Inflation in Reserve

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT was empowered to embark on real monetary inflation early in his administration. The measure passed by Congress was his own. It indicated that he wished to have inflationary powers in case they should become necessary. After the bank reopenings, business improved rapidly. It seemed quite likely that inflation would not be necessary. Little was heard about inflation possibilities during that time.

But since the beginning of August business has been on a downward trend. This slump conformed with seasonal precedents and at first it was not alarming. It has continued for such a long period, however, that it is causing unrest. Unless there is a change in the near future the success of the entire recovery program may be threatened. If the administration is to continue its recovery policies it must do something to replace the decline in production with an actual increase.

* * *

Inflation Policy Still Uncertain

AS LONG AS business was on the upgrade there was no reason why the administration should resort to actual monetary inflation. There was a chance that it would not be needed.

But the recent slump has changed the situation. As soon as the administration is convinced that further recovery is impossible without some form of stimulation, it is logical to expect that an actual policy of monetary inflation will be started.

This has been the reason for the increased discussion of inflationary chances during recent weeks and for the pressure placed on the administration for a definite indication of the policy to be followed.

FURTHER DROP IN PRICES OF STOCKS SEEN

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—As this is written, the stock market is dull and weak, with many stocks at levels which may be regarded as critical. Either they will be supported here, or sizeable declines are likely.

This is not a very helpful observation, but under prevailing conditions of business and monetary uncertainty, what can one say?

At least, it suggests great caution, both in making new commitments and in protecting present trading positions.

ADJUSTMENT NOT OVER

While I do see probabilities of a further inflationary rise eventually, it seems doubtful at the moment whether the current period of readjustment has been completed. We may, therefore, well consider the so-called resistance levels on the downside.

For the Dow-Jones "industrials," one can see resistance points at about 96, 92 and 88. The first has been broken. The second is near and is not very strong. So 88 is easily possible. A break through 88 might bring a dive to 75 or 80.

Perhaps more significant are individual cases. For example, American Can has broken a resistance level around 88¾. A decline to 83 would seem fairly probable.

Similarly, we find two significent levels, one under the other, for American Tobacco B and Du Pont, as follows: Tobacco, 85-79; Du Pont, 74½-66.

Other cases which seem important are: American Smelting at 119½, Union Pacific at 113-110, Atchison at 56, Chrysler at 41 and United States Steel at 47.

STEEL INDICATOR

The last case seems especially interesting. "Big Steel" was accumulated at 46-47 last May, the outlook for the industry is none too good. Should the stock now break through, it would be distinctly discouraging.

But should the market stay dull and hold at this level, it would be a favorable indication.

On the bear side, one notes some tendency during recent days for trading activity to increase on weakness, and vice versa. The rally early Tuesday failed. Sinking spells and breaks in individual issues are disturbing to sentiment. Evidently some stale bull accounts have been undergoing liquidation.

Speculative bonds have turned weaker. The rails have been under pressure. Commodities have shown weakness in important cases.

Business news is not stimulating. Labor troubles are hampering. Car loadings and electrical power production are not up to seasonal expectations. Oil production control is not working well yet.

On the other hand, whether you want it or not, it seems to me that we are still headed eventually for "currency inflation." And if this be true it is only a question of time before there is another rush for equities.

The latest clue which I observe is the report of a statement by Senator Bulkley of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee, that the issuing of non-interest bearing notes in exchange for government bonds would do no harm, if within "proper limits." He also said that in his opinion the dollar should not be revalued yet. These things he said after a talk with the President, although not claiming to represent Mr. Roosevelt's views.

DISTINCTION FUTILE

In my opinion, the distinction between "credit inflation" and "currency inflation" is now futile. Our currency is itself chiefly credit!

It is usual to have a let-down between the first rush of anticipated inflation and the final irrevocable plunge into it. We are now well along in such a let-down.

No one can tell how long this will last. All one can do is to watch market action, and keep one ear to the ground for Washington developments.

Gold From Earmark Shipped to Europe

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—(AP.)—The New York Federal Reserve Bank's daily gold statement showed exports from earmarked stock of $8,332,400 to France. There was also a shipment of $2,165,000 to Holland. This latter export, it was explained, was not from the federal bank's stock, but from a Dutch deposit in a commercial bank which had been previously earmarked. The reserve institution also reported an export of 18,493 fine ounces of newly mined gold.

Penthouse

By ARTHUR SOMERS ROCHE

tory of my life? I'll tell it to you some other time. Even an elevator man may have feelings. He may have a girl. Follow me? Now, what you do is give me a crack in the eye that makes it look as though you made me take you up here. Don't be gentle."

Lucky Escape

"Oke," he muttered. He grinned feebly. "Do as much for you sometime. Why-y-y, this'll buy plenty steak for the old optic."

He was still glancing with his good eye at the hundred-dollar bill that Durant had shoved in his hand as the latter was descending in the service elevator.

If Crelliman's gunmen lurked in the street around the corner Durant didn't see them, and as no one accosted him, that seemed conclusive evidence that they had not anticipated the contingency of his departure by any other elevator than the one which had taken him upstairs. Nevertheless, he didn't linger in the neighborhood. He was five blocks away before he felt certain that he was safe, at least for the moment, and dared reduce his extremely fast walk to a moderate pace.

Crelliman had evidently known that Durant was in the building. Then why hadn't he sent his men upstairs at once? Crelliman was not the kind of person to take a knockdown blow and delay revenge. It was funny, too, that, knowing Durant was in the building, the gangster should have enacted a scene with Sue which he could have guessed Durant would observe. Or did it please Crelliman to know that Durant was staring down at them, jealous, perhaps, of the gangster's rather intimate association with the girl who had jilted him?

Durant shook his head at this; it didn't ring true. Crelliman's men might have discovered Durant's presence in the Oklahoma Building and not yet notified their leader. Another puzzle became less opaque; attack on him in an apartment might give rise to police conjectures. If they knew he was in Murtoch's room, his death there might cause the police to ask what the famous private investigator was doing there.

The same question might reasonably be asked if Durant was killed in the Waxted apartment. But if Durant were killed on the sidewalk—well, Durant accepted gangsters as clients and might readily have become involved in a war between rival factions. And speculation amounted to little, anyway. All that counted was that the luckiest chance in the world had saved him from a violent end. His benefactions to the elevator man would not end with the hundred-dollar bill thrust into his hand a few minutes ago.

Durant Cautious

"Why wouldn't I be?" asked Durant cautiously. He had few illusions about Tony. Between their last conversation and the present moment Tony might have signed a peace treaty with Crelliman; might have told Crelliman's men where Durant could be found.

"There's plenty reason why you mightn't be all right," said Gazotti. "There were six of them hanging around the Oklahoma Building, and they all get their cakes from Crelliman. Do you think I'd let you take a chance on your own? I told two lads to be watching when you went into the Oklahoma Building, and they were there, all right. But along came half a dozen of Crelliman's hoods and my boys were lucky to get off with a couple of broken noses. I just got the word a few minutes ago, and I was about to go uptown and toss a pineapple right in Crelliman's face. Where are you? How did you get away?"

"Too long a story," replied Durant. "Where's that speak on Thirtieth street where Murtoch is supposed to be?"

"What do you mean supposed, Mr. Durant?" The gangster's voice was a triumph of good faith that was misunderstood. "Why, Mr. Durant, you'd think your own father would double-cross you, wouldn't you?"

"If my father was a racketeer I'd know he'd double-cross me," replied Durant.

Over the wire came Tony's shrill giggle. "You know, you'll keep me on the square with you just to disappoint you. But you don't want to go to that speakeasy. Did you find out anything at Murtoch's?"

Gertie Gone

"No more than I knew when I went there," admitted Durant.

"It takes the middle of the night and a gal for you to find out those things that nobody knows they know, eh?" laughed Gazotti. "What are you going to do with Murtoch?"

"Look him over. He's a morphine addict. At least, I think so. I don't know him. Maybe he doesn't know me. Oh, I don't know what I want with him."

"North side of the street over a millinery shop. Middle of the block between Madison and Fifth. But Murtoch doesn't wear skirts, so how will you find out what he doesn't know he knows?"

"He knows he knows," smiled Durant. "Much obliged, Tony."

"Okay. I'll shoot a couple of lads up there. But I think you're nuts. It's a tough place."

He hung up, and then immediately called his own apartment. If Crelliman's men had routed two of Tony's followers, perhaps other Crelliman adherents had caused trouble to the man stationed outside the building where he had left Gertie Waxted.

Layton answered the telephone.

"I want to speak to Miss Waxted," said Durant.

"She isn't here," replied Layton.

"What do you mean? Didn't you get it through your head that she wasn't to leave my apartment?" cried Durant.

"Of course I did, sir. But when she picked up a bottle and threw it at me, and then picked up another bottle—well, she's a young lady with a will of her own. I did the best I could, Mr. Durant, but I'm not used to handling people like her."

Junior Patrol Mail Box

In the comic strip, you notice, Junior is trying to protect Spike and solve the trouble in the neighborhood by catching the real culprit. Junior's patrol is all sticking together.

That's the way every patrol should be. Be sure you're right first, of course, and then go ahead. Every member of a patrol ought to be good friends with every other member.

We wonder how many fellows are taking the proper care of their eyes. Eyesight is precious. Try to imagine, fellows, how terrible life would be if you couldn't see the stars brightening the sky, couldn't see your parents' faces, couldn't see your friends, or beautiful flowers or sunlight rainbowing through a prism! It's easy to take just seeing things for granted.

Many fellows never stop to think that they may be injuring their eyes permanently and endangering their eyes needlessly. For instance, we know a bunch of fellows who live in our neighborhood who think that it is great fun to throw weed-spears at each other, and even to shoot arrows. What if one of those spears strikes a boy in the eye?

No fooling, fellows, there are lots of ways to have fun without danger. If you want to fight, fellows, try putting on the gloves with your friends—don't throw spears.

Poor lights hurts the eyes, too. Fellows who like to read often forget and try to read fine print in poor dim light. If your eyes become strained, you will soon have to wear glasses and that isn't pleasant, fellows. But if you do need glasses, don't delay getting them. If you can't see well, have your parents take you to a doctor right away. It's worth while. Eyes can't be replaced or repaired like an automobile or a flashlight.

Please don't forget the orchestra, fellows. Send in your name and address for an audition. The orchestra will begin playing over the air soon.

How are things going, captains? It has been quite a while since we heard from some of you, and we are hoping that you have lots of new members in your clubs. Also, we would like to know how you are getting along and what parties and good times you are having. Most of all, we are anxious to know what you are doing to help others. Remember the pledge!

JUNIOR PATROL PLEDGE

I promise to help children less fortunate than I am,
I promise to do my best to make my parents proud of me.

CROSSING SIERRA NEVADA

Mountains and deserts were greater barriers to the conquest of California than the military opposition of Mexico. The hero in these struggles was Gen. John Charles Fremont, "Pathfinder of the Rocky Mountains."

In five expeditions he explored and surveyed the western portions of North America and was exposed sometimes to incredible hardships.

He cleared Northern California of Mexican troops and in 1847, as civil governor of that territory, concluded the articles concerning the cession of California by Mexico to the United States. (U. S. History)

CATHERINE THE GREAT ASSUMING THE IMPERIAL RANK (1762)

Ousting her husband, Peter III, Catherine seized power and reigned over Russia until her death in 1796. Some question her character, but none question her accomplishments. She expanded Russian territory into Poland and to the Black Sea. (Ellis: Story of the Greatest Nations)

THE VISION OF THE HOLY GRAIL

The Knight wins by purity and good deeds the sight of the Sacred Cup, from which Jesus drank at the Last Supper. The prose collection by Sir Thomas Malory in "Morte d'Arthur" (1470), gives account of this legend and chief Arthurian stories in poetic old English. (Bates: English Literature)

PURIFICATION OF SULPHUR

SULPHUR BY FRASCH PROCESS

Sulphur-bearing strata are found deep underground with salt domes. To melt the sulphur and lift it, four concentric pipes are lowered; superheated water (170° C., 100 lbs. pressure) and air are forced down; the sulphur rises in a frothy mixture, flows into wooden bins and cools, forming huge blocks of 99½% purity. THE RED PINE (Pinus Resinosa) (Gen. Science)

The red pine's needles grow in clusters of two, born in tufts; the staminate flowers in clusters have dark purple anthers. The scarlet pistiliate flowers bloom two or three in a whorl. The fruit is a scale-covered cone persisting until the following year. The scales thickened at the end contain the winged seeds. The range of the red pine is from Nova Scotia to Northern Pennsylvania. It is usually found on dry ridges and on sandy plains. The wood is soft, strong, elastic, but not durable (warps moderately) and is used for flooring, electric poles and masts. (Illick: Pennsylvania Trees)

WALLS AND THEIR PARTS (Gen. Science)

Walls are classified as bearing (which support the vertical load), retaining (which resist lateral pressure of earth or fill), and non-bearing (which support no load except own weight (e. g. spandrel, parapet, fire and partition walls). The bearing and retaining walls must be dimensioned in accordance to their load. Water table is a horizontal projection to deflect water; course is the continuous horizontal layer of masonry. Is Mental Cruelty Mental?

There is one complaint in divorce proceedings that we fail to comprehend enough to understand.

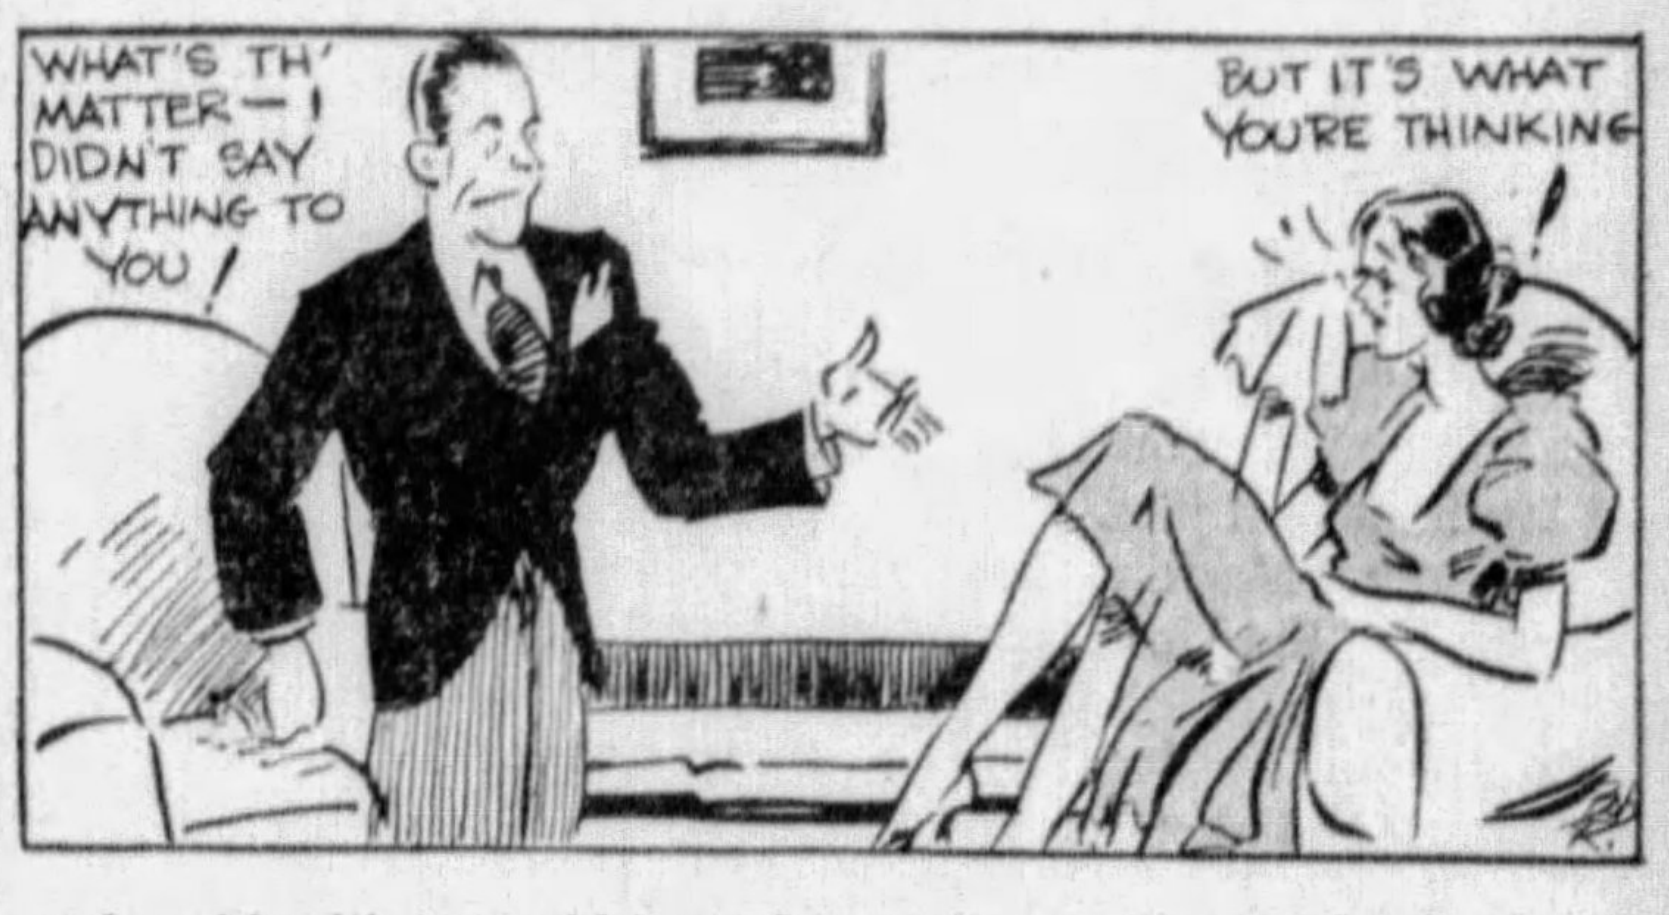
That's a charge as vague as fishing for sardines in the fog.

Why doesn't the gal stand up and say, "Judge, my husband is a gentleman and not my type?"

In order for a man to be guilty of mental torture he must first be capable of thinking. We believe we have defeated ourselves on the first point. Everybody seems capable of thinking enough to annoy some one else.

There are some types of husbands who look at their wives as if they were thinking of something they didn't have nerve enough to say. Just like the motorman who looked at the lady passenger as if she hadn't paid her fare. Now, there are looks that make you happy and there are looks that start indemnities.

Thinking is not cruel and unusual punishment except in legislatures and colleges. But no professor ever complained that a student's cerebral fermentations had undermined the professor's endowed health, caused him to lose caste, or self-respect, or reduced the real estate values adjacent to the university.



WHAT'S TH' MATTER - I DIDN'T SAY ANYTHING TO YOU!
BUT IT'S WHAT YOU'RE THINKING!

When a husband points to a girl on the beach and says, "Dearie, ain't that gal got a nice figure?" We are supposed to believe that he is mentally comparing the alien silhouette to his wife's outline of history.

Anyway, that's the way the wife accepts the lost, strayed and stolen compliment. She smacks him in the face with what's left of the picnic lunch, hollers police and goes home to her mother. Although the husband hasn't said a word about his wife's geographical contours she plasters him with a legal poster charging grief, torture and mental cruelty.

The jury instructs the judge that husbands should reserve their laudatory criticisms for the domestic shrine, the home hearth and the two-car garage. She gets a divorce and a chunk of alimony every month that is better than a license to steal.

All because the sun was shining, the ocean was calm, life was worth living, the girls were pretty and the husband had two good eyes which were promptly blackened.

And not because mental cruelty involved the man's thinking. But because he spoke without thinking.

Federal Police Work

The Capture of "Machine Gun" Kelly Demonstrates the Desirability of a National Scotland Yard.

Since the trial of the Urschel kidnapers began at Oklahoma City, several death letters have been received by witnesses.

These letters were signed boldly with the name of George "Machine Gun" Kelly, notorious fugitive in the case, and in some instances the letters were insolently marked with Kelly's fingerprints.

The threats did not deter the course of justice. Under strict federal surveillance the trial has proceeded with machine guns in the hands of the guards, and Kelly, meanwhile, has been sought from state to state.

One day he was glimpsed in the Northwest. Another day he was reported in Chicago. Again, his automobile was recognized somewhere else. But each time Kelly—if really there at all—had fled the borders before the state or local authorities could lay hands on him.

Agents of the United States Department of Justice trailed him to Memphis.

Reinforced by local police they surrounded the house where Kelly and their companions slept.

They were prepared for him—and Kelly dropped his pistol and surrendered.

Here again we have—and in the self-same kidnaping case—a demonstration that the strong federal arm is needed, and needed vitally, to repress crime in this country.

The Department of Justice has shown beyond refutation that a Federal Scotland Yard will be the most effective agency for law enforcement that can be devised.

The lesson was first impressed upon the country when the desperado Bailey and part of his crowd were rounded up in Texas and elsewhere.

But the relentless, resourceful and successful pursuit of malefactors is only one of the numerous ways in which a central federal organization, co-ordinating the efforts of state and local police establishments, can give America better police work.

The existing collection at Washington of more than 3,000,000 fingerprints—by no means used by local detectives as completely as they should be—is an indication of what can be accomplished in the way of identification and of crime prevention under federal auspices.

With the experience of the Urschel kidnaping case in mind, Congress will be neglectful of the public interest if it does not at its next session provide immediately for the formation of a Federal Scotland Yard with the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice as the nucleus.

A Queer Idea of Art

On their arrival in Pittsburgh yesterday to pick the prize-winning pictures in the Carnegie Institute's international exhibition of paintings the jury of award gave out a remarkable utterance on art. C. Powell Minnigerode said, with the approval of his colleagues:

"Our choice is almost certain not to be a popular one. Nine-tenths of the people who see these shows still want photographic likenesses. If a picture is like something they have seen before, and is on an agreeable subject, they'll like it; otherwise they won't."

This means, apparently, that if a picture is lifelike or beautiful it has little chance of being awarded a prize.

Great paintings, according to the standards of greatness that the jury has set up, are more likely to be ugly and unnatural.

If attractiveness and fidelity to nature are, if not undesirable, at least unimportant qualities in a picture, in the name of common sense what are the important qualities?

It is almost as if the jury were to tell us that it is not important that a dish should be palatable and nutritious, as the best judges of good food look for other qualities.

The jury gives us to understand that nine-tenths of the people are incapable of appreciating great paintings. We do not believe that is true of the works of the old masters; we do not believe their works would have come to be recognized as masterpieces if the people had not liked them.

And modern art, it seems to us, is in a bad way if it is no longer for the people.

A Complicated Election

Special Care Will Have to Be Taken to Avoid Trouble In the November Voting.

A memorandum from the Bureau of Elections at Harrisburg gives warning that the election on November 7 will be extraordinarily complicated.

In precincts using paper ballots every voter will have to use three separate ballots and possibly four. One will be the regular ballot with the names of the candidates for office; another will carry the candidates for election as delegates to the convention that is to pass on the proposed repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment; and a third will deal with the question of permitting Sunday baseball and football. The 12 proposed amendments to the state constitution may go on a fourth ballot, but it is possible that in condensed form they will go on the regular ballot.

Even where voting machines are used the prohibition question will go on a paper ballot.

All the ballots will be numbered consecutively, and all will have to be accounted for.

It behooves election boards to make themselves thoroughly familiar with the requirements before November 7; otherwise there is bound to be confusion.

Third in Airports

The gratifying announcement is made by the Division of Aeronautics at Harrisburg that Pennsylvania, with 132 airports, now ranks third among the states in the number of landing fields.

California is first, and Texas second. California is three times as large as Pennsylvania, and Texas five times as large. Texas is mostly flat, and has the large army flying schools at Kelly Field and elsewhere to encourage aviation. Both Texas and California have better flying weather as a rule than Pennsylvania. And Pennsylvania is handicapped, too, by a mountainous terrain.

Marriage—Before and After

No matter what kind of face the Lord gave a woman, she can always think of some way to "improve" it. Now that the sun tan is beginning to wear off, the girls are all modestly concealing their features with face veils, just to prove that Nature can't beat them!

* * *

The way to a man's heart was never through his stomach, but through his eyes, his vanity or a woman's pocketbook.

* * *

The only thing a woman-charmer sees when he gazes into a girl's eyes, says Reno Ruth, is his own glorified reflection.

WHAT'S TH' MATTER— ASHAMED TO BE SEEN WITH ME ?

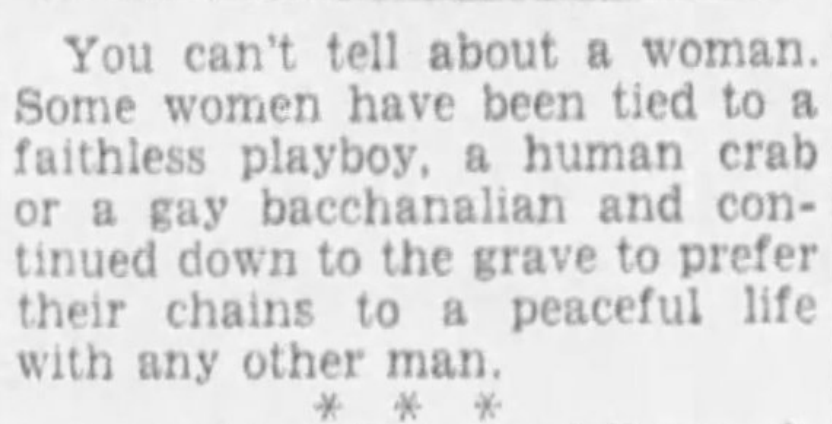
He fancies it will "keep him young"; but when a man of the horse-and-buggy age takes a bride of the sport-car age, he has to motorize his mind and speed up his poor old heart, until they just naturally give out before their time.

* * *

When a woman decides to get her beauty sleep and stops waiting up nights to put her husband through a questionnaire, he feels positively neglected and begins to wonder if her love is dead.

* * *

Marriage is a voyage of discovery; and the first thing a bridegroom discovers is that some of his most cherished opinions of himself were merely illusions—and that to be "understood" is not always flattering.



YOU DON'T CARE WHAT TIME I GET HOME OF LATE— I DON'T THINK YOU LOVE ME !

You can't tell about a woman. Some women have been tied to a faithless playboy, a human crab or a gay bacchanalian and continued down to the grave to prefer their chains to a peaceful life with any other man.

* * *

* * *

Many a man fancies that he's marrying for companionship, when what he's really looking for is a permanent audience—that can't get away.

* * *

A spinster may think she's been disappointed in love; but to be really disappointed in love a woman must have been married at least once.

ALONG THE MOHAWK TRAIL

By O. O. McIntyre

ALONG THE MOHAWK TRAIL Sept. 28.—Country roads are no longer abandoned waysides. They are agog with over-night camps, Duck and Tumble Inns, coffee stands stuccoed into monoplanes, and even ice cream crags that offer 18-piece free band concerts to motorists. Main streets are not half as lively.

A few miles from Boston I stopped at an electric "Puppies For Sale" sign and saw a newly whelped litter of seven English bulldogs, still with a sea leg wobble. I wanted one for Denise Coblentz. But such purchases are pig-in-a-poke affairs. It might turn out a mastiff.

Further on was the Paul Revere Riding Academy, and I thought of the skeptical Bostonian who told me years ago: "Revere couldn't even ride a horse!" But his protest was sketchy. The fate of heroes is "the bird." There are those who even say Lindy's flight was dumb luck.

In Concord, Mass., I saw for the first time in years the puckish comic paper type of hod carrier with a nubbin upside-down pipe. He was Johnnie Ray in real life. Too, on a bright path a file of drably uniformed, sullen men from a penal institution. They only stared at our wave.

* * *

On to Fitchburg, a gray New England manufacturing town with a wintry glitter, self contained, Main streety. At a bend a sandwich place called "Curve Inn." Somehow it suggested a grand name for a Boston "Wiggle." The town of Westminster had the most attractive outside dappled rock chimney I ever saw.

* * *

This is the droop of the year when wood smoke coils its acrid aroma in lazy drifts. Few odors are so attractive. Silly sign collectors could add this affiche on a lunch stand here: "Fill Up With Phillip." And the town of Gardner calls itself "The Chair City of the World." Looked as though the rocker got many of 'em. A job idea for old age—demonstrating chairs! An ultra modern note is that most villages boast airports.

* * *

Still another highway huckster offered: "Puppies, kittens, white mice, parrots and gold fish." Harry Silvey wanted to barge in, look around and shriek: "What, no zebras!" A swan farm held us a half hour. Their stately grace in gliding away in precise formations is marvelous. Chop sueys were once unknown to small towns. Every crossroads here has one. My wife, who up to this time had said nothing, suddenly clapped hands and cried "Goody!" We were passing a tapioca factory. Silliness like that is turning this junket into sheer farce.

* * *

Someone wondered if the employes ever ate tapioca. Silvey noticed the wheels of a passing train yammered tap-i-oca tap-i-oca. It would have probably gone on and on had we not come to "Aunt Agatha's White Hen," a prim tea room, suggesting a turkey wing duster behind the kitchen stove. We disembarked for tea. Then detoured a few miles to see Deerfield, famed for sausage.

Near Greenfield, with many signs, "Worms For Sale," really begins the picturesque wind of the Mohawk Trail, a blast of beauty through magnificent hills. At one point by spiraling three tiers one may see on a clear day four states—Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and New York. Also partake of "Snow's Ice Cream." Dips into cool valleys reveal streams ankle deep and rock bottomed. At Charlemont, a throwback in a covered wooden bridge, dull tobacco brown and echoey. Along the trail Indian tepees dotted hillsides.

* * *

The Hairpin Turn corkscrews its dizzy, abrupt twist near here. College boys hawk souvenirs at the summit. The Hoosac Tunnel is also on the way. At the celestial peak of the turn a lanky New Englander, unfolding like a carpenter's rule, arose from his shelter to come to the car. "Huntin' lodgin's?" he drawled. We explained we only wanted a view of the sunset. He grumbled on: "That's all they do. Just come and look!" Harry Silvey started him off again by asking if they had had a good tapioca season. I postcarded Irvin Cobb: "Lots of laughs. It's all Bridgeport!"

* * *

The wind-up of the Mohawk Trail plunges through a Sussex-like weald into the serene little village of North Adams. I never remember seeing so many cemeteries in one community. They seemed everywhere. But how appropriate. Trail's End—cemeteries!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Beware of a marriage that will make things comfortable for you.

Beware of a mate whom you can patronize—who will let you "take things easy"—who will never criticize or make you feel like thirty cents.

Nothing will make a bum of you quicker than such a marriage.

Nothing will make a cad or a coward of you quicker than such a mate.

Love is divine—if it's the right kind of love. But it is utterly demoralizing, if it's the wrong kind of love. And unfortunately most of us are ignorant about the "right" and "wrong" kinds of love. But there's a test—

Any love that makes you live more bravely, honestly and energetically, is the right kind of love.

Any love that helps you to slide out from under life is the wrong kind of love.

For life is the important thing, not love. You need growth far more than you need romance. Love is only important as it ministers to life—as it makes a finer man or woman of you. If it doesn't do that, love's a failure, no matter how "happy" it makes you.

That is why many of the wisest men have condemned marriage. They felt that it complicated life too much—that it endangered growth. They saw clearly that marriage, which most of us regard so blithely, is really the gravest risk a character can take. For if you stay single, the world will always take it out of you if you make a fool of yourself.

But if you're married, you nearly always get petted up at home. Also, it takes so little effort to be a success in marriage. Just flatter the old man, or bring the old girl a bunch of flowers, and you're a prize winner as a Missis or Mister. But it takes much, much more than that to qualify as a regular human.

Why have men and women turned against a "faithful, loving partner, who never did an unkind thing to them?" That's why. There is something deadly and damning about such a companionship. Something unnatural. No human being has a right to spend years with another human being and never do an unkind thing to him or her. No two human beings can be real partners and not stir each other up—not criticize and clash in the course of their mutual progress.

And something in us—something deep and unconscious, but intensely vital in us—revolts against such stagnation. Actually, it is life within us revolting—life demanding stimulation.

Don't look for a happy marriage. It would probably be the worst thing that could happen to you. Look for an exciting marriage—a provoking marriage—and a mate who will continually challenge you and put you on your mettle.

Isn't It So?

When we reach wisdom enough to understand our experiences, we are nearly wise enough to do without them.

The Human Side of the News

Irene Castle, Who Started the Fashion of Bobbing Hair, Now Devotes Herself to the Protection of Animals

By EDWIN C. HILL

VERY FEW women have lived in this world to assert sufficient authority—appeal—influence—call it what you will—to bring about a marked and permanent change in the physical appearance of their sex. This writer is reminded of that truth by observing in the news the quite incorrect statement that Miss Gloria Swanson, motion picture star, inaugurated the vogue of bobbed hair and slim, boyish figures.

Whatever celebrities and compliments may be extended to the charming Miss Swanson, the credit for revolutionizing the coiffure and contours, not only of American women, but of women all over the world, must go to that slim and graceful lady with the brilliant and friendly smile, Irene Castle—Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin she is now.

Because of her, 10,000,000 women bobbed their hair, discarded the mediaeval armor of corsets and dieted for slender, boyish figures. Because of her, dancing was reborn in America—yes, and throughout the world. In her day she was the supreme priestess of the art, as she floated over waxed floors in the arms of the young Englishman who proved that a dancing man can die a hero's death.

Irene Foote was the daughter of a doctor in New Rochelle, New York. She studied Spanish dancing in Mexico and went on the stage. In one of Lew Field's shows, "The Girl Behind the Counter," she met a young man with quicksilver in his toes, Vernon Castle. It was a love match when they married in 1911. To Paris they went to make their fortune, and there they almost starved to death until they persuaded the Cafe de Paris that they had something new in American dancing.

That was their chance. A delighted Russian prince showered them with francs. Within a week Paris was mad over their grace; and back they came to America to create the vogue of the foxtrot and to make over the American girl.

* * *

Set the Fashion By Bobbing Hair

FOR SEVEN years, Irene was the ideal of the American flappers—yes, and of the mothers of flappers, who sighed vainly over the plumpness that pastry had wrought. Their "Castle House" in New York was the most famous temple of artistic parlor dancing in the world. Pupils thronged to it, willing to pay any price to acquire a mere suggestion of the feathery grace with which Irene and Vernon floated through the new dances. She bobbed her hair, and immediately barber shops sacred to the masculine sex were besieged by the eager ladies.

Then Vernon Castle went over to fight in the air for England, downed a German plane or two and came back to instruct our own flyers. At Fort Worth he swerved his plane to avoid colliding with a student flyer, crashed and was killed. After Vernon Castle no other dancing partner was possible for Irene. Years passed and she married Major Fred McLaughlin of Chicago. And now on her estate at Deerfield she brings up her two little girls, Barbara and Irene, and indulges her passionate love for animals, especially lost, stray dogs—plain mutts, with no pride of ancestry.

She collected 500 strays on her Deerfield place and went to court to fight angry citizens who complained about their nightly howling. And one night her Deerfield dog retreat burned to the ground and ninety of the dogs perished in the flames.

Lithe and slim as in the old days when she was queen of the flappers, she fights vivisection and hales to court every truckman she sees laying a whip to an overburdened horse.

William A. Brady's Varied Career

WELCOME AND gratifying news that William A. Brady of the American theater is recovering from a period of illness, as is his brilliant and charming wife, the noted actress, Grace George.

William A. Brady is one of those dynamic characters whom nothing but the theater seems able to turn out. He sold newspapers on the streets of San Francisco and played Cripple Creek as a trouper before the railroads were carved through the Rockies. When Pompadour Jim Corbett left-jabbed John L. Sullivan out of the heavyweight championship in New Orleans, in the days when mother was wearing leg o' mutton sleeves, Bill Brady was in Corbett's corner as his manager.

He started a hundred obscure young men and women on the road to fame and fortune, and refuses to get out of harness as he nears three-score and ten. Cigar cocked truculently in a corner of his mouth, smart fedora tilted on his head, he cut the cards with Arnold Rothstein for $15,000 a cut. He has made and lost 50 fortunes in his 50 years of adult experience, and the last one, and a big one, he has held onto.

He should have been a statesman and a politician. In his penthouse, in the heart of the theatrical district, high above the ceaseless roar of Broadway, you'll always find the Congressional Record. "That's literature," says Brady, who reads it from cover to cover, as he follows closely all that goes on in Washington. He'll tell you that Senator Norris is his idea of a real American, that he doesn't put much stock in Senator Borah.

And once, when Congress was trying to censor the stage, Brady turned to Senator Gore with this peppery remark:

An upstanding personality, Bill Brady, despising bunkum and pretense, profanely frank, and a great believer in the country which has given him such a run for his money.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Don't fuss so much at Dad over the way he dresses.

When he has a new hat, shoes or a suit sent home, don't object because they are not strictly modern.

Your father may not care to buy articles too extreme in cut or style.

He has some sensible ideas that he wants to carry out.

He likes to appear independent, but he does enjoy words of favorable comment from the family on his selections.

If you don't like the style, at least you can praise the quality of the material, or its becoming color, perhaps.

Now he selects his clothes and accessories for comfort, wearing qualities and the personal satisfaction he feels in wearing them.

In his youth he probably pinched his feet with the pointed variety of shoe, and wore trousers so tight that they threatened to split out every time he sat down.

Dad has acquired some sense that he did not possess in his younger years.

You, too, will become more sensible as the years roll around.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis.

Triumphant Moss

The shadow here
Lies all the day,
No flowers bloom,
No grasses stray;
But nature hides
All lack, all dearth
And with green moss
Clothes barren earth.

How velvet-soft,
How emerald-green,
This brave moss thrusts
Its web between
The straining roots
Of lofty trees;
How well it learns
Growth's mysteries!

Past barriers
Still creeps the strong
Triumphant moss!
